7 CONVICTED IN URSCHEL KIDNAPING, 3 SET FREE

Outlaws Bailey and Bates, Three Shannons and Two Minnesota Defendants Found Guilty of U. S. Conspiracy Charges.

LIFE IS MAXIMUM PENALTY UNDER LAW

Three Acquitted at Trial in Oklahoma City Are Members of Group Accused of Handling Part of $200,000 Ransom.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sep. 30—Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates, the three Shannons and two of the Minnesota defendants were convicted of conspiracy charges by a Federal Court jury today in the $200,000 kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire.

Isadore Blumenfeld, Sam Kronick and Sam Kozberg, three of the Minneapolis and St. Paul defendants, were acquitted.

The other Minnesota defendants, Barney Berman and Clifford Skelly, were convicted.

The verdict was read immediately after Judge Edgar S. Vaught convened court at 10 a. m.

That a verdict had been reached became apparent last night, but Judge Vaught had ordered it sealed until today.

R. B. Cobbs of El Reno, Ok., foreman, said the verdict was reached after less than an hour and a half of actual deliberation, and that the jury held the report overnight only because of fear the Court might feel there had not been sufficient deliberation for a case of such importance.

Judge Congratulates Jury.

After the verdict Judge Vaught announced he would grant three days for motions for new trials, then congratulated the jury on "your courageous discharge of your duty," and allowed the jurors to depart.

The law under which the conspiracy prosecution was made is the "Lindbergh" kidnaping act passed by Congress in June, 1932.

The Federal Government had two of its key men in its war on crime here for the trial—Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant United States Attorney-General, and Harold Nathan, Assistant Director of the Bureau of Investigation.

The end of the trial brought no change in the status of the proposed agreement between Bates and the Government for return of Bates' share of the ransom loot, supposed to have been $75,000. Bates has offered to tell Federal agents the hiding place of the money if he would not be prosecuted on State charges of robbery with firearms, for which the penalty is death.

The defendants received the verdict with only slight signs of emotion. The three Minneapolis men who had been released sighed. Berman and Skelly looked dumbfounded. Their attorney, J. B. Dudley of Oklahoma City, immediately announced he would seek a new trial.

Agreement Early in Evening.

The jury received the case at 4:10 p. m. yesterday. At 7:45 p. m. the jurors had returned from the Federal Building to their hotel. Judge Vaught had directed that he not be disturbed after 5:30 p. m.

Judge Vaught said he would pass sentence next Saturday. This course is in line with the belief of Herbert K. Hyde, District Attorney, that George (Machine-Gun) Kelly, who was arrested earlier in the week in Memphis, Tenn., in connection with the kidnaping, will plead guilty when brought here soon.

Life sentences are possible under the law under which the 10 were tried.

The Shannons—R. G., the father; Ora, his wife, and Armon, his 22-year-old son—Bailey and Bates were the chief targets of the prosecution. The Shannons are owners of the Texas farm where Urschel was held. Bailey and Bates were accused as principals, while the Minnesota men were said to have handled part of the ransom money.

The prosecutor told the jury he expected a directed verdict for Kozberg and Kronick and the Judge's failure to follow the sug-

U. S. PURCHASE OF COAL FOR NEEDY INDICATED BY ROOSEVELT ORDER

HYDE PARK, Sept. 30.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT gave orders today to Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, that the destitue be provided this winter with food, clothing and fuel, indicating a federal purchase of coal as well as of foodstuffs and clothing.

Hopkins thought the original estimate of $75,000,000 for Federal purchases would be exceeded somewhat. He said no decision had been reached on purchase of coal but insisted "we are going to see that people are warm."

The Government will start its purchases of surplus food and staples within a week, he said.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Chaining a girl speaker to a pole so police could not interrupt her, demonstrators yesterday held an anti-Hitler meeting which tied up traffic at one of Philadelphia's busiest intersections.

Not until an automobile towing squad arrived could police break the chain. Then they took the girl to a police station where she was booked as Mary Brooks, member of the Young Communist League.

Traffic on Broad, Walnut and Locust streets, in the hotel and financial heart of the city, was jammed during the demonstration, which lasted half an hour.

DEFENSE URGES MERCY BY COURT

Says "Something Must Be Wrong" With Man, But Hope Vanished When He Was Found Sane.

John Winston Boyd, 32-year-old Negro who had admitted criminal assaults on 15 white women and four Negro women since last May, pleaded guilty in one case before Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton today and was sentenced by the Court to be hanged on Nov. 2.

The defendant, neatly attired in a brown suit, with shirt and tie to match and brown and white sport shoes, was ushered into the crowded courtroom at noon by Sheriff Deuser and Chief Deputy Willmann. He previously had entered a formal plea of not guilty, although admitting his guilt to officers.

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson informed the court that Boyd had decided to change his plea. Silas Garner, Negro lawyer, who, with two white attorneys had been appointed by Court to defend the Negro, stepped forward and confirmed Anderson's statement.

"The court has been lenient in granting our plea for an examination of this defendant's sanity," Garner said. "While I personallly believe there must be something wrong with a man like this, the physicians found him sane, and with their finding our last defense vanished. There is no other defense, and I can only ask the mercy of the court for this man."

Demand for Death Penalty.

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson then demanded the death penalty, and Boyd was told to stand before the judge.

"Have you had sufficient time to consult with your friends and attorneys, and do you change your plea to guilty of your own free will without promises or threats having been made?" Judge McElhinney inquired.

Boyd said there had been neither promises nor threats, and he had had sufficient time to think before taking the step.

"Is there any reason why you should not be sentenced to death?" the Court asked.

"None that I can see," Boyd answered calmly.

Turning to Garner, Judge McElhinney asked the lawyer if he had any objection to offer to the passing of sentence. The attorney replied that he had none, and the Court set the date for the execution. Boyd would have gone to trial Monday had he not changed his plea.

Arrested in Granite City.

Boyd, a former convict, was arrested Aug. 13 in Granite City and identified in an attack on a young white woman the night before. Jewelry in his possesion was identified as that stolen from the home of a woman in Osage Hills, who was attacked and beaten Aug. 11. The prisoner was taken to St. Louis Police Headquarters, where seven women pointed him out as the man who had attacked them.

Boyd's subsequent confession to police cleared up a series of attacks. It was decided to prosecute him at Clayton for the Osage Hills attack. At the request of Garner, two physicians examined the prisoner and pronounced him sane.

Boyd was born at Cairo, Ill.; attended high school two years and served part of an enlistment in the navy, being dishonorably discharged. At the time of his arrest he was living at 3129 Marnice place, and was employed as a porter for a barber and a druggist in North St. Louis. He has been twice married and is the father of three children.

Boyd is the second defendant in a capital offense to plead guilty before Judge McElhinney and receive the death sentence. James W. Kellar, hanged last Jan. 20 for the murder of Mrs. Etta Sauer of Maplewood, wife of his former employer, was sentenced by Judge McElhinney on a plea of guilty.

CHALLENGES NRA IN U. S. COURT OVER LOSS OF JOB

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 30.—The constitutionality of the National Recovery Act was challenged in Federal Court here today in a suit filed by Ralph Starring, an employe of 10 southern silk mills in Rhea County.

Starring claimed he is scheduled to lose his job when the mills go on the NRA code Tuesday.

MISSOURI JUDGE ENJOINS FEDERAL ADVANCE TO TOWN

Dent County Circuit Court Holds Congress Has No Power to Set Aside the Constitution of the State.

FUND FOR ELECTRIC PLANT SOUGHT

Restrictions on Borrowing Apply to Case of Salem Seeking Money for Utility, Decision Says.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SALEM, Mo., Sept. 30.—Judge J. H. Bowron in the Dent County Circuit Court yesterday handed down a decision construing the application of the Federal Public Works Act to Missouri municipalities, which, if sustained, might prevent any small Missouri city from deriving any benefits under the act.

Judge Bowron held that the section of the act authorizing the lending of money by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works to states and municipalities, barred by state constitutions from borrowing, was invalid.

He also held that a loan under the act was a debt within the meaning of the Missouri Constitution, and that no municipality could borrow from the Federal Government an amount in excess of the city's anticipated revenue for one year.

The City of Salem sought a Government loan of $40,000 for the extension of its municipal electric and water plant. The application was approved several weeks ago by the Missouri Advisory Board and is pending in the Public Works Administration in Washington.

Basis of Suit.

William P. Elmer, a Salem lawyer who has represented the Missouri General Utilities Co., in a long anti-municipal ownership fight in the town, brought an injunction suit in the name of J. W. Hagler, a taxpayer, to stop the city from borrowing the money.

He alleged in his petition that it violated the State constitution, which prohibits any municipality from becoming indebted in any manner for an amount greater than the revenue for one year, except by vote of two-thirds of those voting on the proposal.

He also alleged that even if a vote were taken, the loan would, with other indebtedness, increase the city's bonded debt beyond the constitutional limit of 5 per cent of assessed valuation for general purposes, plus an authorized 10 per cent for municipally-owned utilities.

Eugene W. Bennett and C. L. Gamblin, representing the City, argued that the loan was not a debt within the meaning of the constitution, which, they said, contemplated as a debt only one to be repaid by taxation. It was proposed to repay this loan solely from the earnings of the electric and water plant.

Court Grants Injunction.

They directed the attention of the court to the provision of the Federal act which purported to relieve municipalities of State constitutional limitations.

Judge Bowron, granting the injunction, held the loan to be a debt, held that it exceeded the municipal revenue for one year, and that the debt could not be incurred.

"The Congress," he said, "has no power to set aside the constitution of Missouri. The constitution prohibits a city from incurring such a debt and this injunction must issue."

Dr. G. H. Slawsom, Mayor of Salem, expressed extreme disappointment at the decision.

"We are sorely in need of improvements and extension in our plant," he said, "and through this loan, only $28,500 of which would have had to be repaid, we planned to make these extensions and carry out the President's desire for the relief of unemployment.

"We expect to appeal this case to the Supreme Court, but we fear that it will be impossible to obtain a decision before the first of January, which has been announced as the deadline for loans.

"I do not suppose there is a small city in Missouri which has an annual revenue in excess of the amount it would need to borrow for public improvements. If this decision is sustained in other jurisdictions, or if it should be sustained by the Supreme Court, I do not see how any Missouri city could obtain any of the Federal money."

ALL LUER DEFENDANTS CONVICTED; NONE TO DIE; SENTENCES 5 YEARS TO LIFE

MAXIMUM FOR NORVELL, FITZGERALD AND WOMAN

Jury Includes Mrs. Chessen Among Most Guilty; Husband and Nicola Gitcho Get Five Years and Mike Musiala Twenty.

IT HAD BEEN OUT NEARLY 42 HOURS

Time Spent in Debating Degrees of Guilt in Abduction of Alton Banker —State Demanded Electric Chair for Accused.

All six defendants in the August Luer kidnaping case were convicted today by a jury in Circuit Court at Edwardsville which fixed punishment for three at life imprisonment, and for the other three at prison terms ranging from five to 20 years.

The defendants, and the sentences ordered by the jury:

Randol Eugene Norvell, life imprisonment.

Percy Michael Fitzgerald, life imprisonment.

Mike Musiala, 20 years.

Christ Nicola Gitcho, five years.

The State had demanded the death penalty for all defendants, for the kidnaping of the 77-year-old Alton bank president and meat packer, who was dragged from his home the night of July 10 and held five days and nights in an unsuccessful effort to collect $100,000 ransom.

Deliberations of the jury, which received the case at 4:35 p. m. Thursday, occupied 27 hours and 45 minutes of the time it was out, a total of 41 hours and 35 minutes.

Foreman Richard Kraft, Venice contractor, announced that the jury had agreed not to discuss its deliberations.

Death Once Voted for Two.

However, attaches of the office of State's Attorney Geers, who talked with some of the jurors, told Post-Dispatch reporters that during the course of its deliberations the jury agreed by unanimous vote that Norvell and Fitzgerald should be electrocuted. It voted 8 to 4 for electrocution for Mrs. Chessen.

Several of the jurors, however, declared they would not sign a verdict that did not give equal punishment to all three and the matter finally was compromised at life imprisonment. One juror, it was learned, held out to the last for electrocution for all three, and when he signed the verdict of life imprisonment remarked to the others that he affixed his name against his best judgment.

In its preliminary deliberations the jury arrived quickly at a verdict of guilty as to all defendants. Several thought that the minimum punishment, five years, was too heavy for Chessen, but agreed to hold to their verdict, anyhow, since that was the provision of the law.

Luer, at Alton, when informed of the verdict, said both he and his wife had decided to "abide by the decision of the jury, whatever it might be." He added he was glad there was no disagreement on the jury, so that he and his wife would not have to go through the ordeal of another trial.

Scene on Return of Verdict.

The long wait for the jury verdict ended dramatically at 10:10 a. m. when the bell in the courtroom sounded. At that time there were only present lawyers, reporters, newspaper men, Judge Mudge, who had presided at the trial, and Department of Justice Agents Brennan and Gross, who had directed the investigation.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 30.—A written demand for the return to the State of $400,000, alleged to have been overcharged for State printing work, was made today on two Springfield printing companies and H. L. Williamson, who was superintendent of the State printing for 20 years under Republican administrations.

The demand was made at the insistence of Gov. Horner by Attorney-General Otto Kerner. The Attorney-General, in making public the demand, said he would file suit against the printing companies and Williamson to recover in the event the demand is ignored.

The printing companies involved are Schnepp & Barnes and the Jefferson Printing & Stationery Co. Williamson, a few weeks ago, purchased control of the Jefferson company.

In the demand the Attorney-

Man Mistakes It for Dime Store Jewelry; Heiress Rewards Him With $5000.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 30.—Carl Lynch, Gila Bend gasoline station operator, found a woman's ring in a washroom of the station. "Probably a dime store piece with lots of glass," he thought, and tossed the ring into a drawer and forgot about it.

Then he read in a Tucson newspaper that Anita Baldwin, California heiress of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, had missed a valuable diamond ring on a motor trip and believed it was stolen from her hotel room in Tucson. Lynch had five $1000 bills yesterday. The "dime store piece" was Miss Baldwin's ring, worth $35,000.

THREE RUSSIANS ASCEND 11.8 MILES IN STRATOSPHERE

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 30.—Government wireless stations announced that the balloon "Stratostat" had landed safely in a meadow near Kolomna, 71 miles from Moscow, this evening, after having completed a flight which carried it 19,000 meters or 11.80 miles above the earth for a new altitude record.

"Please prepare to receive us," said the final message. It indicated that the bag might land about 31 miles from the capital.

A record of 16,700 meters was set by Prof. Auguste Piccard in August, 1932. Piccard was aloft 12 hours.

The balloonists, Georgi Prokofiev, Ernest Birnbaum and Konstantin Gudenoff, had made eight previous attempts to get their craft off the ground, but today they had easy sailing.

Five messages sent while they were aloft told of their rapid progress. About two hours and 19 min-

'CAPTIVE MINES' CODE SIGNED, IN EFFECT MONDAY

Roosevelt Approves, Stipulating Pay and Hours Prevailing in District Shall Be Maintained.

JOHNSON TO AID IN ADMINISTRATION

Operators Affected Are Already Bound by NRA Agreement of Iron and Steel Manufacturers.

By the Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 30. — President Roosevelt today set up the machinery for regulation of the disordered coal industry and its thousands of miners.

The President received just before last midnight an agreement for the "captive mines" operated by the iron and steel companied, bringing these under the scope of the bituminous coal code and he signed it early this morning. A "captive mine" is one, the entire product of which is absorbed by the company owning it.

The code will be effective Monday.

As a result, Mr. Roosevelt hopes the 75,000 miners in Western Pennsylvania will return to work Monday and the strife in the "captive mines" will be ended.

The President appointed Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Administrator, as a temporary member of any coal code authority with power to appoint an agent to act in his stead.

Donald Richberg, counsel for the National Recovery Administration, brought the code with the iron and steel companies here.

In approving the understanding with the iron and steel mine operators, the President stipulated that it was "with the understanding that, under this agreement, hours, wages and working conditions throughout these mines would be made as favorable to the employes as those prevailing in the district in which such mines are located."

Formal Statement.

Secretary to the President Early made the following announcement: "The President approved the agreement between himself and the so-called 'captive mine' coal operators, these being the companies which mine coal for industries such as the iron and steel companies and are owned by said companies.

"These operators are already bound by the iron and steel code. They agree to comply with the maximum hours of labor and pay at least the minimum rates prescribed by the coal code already signed by the other coal operators.

"They agree to subject themselves to all the terms and conditions required by Section 7A of the National Industrial Recovery Act —the section relating to labor representation and collective bargaining.

Conditional Approval.

"In approving the agreement the President has done so with the understanding that, under this agreement, hours, wages and conditions throughout these mines will be made as favorable to the employers as those prevailing in the district in which such mines are located.

"This condition imposed by the President means that the conditions of employment in the captive mines will be in all respects similar to the conditions in other mines throughout the country.

"Agreements relating to these conditions have already been entered into between the operators and the United Mine Workers in most of the coal producing areas.

"In addition to the above agreement the President has also signed two executive orders, one completing the schedule of basic minimum rates, rounding out the rates previously approved on Sept. 18, the other appointing the administrator, Hugh S. Johnson, temporarily to serve as a member of any code authority with power to appoint an agent to act in his behalf.

"The machinery for puttting the coal code in operation is therefore completed so far as is at this moment necessary, so that the code may become effective next Monday, Oct. 2.

Agreement and Approval.

The agreement entered by the employers provided:

"Each employer in the operation of any bituminous coal mine operated by it will comply with the maximum hours of labor and minimum rates of pay which are or shall be prescribed under or pursuant to the coal code for the district in which such mine is located so long as the coal code shall remain in effect.

"This agreement is entered into pursuant to Section 4 (A) of the National Industrial Recovery Act as approved by the President June 16, 1933, and subject to all the terms and conditions required by Section 7 (A) and Section 10 (B) of said act.

"In witness whereof, the employers have caused this agreement to be signed in their respective corporate names by their respective officers or representatives thereunto duly authorized and the President of the United States has indorsed his approval hereon as of the 21st day of September, 1933."

Miners Lift Siege of Clairton, Pa., Plants.

By the Associated Press.

CLAIRTON, Pa., Sept. 30.—Striking miners began lifting the siege of the plants here today on getting news of the approval of the "Captive Mine" coal code by President Roosevelt.

Early this morning 300 miners had moved against the H. C. Frick Coal Co. but were driven back by police.

The first group to hear of the pact—several hundred miners encamped outside Clairton preparing for a descent on the big Carnegie Steel Company plant—burst into cheers, disbanded and started home.

Fifty state policemen under the leadership of Sergeant Frank Gleason carried the word to the picketing miners.

Standing in the highway, the miners listened to a telegram from Gov. Pinchot asking them to go to their homes and be ready to resume work.

"This agreement is entered into pursuant to Section 4 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act as approved by the President June 16, 1933, and subject to all the terms and conditions required by Section 7 (a) and Section 10 (b) of said act."

The statement, without reference to union recognition—one of the causes for the striking holiday among miners in Southwestern Pennsylvania—was directed to employes.

PHILIP LA FOLLETTE DISCLOSES SEEMING PLOT TO KIDNAP HIM

Former Governor Reports Attempt At Ambush at Lake Geneva.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 30.—Philip F. La Follette, former Progressive Republican Governor of Wisconsin, revealed today that an attempt either to ambush or kidnap him was made by two unidentified men late last night at a cottage in a lonely spot on Lake Geneva in Southern Wisconsin.

La Follette said he had secretly planned to spend last night with former Congressman Thomas R. Amlie, of Elkhorn, Wis., following a meeting which he addressed at Kenosha. He said that before he and Amlie arrived at the latter's lake cottage, about 2:30 a. m., two mysterious men twice called for him at the cottage and badly frightened Mrs. Amlie who was alone there with her children.

La Follette said his intention to stay with Amlie was not generally known and that inasmuch as the lake cottage is in a secluded spot two miles from the highway and accessible only by a little-used road it appeared as though an organized plot had been made to harm him.

Meanwhile, word had spread that the climax of case, which had occupied 16 days of jury selection, testimony, arguments and deliberation, was approaching. Men on the streets and in stores ran for the courthouse and crowded into the courtroom, most of them bareheaded and without coats. Only a few women were present.

The defendants arrived in court at 10:30. Mrs. Chessen was in charge of a matron. The men were handcuffed and under guard of deputies. Their manacles were removed at the door and they took their seats in the front section of a courtroom that was crowded to capacity.

Jurors Appear Fagged Out.

The jurors, patently weary from their long deliberation, were escorted into court at 10:35. All but three were in their shirtsleeves with their collars opened. Foreman Kraft carried in his hand the verdicts, at which the defendants stared. Norvell was white-faced and twisted a handkerchief nervously. Fitzgerald was more florid than usual, and swallowed visibly and continually while the jury was being seated. The others showed no emotion.

Judge Mudge warned the courtroom gathering against any demonstration. As the rustle of the crowd subsided to stillness, the Judge asked for the verdict, which was handed him by the foreman. After the Judge had scanned it, he handed it to the clerk, who began to read:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Randol Eugene Norvell, guilty of kidnaping for ransom in the manner and form as charged in the indictment and we fix his punishment at imprisonment in the penitentiary for his natural life, and we further find that the age of the said defendant, Randol Eugene Norvell, to be 33 years."

Norvell continued to stare at the floor, did not lift his head as the clerk read the verdict as to the others. Gitcho began to tremble when the clerk read the verdict as to him, and after a while began to weep, bending forward in his chair and holding his hand over his mouth.

Court Thanks the Jury.

After the reading of the verdicts the clerk polled each juror, who nodded affirmatively when asked if that was his verdict. Judge Mudge thanked the panel for its services and ordered the prisoners conducted back to jail.

Handcuffed together again at the courtroom door, the five male defendants were marched across the square, Fitzgerald, "The Dice Box Kid," stepping along, head up, with his usual jaunty stride, the others walking with shoulders bent and eyes to the ground.

"It looks like they dealt us a natural, remarked Fitzgerald, as the prisoners neared the jail. A "natural" is a winning point at dice or a losing point for the house.

Released from service the jurors ran up the stairs like school boys at vacation time and began to pack their clothing. Later they received their pay vouchers at $5 a day. Three of them received $105 having been picked on the first day of jury selection, while the lowest amount in fees to any juror was $80.

Prosecutor Disappointed.

State's Attorney Geers expressed disappointment that the jury had not assessed the death penalty, for which he made an eloquent appeal in his closing address Thursday afternoon, but declared that, in the main the State was satisfied with the outcome.

"I think we have accomplished all that could be asked," he said.

Counsel for several of the defendants announced they would file motions for new trial, and if they are denied, would appeal.

Meanwhile, State's Attorney Geers announced he would strike from the docket charges against all the defendants of extortion by threat, but would do so with leave to reinstate. He said "hold" orders would be lodged at the penitentiary so that as defendants are released they could be returned to Edwardsville for trial.

Similar Federal Action.

Similarly, United States Attorney Jones at Danville announced that Federal charges of using the mails to extort money would be stricken off the docket with leave to reinstate. In felicitating the State on convictions in the case, Jones gave public thanks to the police of St. Louis, East St. Louis, Alton and Madison, and to Sheriff Fitzgerald for their assistance to the Federal agencies. The investigation was directed by Department of Justice Agents Gross and Brennan.

Comments of Defendants.

After the prisoners had been returned to jail Norvell was heard to say of the verdict, "It was better than I expected." When a reporter asked him for a statement, however, he devoted himself to obscene criticism of the jury.

Chessen refused to comment on the verdict and lay on his bunk with his face to the fall. Musiala appeared dazed and protested against "sending a working man to prison." Gitcho volubly protested his innocence.

Mrs. Chessen countered the reporters' question with the sarcastic query, "What does the dapper Mr. Norvell say?"

Fitzgerald said: "I got nothing to say, except that I don't have that much time to spare."

One Kidnaper a Fugitive.

Norvell, one of the leaders in the kidnaping of Luer, had confessed on the witness stand that he helped plan and execute the abduction, but declared he did so because he feared Mrs. Chessen and "Irish" O'Malley, one of the kidnapers who is now a fugitive.

Fitzgerald, St. Louis ex-convict, had admitted after his arrest that he assisted Norvell, O'Malley and Gracie Adams, also a fugitive, in the actual kidnaping and had acted as a guard over Luer. He did not take the stand because his lawyer feared his case would be prejudiced with the jury if his criminal record was disclosed to it.

Mrs. Chessen was the "finger woman" who pointed out Luer to the kidnapers as a likely victim. The evidence also showed that she assisted O'Malley and Norvell in writing one note for $100,000 ransom, and helped Norvell write another, after Luer had been released, demanding $16,000. She denied she had done anything but help Norvell spell some of the words in the second note, but admitted she drove the car from which Norvell threw the note into a yard in Alton, where it was found later.

Part of Musiala and Gitcho.

Musiala allowed the kidnapers to hold Luer for five days and five nights in a cramped and musty hole beneath thet toolshed on his farm near Eagle Park, four miles northeast of East St. Louis.

Gitcho was shown by the evidence to have allowed Norvell, acting for Fitzgerald and O'Malley, to hide Luer for two hours in the cellar of his grocery store in Madison, prior to removal of Luer to the Musiala farm.

Chessen, the evidence showed, was present at conferences between Norvell and Mrs. Chessen about the kidnaping, and went along with his wife and Norvell when the $16,000 note was thrown out, to be picked up later by a friend of the Luer family and delivered to Luer.

Members of the jury, besides Foreman Kraft, were:

Fred Langreder, steel worker, Edwardsville.

Ross Meyers, pipe fitter, Hartford.

Walter Kombrink, farmer, Lees Township.

Gordon McFarland, farm hand, Troy.

Milo Case, baker, Venice.

Fred Lyons, truck driver, Troy.

J. G. Holland, steel worker, Granite City.

William Foster, delicatessen proprietor, Granite City.

Ned Brush, laborer, Granite City.

Luer Glad Ordeal Is Over; Has No Comment on Verdict.

August Luer was at his office in the Alton Bank & Trust Co., of which he is president, when notified of the verdict. One of his sons gave him the news by telephone from the office of Luer Bros. Packing & Ice Co.

Seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter, Luer was calm and apparently relieved that the strain of the trial was over. Asked to comment on the verdict, he said:

"Really, I don't want to express any opinion. Both my wife and myself had made up our minds to abide by the decision of the jury, whatever it might be. We felt we were just witnesses, not the prosecutors, although we were the ones who had been wronged. I'm glad, however, there wasn't a hung jury, so that we don't have to go through the ordeal of having the case tried again."

Luer telephoned the news to his wife at their home. Afterwards he said, "She feels like I do about it."

utes after they took off they sent word they had bettered Piccard's altitude and were still ascending.

They had then drifted only 24 kilometers (about 15 miles) from the straight line upward, they reported. They did not complain of the cold, although at that height the temperature inside their gondola was 22 degrees below zero, centigrade, and the outside temperature was 65 degrees centigrade below. (Seven and 85 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.)

One of the messages said: "All apparatus in good shape; plenty oxygen inside; temperature 14 degrees centigrade."

Only a few persons were at the field when the balloon, the "U. S. S. R." took off, but thousands saw it disappear shortly after 9 o'clock.

The crew wore heavy fur-lined, three-quarter length coats, felt boots of knee-length, and regulation aviators' helmets.

In trials a week ago the craft could not gain height because engineers presumably miscalculated the amount of hydrogen needed to lift the gondola.

Purpose of Flight.

The three balloonists, as they took off, planned to study cosmic rays; atmospheric, electrical, and chemical conditions, the physiological effect of high altitudes on men, and related subjects.

Their balloon is of rubberized percale and has a gas capacity of 25,000 cubic meters (about 880,000 feet). The gondola, of aluminum, is ball-shaped, with nine windows. Besides radio equipment it has liquid oxygen for three men for 40 hours, and many scientific instruments which function automatically.

ARREST IN INQUIRY IN THE SUPPOSED KIDNAPING OF FOUR

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A man who identified himself as William Davis Jr., 27 years old, of Louisiana, was taken into custody by police today after they said New Orleans authorities had informed them that the family of George M. Cox, wealthy ship owner, was thought to have been kidnaped and held for $25,000 ransom.

Also detained when he was found with Davis was Benjamin Berkson, who said he was a commission merchant, friend of Cox and formerly sold Cox food for his Great Lakes boats. George Wentz, also arrested, first gave his name as Allen when found on a downtown street. Alleged to have telephoned Cox last night and asked about the $25,000 reward offered for his family, he denied having mentioned any kidnaping and said Cox was so ill he could not talk to him. Wentz was another former employe of Cox.

The family, composed of Cox's wife, 27, their two-year-old son, George Jr., and Mrs. Cox's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Goertz, was reported missing yesterday by Cox when he returned to his Lake Pontchartrain home after five weeks' visit in Cooperstown, Ill. Cox said neighbors told him the missing members of his family left home last Saturday in their automobile. The day before he said Mrs. Cox had withdrawn $9000 from their joint bank account.

Chicago police said they were first called into the case when the chief of police of New Orleans telegraphed them that Cox had received a telephone call from a man who gave his name as George Wendt, in Chicago, and who told Cox to get together $25,000 for the return of his family.

Previously, Cox had offered a $25,000 reward for their safe return when he discovered they were missing.

Until two weeks ago Davis was employed on Cox's lake steamer, the Isle Royale. Davis denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of the family and said he was preparing to return to Louisiana. Police said they arrested Davis on information provided by a long distance telephone operator who listened to a telephone conversation she said Davis had with a man who had attempted to reach Cox in New Orleans from a South Side filling station.

Previously police had requested the telephone company to check all calls from Chicago to New Orleans.

Cox recently concluded his first year of operation of a passenger line from Chicago to Duluth and intermediate points on the Great Lakes. One of the two ships, the George M. Cox, sank in Lake Superior last May.

Then while the other boat, the Isle Royale, was tied up at its pier here waiting to be taken to winter quarters several sailors had it held on a suit alleging non-payment of wages filed in Federal Court. While it was still in the Chicago River and with Cox aboard ill in his stateroom, police were called to quell a disturbance created by disgruntled members of the crew.

Finally the difficulties leading to the suit were settled and the boat proceeded to winter quarters at Manistee, Mich.

Cox Says Old Acquaintance Demanded Payment of Reward.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30. — George M. Cox, ship builder, whose wife, son and parents-in-law, have been missing from their home here since last Saturday night, said today a man had telephoned from Chicago last night asking if his $25,000 reward offer for the safe return of his family was authentic." The caller said the family was "well and happy.'

Cox said the man who called from Chicago said he was George Wentz. Cox described Wentz as an acquaintance of long-standing. He said he was a former actor and showman of New Orleans and Chicago.

"Wentz asked if my $25,000 offer for the safe return of my family was authentic," Cox said. "The watchman said he did not know anything about the case but succeeded in holding Wentz on the phone for about 15 minutes while the call could be traced over another telephone. Wentz told the watchman that my family were all well and happy but declined to give any other information until the $25,000 reward was paid."

Cox expressed fears that his family had been kidnaped. A watchman at the Cox home said they told him they were going to spend the week-end on the Mississippi coast.

NAMED RAIL CO-ORDINATOR

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 30.—James Edgar Hutchison, who began his railroad career nearly 60 years ago as a messenger boy at Braidwood, Ill., today accepted appointment as Federal Railroad Co-ordinator for the Pacific Coast.

The appointment was a birthday present from Victor V. Boatner of Chicago, Federal Co-ordinator in charge of territory west of the Mississippi. Hutchison was 73 years old yesterday.

Collector for Crowell Publishing Co. in Fight in Office Building.

Two young robbers, one of whom had a pistol, fled empty handed from an office of the Crowell Publishing Co. on the third floor of the Cotton Belt Building today when Edward Duncan, 67-year-old collector for the company, scuffled with them. A $500 payroll was saved.

Duncan was alone in an outer office when the robbers entered, about 1:15 p. m. Ordered to hold up his hands, he grappled with the robbers and threw one of them out the door. The other struck him over the head with the pistol, and both fled.

George E. Riedell, manager of the office, and his secretary, Miss Marie Koener, who were in another room, heard the noise and ran into the outer office just as the robbers were leaving. Duncan, who lives at 1524 North Eighteenth street, was treated for a scalp injury at a doctor's office. Police found a loaded .38 caliber revolver, dropped by the robbers, on the second floor of the building as they were running to the sidewalk at Fourth and Pine streets.

PATMAN WOULD PAY THE U. S. NATIONAL DEBT IN CURRENCY

Congressman Also Will Renew Bonus Proposal Before Legion Convention.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—A program calling for cashing the bonus and payment of the $22,000,000,000 national debt in currency to save $725,000,000 annually in interest on tax-exempt bonds will be laid before the American Legion convention in Chicago Monday by Representative Patman (Dem.), Texas.

Patman, who for several years has advocated cash payment of the bonus, said in a formal statement that by giving currency to veterans for the equities in the certificates the Government also would save $112,000,000 a year, which plus the interest on the bonds that cover the national debt, would result in a saving of $837,000,000 annually.

As a delegate from Texas to the convention, Patman said he would propose that the $837,000,000 so saved be used to restore all the benefits to veterans that were removed by the economy bill.

Three Passengers Among Injured, It Is Learned When Vessel Docks.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 30.—Three passengers and 15 members of the crew of the Panama Pacific liner Virginia were injured when the vessel was lashed by a hurricane the night of Sept. 20, it was learned when the ship docked here yesterday. The injured passengers were C. H. Wood, New York; Mrs. V. B. Giles, New York; and Miss Ina Swissig, San Francisco. The crew members were injured slightly.

Considerable furniture and fittings were broken by the huge seas, Capt. George V. Richardson said.

'We were 200 miles south of the west end of Cuba," said Capt. Richardson, "when the hurricane burst upon us.

"We hove to, and were under control at all times, the machinery functioning perfectly and the vessel behaving splendidly."

Robbers Also Shoot Bystander as Raid on Depository Is Frustrated.

OELWEIN, Ia., Sept. 30.—A gang equipped with machine guns shot and wounded the bank president and a bystander in an unsuccessful attempt to hold up the First National Bank yesterday.

C. B. Chambers, 48 years old, the president, was shot through the right shoulder as he sounded an alarm when three men invaded the bank shortly before closing time.

Another shot from a revolver struck Ernest Klatt who was standing on a corner across from the bank as the robbers fled.

OHIO KIDNAPING BILL SIGNED

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—Gov. White yesterday signed the bill fixing the death penalty for kidnapers whose victim dies as a result of the abduction. The law will go into effect in 90 days.

Only the recommendation of mercy by the jury trying the kidnaper will save the criminal from an automatic death penalty. In that case the sentence would be life imprisonment. Another section of the law provides a penalty of five to 30 years for threatening a kidnaping.

Former Columbia, Mo., Mayor Dies.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 30.—Dr. James M. Gordon, 75, who served three terms as Mayor of Columbia, died yesterday of double pneumonia. Dr. Gordon, a graduate of the University of Missouri and Johns Hopkins, practised medicine here for more than half a century. His widow survives.

INDIANA SHERIFF TURNED LOOSE BY ESCAPED CONVICTS

One of His Captors, With Whom He Later Rode on Street Car, Is Caught at Hammond.

By the Associated Press.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Sept. 30.—Ill from lack of food, but otherwise unharmed, Sheriff Charles Neel of Corydon, Ind., was safe today after having been subjected to three days' hardship as a captive in the hands of four escaped convicts.

Liberated near Hobart, Ind., early yesterday, the Sheriff, accompanied by James Clark, one of his abductors, who later was captured, made his way to Gary, where he was found by Capt. Matt Leach, head of the Indiana State Police, last night.

Capt. Leach charged in a statement that the Sheriff's long delay in notifying the authorities of his release was "apparently a neglect of duty," but the Sheriff protested that he had been afraid the convicts would kill him.

Says He Feared Fugitives.

"I didn't know what to do," he said. "They threatened that they would kill me if I told my story. I felt sure they would come and get me at my home if they were not captured."

The Sheriff came to the home of Sheriff Neel Fry of Porter County, of which Valparaiso is the county seat, to recover from the effects of his experiences.

Sheriff Neel and Clark, who was also ill from lack of food, boarded a street car at Hobart and rode to Gary. Neel got off at the city limits, but Clark continued on to Hammond, where he took a taxicab. Through the cab company he was traced and captured by the Hammond police. Shortly afterward he was returned to Michigan City, where he and nine other convicts shot their way out of the Indiana State Prison last Tuesday.

Sheriff Changes Story.

"If you tell that I'm on this car, I'll kill you," Neel said that Clark warned him when the Sheriff left the car.

When the Sheriff first told his story he said the convicts who held him a prisoner had stolen an automobile and had made their escape in it early yesterday following his release. Later, however, he changed his story.

"They had no car," he asserted, "but they told Clark and me if we didn't tell the police they had one they would hunt us down later."

The Sherif's story was told after he had identified pictures of Clark, a bank robber, Walter Detrich, sentenced for participation in the same robbery; Joseph Fox, who was doing a life term for bank robbery, and John Burns, a convicted murderer, as the four convicts who kept him captive.

General said the State was overcharged $350,000 for the printing of motor vehicle registration lists from 1921 to 1932. Up to 1921 the Journal Printing Co. of Springfield, according to Attorney-General Kerner, printed the lists for $1000 each. In 1922 the contract was given to Schnepp & Barnes at $2000 each, and this charge was made by that concern until the Democratic administration came in this year. An investigation caused the contract to be given to another firm at a saving of $50,000 to the State.

Another charge in the demand is that the State was overcharged $31,500 for the binding alone on the Illinois fishing laws pamphlet. Still another charge is that $10,000 was paid by the State in 1929 for the printing of two historical volumes that were not published. It is also charged that enamel paper stock for which the State paid $10,000 disappeared from the State printing department.

In purchasing control of the Jefferson Printing & Stationery Co., Williamson announced, according to Attorney-General Kerner, that he would publish the historical volumes for which the State paid $10,000 in 1929.

Williamson, who went out of office when Gov. Horner was elected, is reputed to be wealthy. He lives with his family in Springfield.

CALDWELL DEAL WITH MO. STATE LIFE DESCRIBED

Former Official of Insurance Company Tells Policy Holders of Effort to Get $4,000,000.

$2,000,000 CASH PAID FOR SECURITIES

Paper Obtained Worth Only Half That Sum — Transaction Halted by State Superintendent.

How Caldwell & Co., defunct Tennessee brokerage firm, attempted to unload securities on the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. for $4,000,000 when their actual worth was only half that amount was described yesterday by R. H. Wibbing, who at the time of the transaction, in 1930, was an assistant vice-president of the insurance company with the duty of passing on investments.

Missouri State Life actually paid $2,000,000 in cash for half of the entire block of securities, as was told in the Post-Dispatch Dec. 5, 1931, selling $1,500,000 of United States Treasury certificates to help finance the deal. Before the deal could be consummated, the Missouri Insurance Department halted it.

New light on the exploitation of Missouri State Life by Caldwell & Co., then owning controlling interest in its stock, was given by Wibbing in a statement to the Missouri State Life Policyholders' Protective Committee of which Robert C. Newman is chairman. The committee is investigating some phases of the company's past management and inquiring into the terms of the recent sale of its assets, by court decree, to the General American Life Insurance Co., a new concern. The committee held a session yesterday at the offices of the General American company.

Caldwells on Committee.

Wibbing frankly told what he knew about the $4,000,000 Caldwell transaction, stating that the securities were not worth more than half of what the insurance company was to pay for them and that the block purchased has since declined in value. At the time of the deal the owners of Caldwell & Co., James E. Caldwell and Rogers Caldwell, his son, were two of the three members of the Missouri State Life Executive Committee. The third member was Hillsman Taylor, whom the Caldwells had installed as president of the insurance company.

Wibbing said he was first employed by the Missouri State Life in 1927 to analyze securities to be submitted to the Executive Committee for purchase. It was about that time that the Caldwells gained control of the company. Wibbing said he was restricted to securities offered by Caldwell & Co., the Fourth and First National Bank of Nashville, also controlled by the Caldwells, and another Nashville bank controlled by Paul Davis, a member of the Missouri State board.

Stationed in Nashville.

As all of the company's investments were being made in Nashville, Wibbing was stationed there by the company.

Newman asked him about the prices paid for securities purchased from the Caldwells.

"I discovered," he said, "that we were being overcharged. I went through a list that we had purchased and found that we had paid about $22,000 to much. I gave the facts to President Taylor and he said he would take it up with the Caldwells. I suppose he did, for after that our ordinary purchases were made at market prices. I had nothing to do with the actual purchases, but only passed on values."

In the $4,000,000 deal Wibbing was not consulted. He said he learned that Taylor had sent two junior executives to Nashville to handle it. He saw these men at their hotel and he said it was apparent they were suspicious of the transaction.

"Were you suspicious of it?" Newman asked Wibbing. "Very much so, after I saw the list and the prices," Wibbing said. "I felt that the Caldwells were getting their full investment plus interest out of these securities, which already had depreciated." The list consisted mostly of Southern municipal, rail and industrial bonds, he said.

Did Not Approve Deal.

Wibbing was asked if any of the officers of the company besides the Caldwells profited from the transaction. He said he had heard they did, but had no personal knowledge of it.

In May, 1930, after the Caldwell deal had been questioned by the State Insurance Department, Wibbing was called back to St. Louis, he said, and asked by President Taylor to put as liberal a valuation as possible on the Caldwell securities.

"Did you O K the deal?" he was asked. "No," he replied.

As has been told, the Caldwell transaction was in connection with the sale of their Missouri State Life stock to the Inter-Southern

Caldwells on Committee.

Wibbing frankly told what he knew about the $4,000,000 Caldwell transaction, stating that the securities were not worth more than half of what the insurance company was to pay for them and that the block purchased has since declined in value. At the time of the deal the owners of Caldwell & Co., James E. Caldwell and Rogers Caldwell, his son, were two of the three members of the Missouri State Life Executive Committee. The third member was Hillsman Taylor, whom the Caldwells had installed as president of the insurance company.

Wibbing said he was first employed by the Missouri State Life in 1927 to analyze securities to be submitted to the Executive Committee for purchase. It was about that time that the Caldwells gained control of the company. Wibbing said he was restricted to securities offered by Caldwell & Co., the Fourth and First National Bank of Nashville, also controlled by the Caldwells, and another Nashville bank controlled by Paul Davis, a member of the Missouri State board.

Stationed in Nashville.

As all of the company's investments were being made in Nashville, Wibbing was stationed there by the company.

Newman asked him about the prices paid for securities purchased from the Caldwells.

"I discovered," he said, "that we were being overcharged. I went through a list that we had purchased and found that we had paid about $22,090 to much. I gave the facts to President Taylor and he said he would take it up with the Caldwells. I suppose he did, for after that our ordinary purchases were made at market prices. I had nothing to do with the actual purchases, but only passed on values."

In the $4,000,000 deal Wibbing was not consulted. He said he learned that Taylor had sent two junior executives to Nashville to handle it. He saw these men at their hotel and he said it was apparent they were suspicious of the transaction.

"Were you suspicious of it?" Newman asked Wibbing. "Very much so, after I saw the list and the prices," Wibbing said. "I felt that the Caldwells were getting their full investment plus interest out of these securities, which already had depreciated." The list consisted mostly of Southern municipal, rail and industrial bonds, he said.

Did Not Approve Deal.

Wibbing was asked if any of the officers of the company besides the Caldwells profited from the transaction. He said he had heard they did, but had no personal knowledge of it.

In May, 1930, after the Caldwell deal had been questioned by the State Insurance Department, Wibbing was called back to St. Louis, he said, and asked by President Taylor to put as liberal a valuation as possible on the Caldwell securities.

"Did you O K the deal?" he was asked. "No," he replied.

As has been told, the Caldwell transaction was in connection with the sale of their Missouri State Life stock to the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Co. of Louisville, Ky., also a Caldwell company. The Inter-Southern turned over about $5,000,000 par value of securities to a trustee for the Caldwells, and Missouri State, though its executive committee agreed to buy $4,000,000 of them from the trustee. The Caldwells needed the money to pay bank loans.

There was an agreement by the Inter-Southern company to repurchase the securities at the sale price, but this was never enforced.

Places Loss at $1,652,000.

Another witness at the committee hearing, Sidney Souers, who was a vice-president of Missouri State Life and is a vice-president of the General American company, estimated the Missouri State loss in the Caldwell transactions at about $1,652,000.

Souers produced the vouchers for Missouri State's payment of $45,000 in fees in 1930 to Charles M. Howell of Kansas City, insurance lawyer, and candidate in 1932 for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. Payment of these and other large attorneys' fees that year, while the Caldwells were still in control, already has been made public.

Howell received a check for $25,000 which the voucher stated was for "legal services in connection with purchase of the Home Life Insurance Co. of Arkansas."

Souers said he had never heard of any purchase, or negotiations for purchase, of the Home Life by Missouri State. The company was one of those acquired by the Caldwells, and Newman remarked that it appeared that Missouri State had paid the bill for the Caldwells.

Two later checks for $10,000 each to Howell were for "legal services rendered." The same year Missouri State paid $10,000 each to Samuel W. Fordyce and Thomas M. Pierce, St. Louis lawyers, for services in connection with the Inter-Southern transaction.

Souers said the first hard blow to Missouri State was the Caldwell deal which he described as "most reprehensible."

He gave the following figures to show the accumulating difficulties of the company since 1929:

Policy Loans Outstanding.

Gross Payments to Policyholders.

1931	25,000,000

Total Premium Income.

1932	24,700,000

The committee will continue its investigation and has been promised full co-operation by President Walter T. Head of the General American Life Insurance Co.

Suits are pending in the State Supreme Court and in the St. Louis Federal Court to try to have the sale to General American Life Insurance Co. set aside.

Circuit Judge Hamilton, who approved the sale after the Missouri State Life had been adjudged insolvent, yesterday overruled a motion by David I. Weinberg, a policyholder, to set aside the decree of sale.

Chouteau Descendant, Wife, Child View Family Records in St. Louis

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MR. AND MRS. CORBETT E. CHOUTEAU and YVONNE.

MR. AND MRS. CORBETT E. CHOUTEAU and their 4-year-old daughter were photographed yesterday at Jefferson Memorial, where they inspected family portraits and documents.

Chouteau, one-quarter Shawnee Indian, is a direct descendant of Pierre Chouteau, pioneering fur trader and brother of Auguste Chouteau, co-founder of St. Louis. He is an officer of the Black Gold Petroleum Co. in Oklahoma City. His great-grandfather was Auguste P. Chouteau, who, with Jules de Mun, established some of the first trading posts in what was then Arkansas Territory but is now Oklahoma. His father was Edmund Chouteau, who married Silver Heel, a Shawnee Indian girl.

He is on his way back from the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, where he and his family participated in Indian day on Sept. 22. Yvonne did a series of Indian dances that day in the Court of Honor of the Hall of Science.

SEVEN FOUND GUILTY IN URSCHEL KIDNAPING; THREE ARE ACQUITTED

gestion brought surprise in the courtroom. The other three were pictured by their own attorneys as liquor runners, but Judge Vaught said in plain language that this had nothing to do with the case in hand.

There was no instruction for leniency toward Bates, pointed out repeatedly as one of the two machine gunners who kidnaped Urschel from his sun porch here July 22, or for Bailey, jailbreaker found asleep on the Shannons' farm, a machine gun at his elbow and ransom money in his pockets.

Judge Vaught instructed the jury that "not all the parties need to have unlawfully planned together originally in order to constitute a conspiracy."

Judge Vaught devoted some time to the cases of the Shannons.

"You are instructed," he told the jury, "that the reasons and excuses that they gave—fear and intimidation—for holding Urschel prisoner on their Wise County (Texas) farm, do not constitute a defense at law. A threat of future injury is not enough."

As to the Minneapolis and St. Paul defendants, he said:

"You must find that these defendants had actual knowledge of the kidnaping of Mr. Urschel, and knew the money they received was part of the ransom paid before you may find them guilty," he said.

"The Court submits the case on the part of the Minnesota defendants to you only with reluctance and upon the slender theory that you may have heard some of the testimony that the Court overlooked."

Review of Kidnaping of Oklahoma Oil Millionaire.

Two machine gunners, whom he identified as George Kelly and Albert Bates, prodded Charles F. Urschel from a sun porch bridge game at his town house here the night of July 22. They kidnaped Walter Jarrett, another oil operator, who was playing bridge with Urschel, Mrs. Urschel and Mrs. Jarrett, but robbed and freed him within an hour.

Urschel, trial testimony disclosed, was taken in the kidnapers' automobile to the farm of R. G. Shannon near Paradise, Tex., where he was hidden, shackled and blindfolded, for more than a week.

Through letters and "blind" newspaper advertisements, the kidnapers negotiated with Urschel's associates in the vast T. B. Slick oil estate, and finally E. E. Kirkpatrick, Tulsa manager for the kidnaped millionaire, handed a satchel containing $200,000 in $20 bills to Kelly on a Kansas City boulevard.

Urschel subsequently was freed on a rain-splashed road near Norman, 20 miles south of here, the night of July 31.

He told his whole story to Federal agents, ignoring the kidnapers' warnings to remain silent. The officers identified an air liner which Urschel heard roar above his farmhouse prison at regular intervals, narrowed the search to the Paradise area and, on Aug. 12, made a dawn raid on the Shannon home. In the yard they found Harvey Bailey, leader of the Memorial day break of 11 convicts from the Kansas State prison, asleep, a machine gun by his side and ransom bills in his clothing.

Taken in Denver two days later Bates, too, had a roll of the Federal Reserve notes. More of the ransom was traced to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and seven men were arrested as alleged "money changers." Two of them, Charles Wolk and Pete Valder, were freed during the subsequent trial for lack of evidence.

DECISION DECLARES THOMASSONS NOT LEGALLY MARRIED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 30.—In upholding the jurisdiction of the St. Louis Probate Court in administering the Hugh W. Thomasson estate, Special Supreme Court Commissioner Grover C. Huston ruled yesterday that Mrs. Grace Caroline Thomasson, who instituted various actions for administration elsewhere, "never became the lawful wife of Thomasson, nor is his lawful widow, and is not entitled to participate in or to receive any interest in his estate."

Describing the three marriages of Thomasson, an elderly bachelor, and young Mrs. Grace Caroline Mahood, a divorcee, as "odious and abhorrent," the commissioner reported finding that Thomasson had been insane since 1922, eight years before the first marriage, and that the ceremonies were planned by the young woman "for the sole purpose of obtaining the money any property of Hugh W. Thomasson."

Mrs. Thomasson and her attorneys, who last week accepted a $50,000 settlement to relinquish her claims to the estate, signed a stipulation for the Supreme Court to adopt the findings of the special commissioner and make permanent a writ of prohibition preventing St. Louis County courts from assuming jurisdiction in administration.

The hearing on which the Special Commissioner based his conclusions was held in St. Louis in August, with 72 witnesses presented by Mrs. Ella F. Bolles and Miss Elmira Townsend, St. Louis administrators of the estate, and none by the respondents in the suit, who were Probate Judge Hughes, Circuit Judge Nolte and Public Administrator Cronin of St. Louis County.

Special Commissioner Huston ruled that Thomasson, at the time of his marriages, was "deprived of his liberty and imprisoned" by Mrs. Thomasson; that his legal residence was St. Louis; that administration proceedings in Little Rock, Ark., where Thomasson died last Januray, are void because of lack of jurisdiction; that two alleged first cousins, Tower Thomasson of Mounds, Ill., and E. M. Thomasson, Denver, Colo., were not related to Thomasson and are not entitled to any participation in the distribution of the estate.

Mrs. Bolles and Miss Townsend, second cousins of Thomasson, are at the head of a group of 38 collateral heirs represented by Taylor R. Young and Patrick H. Cullen, attorneys. The lawyers have a contract with the relatives to receive half of whatever the relatives recover from the estate. Thomasson's property, the principal parcels of which are at Broadway and Washington avenue and Euclid and McPherson avenues, has been valued in excess of $600,000.

MRS. C. L. YATES WOULD DROP HER MAINTENANCE SUIT

In Letter to Edwardsville Court Seeks Dismissal Also of Other Actions She Begun.

A letter from Mrs. Margaret I. Yates asking that her separate maintenance suit and other litigation in her behalf at Edwardsville be dropped was received by the Circuit Clerk at Edwardsville yesterday.

Mrs. Yates, wife of Charles L. Yates, race horse trainer and part owner of several race horses, obtained an injunction to prevent her husband and the other part owner of the horses, James A. Nix, from disposing of them and from withdrawing $3500 on deposit with the Fairmount race track officials. The injunction was modified later to permit Nix to race the principal horse, Gay World, winner of the Chicago Derby, Sept. 2, and to withdraw $1500 of the $3500.

Nix also was sued for $10,000 damages by Mrs. Yates, who did not disclose the basis for the suit. In her letter she stated embarrassment resulting from the suits was her reason for asking they be dismissed. City Judge Cook, who has been presiding in the court at Edwardsville today, was absent and the letter was turned over to an attorney in the case.

LIENS FOR WHISKY TAXES

Liens for unpaid taxes on whisky were filed at East St. Louis yesterday against seven alleged dealers in illicit liquor.

The liens, filed in Federal Court by V. Y. Dallman, Collector of Internal Revenue at Springfield, name the following persons and amounts: Arthur Emmert, East St. Louis, $455; John Javorchik, Belleville, $111; Rose Vanseghi, Zeigler, $103; Victor Pacewic, Caseyville, $121; Sam Maggio, Westville, and Oscar Jackson, Danville, $431, and Modesto Rufino, Westville, $217.

DOG HEIR TO $1000

WOMAN LEAVES $1000 FOR CARE OF HER DOG

Miss Clara Cecil Killed by Auto Provides for Pet in Will.

The will of Miss Clara Cecil, 70 years old, killed by an automobile last Sunday on her way to church, leaves $1000 to the Humane Society of Missouri with the request that the society "find a good home for the little dog I now have and any other dogs I may have at the time of my death."

The pet referred to, a small fox terrier, has already been turned over to the society and is awaiting the selection of a home. There were no other dogs.

A $1000 bequest is made also to the St. Louis League for the Hard of Hearing, 3817 Olive street.

Miss Cecil left $500 each to St. Francis Xavier Church, St. Mark's Catholic Church, the Provident Association, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Little Sisters of the Poor, the Blind Girls' Home, Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home and the Community Fund and $250 to Amity Association.

Special bequests of $500 each are left to six friends, including Minnie Gayk, Miss Cecil's housekeeper, who receives also Miss Cecil's stock in the Union Electric Light & Power Co. A $1 bequest is made to Miss Cecil's brother, residing in Denver, Colo. The residuary estate is to go to the churches and charitable institutions receiving special bequests, with the exception of the Community Fund.

The value of the estate is not given. The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. is executor. Miss Cecil was killed near her home when she walked into the path of an automobile driven by George Reissen of Overland.

LEAD FIRM PRODUCTION RISES

By the Associated Press.

BONNE TERRE, Mo., Sept. 30.—Clinton H. Crane of New York City, president of the St. Joseph Lead Co., has announced here that, effective Monday, the working period of all employes of the company will be increased from nine days monthly to more than two weeks, approximately, about doubling the earnings of 4000 men.

He said conditions of the lead market, especially in view of the large supply now above the ground, "hardly warranted" the action, but that it was decided to "take a chance on business so increasing that it will be good business" for St. Joseph Lead, its affiliates and subsidiaries to increase employment.

GOLD PRODUCTION INCREASES

World Output for August 1,994,000 Fine Ounces.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.— World gold production increased in August, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. Output totaled 1,994,000 fine ounces as compared with 1,992,000 in July and 1,935,000 in June. Production in the United States was 181,000 ounces, a gain of 5000 from July. June output was 143,000 ounces.

Canada's August total was 250,000 ounces the same as in July, but a decrease of 11,000 ounces from June. South African mines turned out 935,000 ounces compared with 930,000 in the previous month.

ISAAC HEDGES' SON AND GIRL KILLED IN AUTO SMASHUP

Assistant Manager of Washington U. Real Estate and Telephone Operator Lose Lives on Grand Bl.

William H. Hedges, assistant manager of Washington University real estate, and Miss Patricia Burke, 22-year-old telephone operator, were killed in a headon collision of Hedges' automobile with a street car at Grand boulevard and Utah place last night.

Miss Burke was pronounced dead of a broken neck on arrival at St. Anthony's Hospital. Hedges died at the hospital of a fractured skull at 2:15 a. m. today.

Witnesses reported that Hedges, who was taking Miss Burke to her home at 427A Wilmington avenue, was driving south in Grand boulevard at 6:20 o'clock. He swung into the northbound street car tracks in making his way through traffic, and crashed headon into the street car. The light sedan rebounded about 50 feet, a torn and twisted wreck.

James Neely, 4517A Alice avenue, the motorman, suffered cuts of the hand from flying glass.

Hedges, 30 years old, lived at 27 Austin place, Glendale, with his wife and four young children. He was a son of Isaac A. Hedges, 9 Westmoreland place, real estate manager for Washington University. He had been associated with his father in real estate management since his graduation from Lake Forest Academy 11 years ago.

Miss Burke was the daughter of Joseph L. Burke, an attorney. She formerly was employed in the office of the Franciscus Realty Co., but had not worked for several months. She was educated at St. Joseph's Academy and Fontbonne College.

The corner at which the crash occurred has automatic traffic signals.

Four Armed Men Halt Vehicle Near O'Fallon, Ill., Unload it and Escape.

A truckload of 7000 pounds of upholstery materials being transported to St. Louis was stolen early today by four armed men who stopped the truck on Illinois State Highway No. 12 near O'Fallon, Ill. The value of the load, which consisted of leather, imitation leather and tapestry, was not ascertained.

R. W. Eggers and A. L. Hendricks, both of Indianapolis, were in charge of the truck. Four men, one armed with a shotgun and three with pistols, halted them by stopping a sedan in the path of the truck about 4 a. m. Eggers and Hendricks were blindfolded and made to lie in the back of the sedan, which was driven over bumpy roads for about half an hour, stopping at what they supposed to be a garage.

There they heard the noise of the load being transferred to another truck. After a time they were taken away in the sedan and were let out on State Highway No. 13 near Belleville. The empty truck, disabled by the removal of its igntion wires, was parked nearby.

The merchandise had been shipped by the National Carloading Corporation at Toledo, O., to its St. Louis office. W. C. Bergmann, St. Louis manager for the company, could not estimate the loss but said it was fully insured.

DOG WITHOUT A STOMACH FOR NINE YEARS DIES OF AGE

Medical Experiments on Ajax Helped to Show How Corpuscles Are Built Up.

EVANSTON, Ind., Sept. 30.—Ajax, the dog, lived nine years without a stomach and then died of senility.

He did his part to contribute to scientific knowledge. When Ajax was a mere youth of three, Dr. A. C. Ivy of the medical school at Northwestern University took out Ajax's stomach just to show that a stomach wasn't necessary to existence and that it might be good medical practice to remove the organ in case of disease.

Ajax continued a long and happy life with the small intestine doing the major portion of digestion, and the experiment paved the way for research on the role of the stomach in building up red corpuscles. But Dr. Ivy today said that Ajax had died of old age.

St. Louis Freight Rate Cut.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted railroads carrying soap and related articles in carloads from St. Louis to New Orleans conditional authority to reduce rates on those products from 48 to 36 cents a 100 pounds.

TWO IN AUTO HELD UP ON THEIR WAY TO BANK

Robber Takes $170 in Cash, $2300 in Checks and Escapes in Another Car.

Roy Maull, son of Louis Maull, proprietor of a food products company at 219 North Market street, and Mrs. Claudean Elmore, cashier for the company, were held up at 11:40 a. m. today by an armed robber who took $170.

The holdup occurred across the street from the company office, soon after Maull and Mrs. Elmore had entered his automobile to go to a bank. The robber pointed an automatic pistol at the cashier but said nothing as he took the envelope containing the money and $2300 in checks from her lap.

The robber escaped in an automobile on Broadway in which a second man was waiting. Patrolman George Hawthorne of the North Market Street Police Station, attracted by Maull's cries for help, saw the robber running and fired three shots as the automobile drove away. He obtained the license number.

GARMENT WORKER ATTACKED

Nose and Jaw Fractured In Encounter.

Harry Frazier, 53 years old, 3750 Evans avenue, a non-union garment cutter employed at the Carleton Clothing Co., 1123 Washington avenue, where a strike is in progress, reported he was attacked by four young men last night at Prairie avenue and Page boulevard.

WOMEN USED AS SHIELDS

Forced to Ride on Robbers' Car After $1600 Bank Holdup.

PIPESTONE, Minn., Sept. 30.—Three men robbed the Pipestone National Bank of $1600 today and used three young women as shields in escaping. The women were freed half a mile outside the town.

The robbers forced Mary Britt, Ruth Conrad and Ruth Walker to stand on the running board of their car as they drove away.

CONVICTED OF MAIL FRAUD

Two Kansas City Men Accused in Sale of Securities.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—Wilbur and Frank Mansfield, brothers, were found guilty by a Federal Court jury here yesterday of using the mails to defraud in connection with the selling of securities by the Universal Bond & Mortgage Co., of which they were officers.

Allen Mansfield Jr. and Guy Mansfield, brothers of the convicted men, and Julius R. Waldstein were acquitted of the same charges.

10 AUTOS COLLIDE, 4-HOUR TRAFFIC JAM

One Man Seriously Hurt, Two Slightly, 100 Hogs Killed.

AURORA, Ill., Sept. 30.—Ten trucks and passenger automobiles piled up in a succession of collisions near here yesterday, injuing one driver seriously and causing property damages estimated at $10,000. The 10 automobiles and trucks were wrecked or damaged. Two persons were hurt slightly.

The series of wrecks started at 1:30 a. m. when L. W. Talbot, truck driver from Toulon, Ill., taking a load of hogs to the Chicago stockyards, stopped on the Ogden avenue highway because a thick fog and a drift of smoke from burning peat beds made driving perilous.

A moment later another truck loaded with 100 hogs and driven by Ellis Johnson of Bradford, Ill., ran into Talbot's car, tipping over. Fifty hogs were killed and Johnson was badly cut and bruised.

Hits Runaway Hog.

While the wreckage littered the four lane pavement Walter Gohr of Berwyn, Ill., drove his roadster into a runaway hog and the car turned over. He was not hurt.

Someone telephoned for Aurora police. Before they arrived, Ralph Van Demarke of Atchison, Ill., and his load of 50 hogs plowed into the three wrecked cars.

Frank Wood of Hinckley, homeward bound from Chicago with an empty truck, sighted the ruins ahead and heard the squeals of injured swine. Wood stopped in the west bound outer lane and offered help.

Thought It Was Robbery.

This left three lanes blocked. Elmer Reiser of Naperville came along bound eastward, saw the crowd at the roadside and thought there was a robbery. He stepped on the accelerator, swerved to the left side of the road to speed past, and crashed into Wood's parked truck. He was hurled through the top of his car and injured seriously.

Roy Galloway of Lost Nation, Ia., had also parked at the side of the highway with 100 head of hogs and Reiser's car sideswiped his.

It was four hours before police were able to open a lane for traffic. Then a Pike Dairy Co. truck, driven by Nicholas Pauls of Aurora was nosing through and was hit by a truck driven by William Neufeld, Chicago.

While they discussed the collision, wreck number ten occurred. Ernest Costello of Chicago crashed into the two stalled trucks with his empty one. Costello was arrested and fined $5 and costs for reckless driving.

RECALLS BROADCAST PROTEST

Police Head Wires Radio Commission He Wants "Further Investigation."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Federal Radio Commission said today Capt. Matt Leach, commandant of the Indiana State police, had withdrawn his protest against a broadcast over the Columbia radio chain of a purported description of a gun fight between officers and fleeing convicts.

The commission said Leach telegraphed his withdrawal "pending further investigation." Leach complained to the commission yesterday about the broadcast, claiming it was false and had occasioned the police great trouble. The broadcast, made over Station WIND, at Gary, Ind., allegedly recited details of a fight in the hunt for convicts who escaped from the State penitentiary.

Railway Bridge Bombed.

SALONIKA, Greece, Sept. 30.—A railway bridge on the route of the Simplon-Orient Express, 50 miles north of here just beyond the erbian border, was wrecked last night by a series of bomb explosions. It was reported that the train was not damaged.

A Peace Justice's View.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN order to keep the public acquainted with the facts of the controversy between the Prosecuting Attorney and the fee Justices of the Peace of St. Louis County, I wish to state the following facts: On my docket of Wednesday, Sept. 13, I had five cases, two for improper license plates and three for careless and reckless driving. Mr. Anderson, the Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, did not show me the courtesy of having an assistant on hand to prosecute. As a result I had to dismiss all of the cases against these defendents.

Mr. Anderson has told many conflicting stories concerning his reason for not sending traffic cases to a fee Justice, the most recent of which being that fee Justices would not collect the costs for the State, and that it was his duty as an officer of the court to see these costs were collected.

On the other hand, Mr. Anderson recently told the Automobile Club that he would protect the autoist. Has he done so? Look at the crowded dockets in the paid Justice courts for your answer. Yet he can protect the poor autoist by his power of nolle prosequi, the use of which would have been justifiable in many instances.

I am the only Democratic Justice of Peace appointee of our present County Court in the Central Township. I was promised this appointment after the Circuit Court ruled that the County Court had within its power the right to appoint additional Justices. Before I was appointed, I was told to get the endorsement of the Wellston business men and the Wellston taxpayers, which I did. Many of them told me that our district was sorely in need of a Justice of the Peace. Mr. Anderson says: "No, you people of Wellston, plaintiff or defendant, come to Clayton and wait in one of our paid Justice courts all day for your name to be called." The other day, Judge Graham, a paid Justice, had 76 cases on his docket. Could not some of those have been sent to other Justices?

I believe the public is tired of Volsteads, Pussyfoot Johnsons and other would-be reformers. "If whisky comes back, and it will, put it where it can be seen, don't hide it."

FRANCIS X. HENNESSY,
Justice of the Peace,
Central Township.

Mr. Ford and the General.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MR. FORD has done more to raise the standard of living in the United States than any other man. He inaugurated the short work day and high wages. Now, because he pays no attention to Gen. Johnson's campaign to force the Russian idea into his plants, the General, being shielded from a counter-attack by the majesty of the law, punches Mr. Ford below the belt with vicious and widely advertised boasting about "cracking down on Ford" and, "He will feel the claws of the Blue Eagle." Such words imply a federally-backed boycott on Ford products and have a tendency to start labor troubles.

Perhaps Gen. Johnson will be handed his walking papers if he continues his attacks on decent citizens, and if his ill-considered speeches start any more labor troubles. He may be accorded the same treatment as was given Chief Braintruster Moley who, when he became too big for his job, was dropped back into his schoolroom so quickly he did not have a chance to catch a single kidnaper en route.

This is an earnest hope that before long Mr. Ford and others will say to the General: "Quit your loud talk and turn loose your dogs." W. W. DENTON.

"How to Make a City."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been instructed to commend you on the editorial, "How to Make a City."

The Building Trades Council of St. Louis is in hearty sympathy with both suggestions contained in that editorial, namely: A fair 10 years hence with aviation as the chief attraction, and the beautification and utilization of our once famous water front. We are ready and willing to give our full co-operation to any move that will have as its objective materialization of these ideas.

A fair of this kind would attract millions of visitors from all parts of the world, millions of dollars would be spent with our business houses, hotels, etc. St. Louis would receive an inestimable amount of advertising.

Space would not permit mentioning all the possibilities that the beautification and utilization of the water front has for St. Louisans—but one fact alone—the fact that thousands of our citizens would be employed for years, both directly and indirectly on this project, should bring it to the attention of everyone.

Possibly, in that length of time, many of our slum districts, which at present are unfit for human habitation and are an eyesore to the public, could be replaced with apartments, playgrounds, etc., thus eliminating much of the smoke, grime and filth from these sections.

JOHN J. CHURCH,
Secretary, Building Trades Council.

THE RISE OF THE NEW LEISURE.

There is no more hopeful sign for the future than the seriousness with which people are beginning to discuss the use of the leisure which they now have and which they are certain to enjoy more extensively as time goes on. It means a realization of the finest of all opportunities in life.

The course of leisure through the centuries is the history of civilization. The ancients knew its value and cherished it as a precious privilege of life. "Wisdom," declared one of their prophets, "cometh by opportunity of leisure." Ancient China provided leisure for its wise men because they were regarded by their fellowmen as a necessary part of society. The Greeks prized leisure so highly that they considered it a vindication of slavery. To them servitude was a necessary means justified by the end of freeing the higher classes from devoting themselves to the material things of life.

Aristotle's view that leisure was not only desirable in itself, but a condition of happiness and wisdom, continued to be widely held through the Middle Ages. During that period the average year contained 115 holidays, on which even the slaves were permitted a large measure of freedom from required duties. Historians tell us that, all things considered, more work was accomplished per working day then than under the one holiday in seven plan which has been the rule in recent times.

The rise of capitalistic society changed the whole basis of leisure. Heretofore its desirability had never been a matter of question. The Industrial Revolution, which began in England with a series of weaving and spinning inventions in the eighteenth century, produced an industrial economy which required almost continuous employment of workers. Puritanism in turn glorified unceasing work as a moral duty, and the common man was led to think of leisure only as the wasted time of persons of wealth who went in for useless activity and display.

The same machine which 150 years ago chained men, women and children in the unspeakable factories of England, today, through social regulation, promises to provide leisure on a scale greater than any the world has yet known. During the World War, when the eight-hour working day came into being, the use of leisure time was spoken of as a "problem" by social reformers. In 1930, when the First International Congress on Workers' Spare Time met in Belgium, with as many as 14 governments officially represented, leisure was no longer referred to as a problem, but as an "opportunity and cultural necessity."

Everywhere it is recognized that the shorter working week, which already is an established fact, requires intelligent planning and co-operative endeavor on the part of informed persons and agencies and the people in general. Secretary of Labor Perkins is making arrangements for a thorough study of adult education in the United States as a means of co-ordinating and promoting interest in this particularly praiseworthy use of spare time. In New York City, a special NRA committee headed by Raymond B. Fosdick and containing many distinguished members, is formulating a list of ways and means whereby metropolitan dwellers may turn the five-day week to good account. Here in St. Louis, the Department of Research and Education of the Community Council has recently issued three suggestive booklets on the general theme, "Adventures in the Use of Spare Time."

How many benefits the new leisure holds for the human race no one can say. European sociologists have contended that proper housing and city planning are necessary to the fullest utilization of time which is not needed for earning a livelihood. With city planning, a new municipal science in this country, and the construction of model residential units for city working people newer still, we are just undertaking these prerequisites. Still another basic approach is the transfer of city families to small plots of ground in the nearby country, a movement in population which is under way with governmental sponsorship. Locally, the increase in leisure should prove an impetus to the creation of a system of outer parks such as the St. Louis metropolitan area deserves.

The rise of the new freedom from continuous toil means more play, more recreation, more reading, more education, more hobbies, more little theaters, more garden plots, more choral societies, more use of the great American out-of-doors. It means a new and better race of men, women and children.

BEYOND REPEAL.

In sentencing a liquor violator for two years under the Volstead act, and then paroling him, though a $500 fine stood, Judge Faris indicated what his post-repeal policy would be. He called attention to Judge Davis' recent remark that the internal revenue laws against moonshining long antedated prohibition, and said that such laws will be in effect after prohibition. Under them, Judge Faris apparently intends to mete out stern sentences. This is notice to the moonshiners that they will practice the art and mystery of making and peddling illicit booze at their peril. No more bench paroles. No more light fines and sentences. No more support, implied or otherwise, from public opinion. Repeal will make moonshining just another crime, to be exterminated with all the resources of the law.

EPILOGUE.

When Provisional Judge Olian last month fined 12 picketing strikers $25 each for general peace disturbance, we protested the decision and pointed out that, fortunately, the last word did not remain with this Judge. The strikers appealed to the Court of Criminal Correction and now they have been acquitted by Judge Dickmann.

In the hearing before Judge Olian, the Judge lectured the strikers and told them he was personally familiar with the happenings on Washington avenue. Also, on the same day, in a case involving a charge of individual peace disturbance, Judge Olian assessed a fine of $25 against a woman striker and refused to hear a witness in her behalf.

St. Louis courts have a tradition of liberality, which Judge Dickmann has upheld. They do not go in for witch-burning. They respect citizens' rights to free speech and free assemblage, and the right of strikers to picket places of employment, without, of course, countenancing violence. The case against the 12 strikers seems to have been largely that they were pickets, rather than that they actually disturbed the peace.

We have urged the working people not to belittle so great a cause as the recovery plan, the purpose of which transcends every selfish interest. We have not the least doubt that some of the local workers have disregarded our advice to them not to resort to violence or heckling, but to adhere strictly to suasion. But neither the police nor the courts can be partisan in such a vital matter. We expressed the belief that Judge Olian was partisan in his summary treatment of the strikers, and an upper court only confirms that view.

POLITICS VS. PUBLIC WELFARE.

By adjourning without passing several highly important measures contained in Mayor Dickmann's program, the Board of Aldermen deserves to have poured on it the wrath of the city. As shown in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, the grasping politicians are furious at Mayor Dickmann because he refuses to wreck the City Charter and turn over to Aldermen and committeemen every last city job. By their action yesterday, they got their revenge; however, the chief victims are not the Mayor and the city administration, but the unemployed who otherwise might have had work this fall.

When Mayor Dickmann entered office, he did his best to satisfy the demands of the politicians; he turned over to them thousands of jobs, withholding others only for the highest of motives, such as the restrictions placed upon him by the City Charter and the need, in some cases, of specialized skill unconnected with politics. But the Aldermen and committeemen were insatiable, and at last have gone so far as to scuttle the Mayor's emergency proposals.

Among them were bills providing for $218,000 of street and sewer work, which would have given employment to many this fall; the measure authorizing a contract with the R. F. C. for a loan of $700,000 to construct approaches for the Municipal Bridge; a bill relating to reorganization of the Lafayette-South Side Bank, in which the savings of thousands of St. Louisans are tied up; and a bill stipulating the payment of the prevailing wage scale on public works.

Very properly, the Mayor expressed his "regret that the Board of Aldermen has not passed these bills, which would have created work and aided employment this winter. I particularly regret the failure to pass the street bills, which owners of the property had requested the Board of Public Service to get under way." Vice-Chairman Golden, speaking presumably for the Democratic majority, said it did not "intend to be stampeded into approving legislation without due and careful consideration" and denied animosity toward the Mayor.

There was no question of stampede involved. The special session was called Sept. 6, the bills presented had been carefully considered by the Mayor, department heads and the city legal department, and the Board has had ample time to study them. In addition, such a measure for example as the $700,000 bridge loan has passed beyond debate. The R. F. C. has the money ready and all that needs to be done is to draw up a formal contract, the terms of which have long ago been agreed upon.

Last April, for the first time since the City Charter was adopted, St. Louis elected a Democratic Board of Aldermen. If this is the type of government for which the local Democratic party stands, it certainly will be many years before another Democratic majority is elected. The city is not interested in the Aldermen's patronage quarrels, though, if it came to a test, the city would undoubtedly applaud the Mayor for the course he has pursued.

To hold politics over the public welfare is bad enough at any time; just now, when such behavior is a direct blow at the unemployed, it is unspeakable.

HENRY'S HEAD.

What is believed to be the long lost head of Henry IV of France, has been found, and who, be it asked, was Henry IV of France? There were so many royal Henrys popping up on both sides of the channel in those dark yet somewhat nimble Middle Ages that, excepting the philanderer, Henry VIII, who certainly had a way with the women, they are a blurred historical colony.

But when they tell us that Henry IV was Henry of Navarre, instantly an old-time hero comes galloping back into memory from the shadowy distances of droning class rooms and lessons ill prepared. Again we hear the valorous counsel—

> And if my standard-bearer fall, as fall full well he may,
> For never saw I promise yet of such a bloody fray,
> Press where ye see my white plume shine amid the ranks of war,
> And be your oriflamme today the helmet of Navarre!

Thus was it reported by Macaulay. The point is obvious. If history were written by the poets, instead of the historians, we should all be better informed and, probably, better behaved.

A St. Joseph judge fines liquor law violator ten cents. Assuming, probably, that the brother can spare a dime.

MR. STRICKLAND AND THE LITTLE THEATER.

To direct the Little Theater of St. Louis in winter and the Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge, Mass., in summer is the interesting task F. Cowles Strickland has set for himself.

It is a coincidence that both these flourishing institutions in the development of the American theater are now six years old. Mr. Strickland established the Berkshire Playhouse, and the Little Theater of St. Louis was established by the late Frederick Kitson Cowley. Both play to a discriminating clientele, and their success is the best assurance we have that the play as we know it is not to disappear from the scene.

Mr. Strickland follows into St. Louis a brilliant succession of directors, men illustrious in the little theater movement. All of them have shared his faith in the play for its own sake freed from everything but the obligation of excellence. His reputation has preceded him, and his work will be watched with keen interest.

The play, as distinguished from the moving and talking picture, has no serious rival in esthetic education. That it will disappear is unlikely. Like the lyric, beautiful in the time of Sappho and still beautiful with us, the play is for all time, a vehicle of thought with which no age can dispense, a mirror of life without which no civilized people can live.

The Little Theater of St. Louis, now beginning its seventh season, has grown steadily throughout the depression. With the added distinction of Mr. Strickland's directorship, and the alliance it is to enjoy through him with the most famous of the Eastern little theaters, it steps upward, its luster increased, its growth assured.

Prospects for Inflation

Washington gossip cites three reasons to believe that inflation is imminent: the widening gap between farm and industrial prices; the need to stimulate NRA Buy Now campaign, and the threat that Congress will force the issue; President prefers not to inflate, hoping to emerge from the crisis without that device.

T. R. B., Washington Correspondent, in the New Republic.

IN THE last few days, the talk of inflation has been revived in this vicinity in such a way as to convince quite a few of our most erudite observers that some overt act along the inflationary lines of the Thomas amendment to the farm bill is being seriously pondered by the inner circle of White House financial advisers. Things change so swiftly here these days that it is well always to keep in mind that football metaphor employed by Mr. Roosevelt at a press conference last spring. There can be no certainty about a play's being made until the signal is called. Nevertheless, there are, I think, at least three fairly sound reasons, aside from the appeals of Senator Pat Harrison, for believing that this particular play is being contemplated and that the latter part of October is the time the planners have in mind to make it.

One of these reasons is the fact, too plain to be ignored, that industrial prices have risen more rapidly and to a greater degree than farm prices. The situation greatly pains Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who, pointing out the disparity, expressed the opinion that the condition was not one to be patiently borne and predicted that, unless a means were found to correct it, there was likely to come from the farmer and the public generally an irresistible demand for a dose of inflation.

This forecast, made privately and with considerable earnestness, was more than usually significant. As a matter of fact, the condition which he deplores and concerning which the farmers in all sections undoubtedly are disturbed, is one that has been foreseen for some months. It has been the contention of the Farm Administration that if industrial prices were advanced faster than farm prices, the whole recovery scheme would be thrown out of gear and the results be bad. Despite the zeal with which Messrs. Wallace, Brand and Peek pressed the point, the industrial program under Gen. Johnson early attained an impetus that outpaced the farm program.

The Farm Administrator was unable to create the war atmosphere which Gen. Johnson, aided by the enthusiastic corps of correspondents, who are with him almost as a body, threw about the NRA effort, and the net result has been more rapid progress in one direction than in the other. Manufacturer, middleman and retailer promptly marked prices up with the promulgation of the shorter hours and higher wages of their code requirements. In some cases, the prices went up even before the codes were accepted. At any rate, the rise in farm prices was by no means sufficient, and the gap between the cost of what he buys and what he sells—of which the farmer has so long and bitterly complained—still exists. I find no one with a very clear idea at the moment as to how it is to be bridged, and yet the injustice of the spread is acknowledged.

Another reason given for favoring some inflationary move, such as cutting the gold content of the dollar, is that it will stimulate the Buy Now campaign of the NRA, the success of which is concededly vital to the program and about which there is no little trepidation within the NRA headquarters. A further argument is that unless the administration moves in some way to exercise the powers granted under the Thomas amendment before Congress meets in January, the feeling from West and South will be so resentful that it would be exceedingly difficult to prevent the passage of mandatory instead of permissive legislation.

Now, the interesting thing is that President Roosevelt does not want to inflate—a fact recognized by everyone in position to talk with him about fiscal policies. He realizes that he may have to do so, but is hopeful that it can be avoided. The real dream of the President is to be able next January to announce to the country that the depression is over, the unemployment problem, so far as is humanly possible, solved, the budget balanced, taxes reduced through the repeal amendment and that all this has been accomplished without inflation. That this is what he would like to do is beyond question. That he will be able to do it is hardly likely. He hopes but does not think so himself. Nevertheless, he will move—if he does move—toward inflation with extreme reluctance and only under extraordinarily heavy pressure. In the administration group, inflation will be particularly obnoxious, I think, to Secretary of the Treasury Woodin and Budget Director Douglas. The rest of the Cabinet and department heads will accept it without complaint if the President leans, but Messrs. Woodin and Douglas are expected to make a formidable protest.

The Rise in Railroad Income

From the Philadelphia Record.

RAILROAD labor seems to be taking it on the chin. Drastic curtailment in employment seems to be the only adequate explanation for the amazing rise in the net income of the roads. That rise is far out of proportion to the increase in gross revenues.

For example: The first 50 railroads to report for June show that gross revenues rose only 13.6 per cent over June, 1932, while net operating income rose 250.5 per cent. In June, 1932, these 50 railroads reported a net operating income of $14,000,000 on gross revenues of $202,000,000. This year they made a net gain of $50,000,000 on gross revenues of $230,000,000.

One railroad, New York Central, showed an increase of 2000 per cent in operating income for the month. Its gross rose from $23,000,000 to $25,000,000, but its net from $192,052 last year to $4,384,965 this year.

Since the increase in business was comparatively small, the increase in net operating income seems attributable only to "efficiency" in the use of labor. That greater "efficiency" may mean gravy to the railroads, but is likely to be costly to the public.

Greater railroad unemployment means more deflation, a loss of purchasing power to business and an increase in relief costs to the taxpayer.

Taxless Town

By Ben James in the Country Home.

IN THESE days when tax assessors hover like black ghosts over farms, bank accounts and salaries, Chanute, Kan., has thrown a gauntlet in the face of Benjamin Franklin's shrewd maxim, "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes." For Chanute is a taxless town.

In Chanute the revenue derived from city-owned utilities, water, gas and electricity, pays all the costs of operating the municipality of the town. This does not include the county and State taxes with which the schools are supported. But it covers all aspects of city government services.

I recalled the warning given me by a rich man in a Kansas city who frowned upon the Chanute system. "You can't beat taxes. It's subterfuge to say you do. It takes money to run governments and somebody has got to pay it. If a statement sent to you for payment is listed as gas, water and electricity, and you pay it with money spent to keep up the city, it's taxes, despite its trick name."

But Mayor H. W. Loy of Chanute doesn't let that argument bother him. As he explained to me:

Municipal ownership began in Chanute in 1894, when the city, after much haggling and indecision, erected a water plant at the cost of $44,000. Today the water plant and distributing system represent an investment of $558,423, with a bonded debt outstanding of $139,861. This is being retired at the rate of $16,000 a year from the earnings of the plant. That is why we were able to meet the depression with relief for taxpayers.

The co-operative spirit engendered by common ownership has its expression in the municipal building. Built with money from a community fund, it is the center of community life.

On the first floor were lines of people moving toward a wickered counter to pay their monthly gas, water and light bills. I stopped to talk to a Chanutian as he waited in line, his money and his utilities statement in his hand. "It seems to me," I said casually, "that your gas, electric and water bills must run pretty high here, when they have to be spread to meet the costs of such an up-to-date city."

"Here they are," he said. "Compare them with your own home rates." And he pointed out the schedule on the back of his monthly statement "You see, our gas rates are among the lowest in the Middle West.

"The gas rate begins at 45 cents a thousand cubic feet for the first 10,000 cubic feet. The next 10,000 cubic feet is sold for 40 cents a thousand, the following 80,000 cubic feet for 35 cents a thousand, while all over 100,000 cubic feet is sold for 30 cents a thousand.

"And here are our electric rates. For domestic use they begin at 6 cents a kilowatt hour for the first 50 kilowatts and range downward to 5 cents a kilowatt for the next 50 kilowatts, and 4 cents for all in excess of 100 kilowatts, with a minimum monthly charge of 50 cents. And our power rates begin at 3½ cents a kilowatt and range down as low as nine-tenths cent a kilowatt.

"Water rates, too, are on a sliding scale, from 25 cents down to 8 cents a hundred cubic feet, with a minimum charge of 50 cents."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.

THE family of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, famous draft dodger and exile from the United States since the World War, have begun negotiations with the War Department for his return. . . . A Washington lawyer has been retained, and $15,000 placed in escrow for his account if he can secure Secretary Dern's consent to reopen the case. . . His family, wealthy Philadelphia brewers, are ready to pay the entire cost of the Government's past efforts to apprehend Bergdoll, plus $100,000, to close all outstanding charges against him so that he may leave Germany for the U. S. A. . . . The report is that the Bergdolls intend to resume brewing again.

Prof. Sprague, famous adviser of the Treasury Department, occupies one of its most obscure rooms, so he can avoid callers.

Some of Roosevelt's appointees are getting away with murder that would raise a howl of protest in a less popular administration. . . . The latest is Billy Phillips, Undersecretary of State. Bluest of Boston blue-bloods, Phillips is the height of punctiliousness. But he got himself in a tight place on foreign bonds. . . . Last spring when Senator Johnson, chief champion of the foreign bondholder, was helping write the securities bill, he got strenuous opposition from Phillips.

Hiram Johnson wanted the body which was to try to collect defaulted foreign bonds, to be appointed by the Federal Trade Commission. . . . Phillips wanted it appointed by bankers, others outside the Government. . . . His opposition was so strong that Johnson had to go over his head to the White House to win his point. . . Johnson wondered why Phillips felt so strongly, finally discovered that he was chairman of the Bondholders' Committee for the National City Bank loan to Peru. . . . This was the loan where the son of President Leguia got a "commission" of $415,000.

Despite Phillips' bond activity, he is still consulting on the bond question, is trying to keep the Johnson plan from going into effect. . . . Questioned about this, Secretary Hull, Phillips' superior, admitted the fact.

President's Health.

RUMORS about Roosevelt's health are flying fast and loose in New York these days, especially in Big Business circles. . . . It is a recurrence of the whispering campaign that preceded the election last fall. . . . Such rumors circulate around any President, but they are more numerous now and less correct than usual. . . . Another tip was that Gen. Johnson had handed in his resignation; therefore sell short immediately. . . . The Department of Agriculture has dug up from Federal Trade Commission records all the dirt on the packers. . . . Wallace intends to fight the packers to a fare-ye-well.

Inside dope is that when Roosevelt recognizes Russia—which will be soon—he will require a claims convention to determine what is due American citizens whose property was seized. . . . This is what we got from Germany after the war, from Mexico after the revolution. . . . Only trouble is Russia has a lot of claims against us for the Archangel and Siberian Expeditions. . . . Litigation will drag out forever. . . . Pat Hurley, ex-War Secretary, is doing a little lobbying on the side. He got a call from a banker at 14 Wall street the other day to arrange a conference with Woodin. Hurley first tried to ease his client off with Undersecretary Acheson, but the banker insisted on Woodin.

La Guardia Cohorts.

FARM belt progressive leaders are ready to take up the cudgels for their old Manhattan friend and fellow-warrior Major Fiorello LaGuardia. . . . Senators Norris, La Follette, and Frazier have sent word to the Fusion mayoralty candidate that they will take the stump "on the sidewalks of New York" for him. . . . Their offer has a dual purpose; they are anxious not only to help LaGuardia win, but by their public support to rebuke the Roosevelt administration for secretly maneuvering to bring out another candidate against him.

Secretary Ickes is taking his vacation by sending away as many of his assistants as possible for rests. . . The Interior Chief, himself, has had only one day's surcease from his desk this summer, and that was when he went to Hyde Park to confer with the President. . . . To date there are 1694 building and loan associations, savings banks, and insurance companies holding memberships in the Federal Home Loan Bank system.

Inland waterway advocates are complaining privately about the Administration's "partiality" toward the railroads. . . They charge that the carriers have influenced the administration against river traffic development. . . . Minnesota's Farmer-Laborite Senator Henrik Shipstead is particularly vocal on the subject. . . . Dr. Fred Howe, consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, is working on legislation that would set up pure food regulations in the manufacture of bread. . . . Howe contends that other food industries have such standards, but the only gauge on bread is the unreliable one of taste.

Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis will be 77 years old on Nov. 13. . . . Louis Domeratsky, one-time Russian emigre, now Hoover appointee in the Commerce Department, makes it a practice to call up correspondents of papers carrying stories about impending Soviet recognition and seek the source of their information. . . . Domeratsky is a rabid anti-recognitionist. . . . Ohio's Democratic Representative Stephen M. Young is after the scalp of "Seaboard Bill" Stephenson, chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board, whom he charges with "procrastination and ineptitude."

Vengeance.

SHIP SINKS IN ATLANTIC; 20 MEN SAVED, ONE MISSING

Latvian Steamship Andromeda Goes Down After Sending Out S O S.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A report to Lloyds from the British steamer Hartside, says the Latvian steamship Andromeda sank after sending an S O S from 48:40 north and 7:30 west in the Atlantic Ocean. Twenty of the crew were saved, but the first engineer was missing.

The captain of the Andromeda said he thought an explosion or striking an unseen obstruction caused the wreck. The Hartside and the British vessel Carinthia and the Dutch ship Mitra responded to the distress call.

The Andromeda left Barry on Sept. 28 for Algiers.

MARGARINE TRADE AGREEMENT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Foreign fats and oils will be kept out of oleomargarine manufactured in the United States after Jan. 1, 1934, if the Farm Adjustment administration adopts a marketing agreement offered yesterday by the Institute of Margarine Manufacturers.

A. K. Fisher, president of the institute, said the agreement, among other things, was intended "to put our industry back on a strictly domestic basis and, by so doing, to enlarge the domestic market for the fine food fats and oils obtained from the products of American farms and ranches."

6,200,000 PIGS SOLD TO U. S. IN PRICE-RAISING CAMPAIGN

Farm Administrator Estimates Producers Will Get $30,000,000 for Marketing of Month.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Government's parade of pigs to market was over today with approximately 6,200,000 weighing 100 pounds and less sent to premature slaughter along with about 200,000 sows.

Farmers anxious to get the benefit of the higher-than-market prices offered for the pigs rushed them in large numbers to marketing centers yesterday.

As a result, purchases of pigs ran more than 200,000 over the quota fixed by farm officials and 2,200,000 over their original purchase plan. The quota was raised when growers failed to respond to the Government's offer of a $4 bonus in addition to market prices for sows soon to farrow. Originally administrators expected to buy 1,000,000 of these.

But farmers are reported to have concluded that selling their breeding stock at a time when the Government was reducing the number of pigs for future marketing would be "poor business."

George N. Peek, Farm Administrator, estimated farmers would receive in excess of $30,000,000 for the swine marketed during the campaign which lasted more than a month. More than $5,000,000 will be realized by packers who slaughtered the animals and produced 100,000,000 pounds of meat for distribution to the needy.

CITY WILL DROP LARGE PART OF CIVIC PROGRAM

Unable to Supply Necessary Part of Fund for $41,986,000 Improvements Administration Had Planned

$9,904,000 MAY BE PROVIDED

Mayor Finds Bond Issue Would Be Needed and He Does Not Think It Would Pass.

Almost three-fourths of the $41,986,000 public improvement program enthusiastically presented to the Public Works Administrator three months ago by Mayor Dickmann will have to be abandoned for, the present, the Mayor said today in reply to an editorial in yesterday's Post-Dispatch inquiring what had become of the plan.

Present funds on hand or likely to be available soon would enable the city to carry out projects costing $9,904,000, the Mayor said. The Public Works Administration would be asked to grant $2,457,000 of this amount, presenting one-third of the cost of labor and material.

If it were in a position to provide sufficient funds for its part, it is estimated the city might be able to obtain $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 from the $3,300,000,000 Federal Public Works fund.

Bond Issue, Only Way.

However, in order to take advantage of the Federal grants a bond issue would be necessary, the Mayor said he was advised by the city law department.

It is impossible to pass a bond issue now," the Mayor declared. "Owners of real estate are complaining of high taxes and the amount of delinquent taxes is enormous. We will just have to wait until economies permit lowering the tax levy 3 or 4 cents."

Members of the State Advisory Board of the Public Works Administration have emphasized the necessity for immediate action in order to obtain grants before the Federal fund is exhausted by other applicants.

Two-Year Delay.

Without a bond issue, the only funds which might be applied toward the projected $29,216,000 Third street trafficway and river front rehabilitation are those of the $2,500,000 revolving fund now tied up in street widening projects pending payment of tax bills, Mayor Dickmann said. It will be about two years before the revolving fund will contain any significant sum.

CITY URGED TO ACT ON RIVER FRONT

A resolution urging the city to decide at once whether to carry out the Third street and river front improvement, and to act speedily if the decision is to go ahead, was adopted unanimously by the Civic Development Committee of the Chamber of Comemrce yesterday. There is a $29,200,000 plan for a double-deck highway and connections with main streets and for a river plaza.

The resolution called attention to the need for quick action if the city is to take advantage of Federal grants under the public works act. It urged the Chamber of Commerce to approve the committee's stand and invited all organizations interested in the welfare of St. Louis to assist in bringing about the improvement.

"For many years," said the resolution, "conditions in the river front district have been causing decay and lessening of taxable values. These conditions are due chiefly to improper building development and street capacity."

Speakers Favor Bond Issue.

A new bond issue to meet the city's share of the cost of the improvement was advocated by several persons at the meeting.

"If we are going to do something," declared E. J. Russell, chairman of the City Plan Commission, "let's do it and stop talking about it. If we need a bond issue, let's go get it."

W. W. Horner, consulting engineer for the city on streets and sewers, urged the construction of the whole Third street plan, including the elevated upper deck, and suggested that the resolution ought to make some definite proposal regarding financing.

Hugh Miller Supports Idea.

Hugh Miller, State engineer of the Federal Public Works Administration, urging the community to apply for much more in Federal grants and loans than is in prospect, declared, "If you add to the program, you will have to issue bonds. I don't think there is any way around that. You wouldn't be at all out of line if you voted bonds for Third street."

Miller, who has been advocating the Third street plan, followed a map closely while the plan was explained by Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission. Bartholomew opposed the suggestion which has been current, that Third street be widened between Washington avenue and Walnut street as a preliminary step, letting the connections to Gravois avenue and North Twelfth boulevard wait.

He said the widening downtown would have little value but would be expensive. Fourth street could handle traffic of the region, especially if trolley loops were changed, he added. It would be far better, in the commission's view, he related, to build the approach connections first, to get traffic downtown readily. Thirty per cent of the value of the entire scheme lay in the approaches and none in widening the downtown section alone, he asserted.

Estimates of Cost.

Continuing the estimate, he said the widening and the approaches together would furnish 35 per cent of the value of the plan, while addition of the upper roadway for rapid traffic movement would bring the value to 85 per cent. Full value, he continued, would be achieved by adding the plaza, where there would be parking facilities. He quoted cost estimates as follows: The widening and approaches, with connections to Eads and Municipal bridges, $11,900,000; the upper deck, $7,700,000; the river plaza, $9,600,000.

Bartholomew placed the minimum cost, omitting the plaza, at $18,356,000, including $11,279,000 for construction and $7,077,000 for land. He pointed out that the Government would grant 30 per cent of labor and material costs, or $3,300,000. Street bond items of the 1923 bond issue will yield $4,000,000 when they have been replenished by payment of benefit taxes, he averred. The balance of about $11,000,000 would have to be raised by a new bond issue, a benefit tax levy or some other form of Federal aid, the engineer said. He recalled a proposal to ask the State Highway Commission to bear a share of this expense under an allotment the Government has given Missouri for connections with Federal highways. Missouri could find no better place for such an expenditure, he thought.

Miller praised the northern and southern river front projects of the plan commission, as well as that for downtown. He favored the northern one particularly, because it included a convenient airport, but said he would not dispute local judgment if it was felt the downtown scheme was the most important.

Missouri's Share.

Missouri, he said, should obtain at least $100,000,000 of the $3,300,000,000 Federal public works fund, and St. Louis should be entitled to from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 of this, while St. Louis County should get $5,000,000 to $7,500,000. Including what the city has asked for and given notice it would seek, the county's request for aid on a new courthouse, and the prospective request for aid in a county sewer system, it seemed likely the city and county together actually might receive only about $8,375,000, Miller declared.

He pointed out that other states had been active in seeking Federal funds and Missouri would be paying taxes to pay for the improvements elsewhere. So far, he related, only 34 applications for loans and grants, aggregating about $15,000,000, had been filed in Missouri. While Miller has suggested a possible program of $137,000,000 for Missouri, he said $200,000,000 would not be out of proportion. However, he could not tell where such a volume of applications might come from. He has suggested $20,000,000 for State penal and eleemosynary buildings and $10,000,000 for additional State highways. Miller said he had no idea what Gov. Park would do as to the former and that the Governor had told him the road proposal "couldn't be taken care of."

The city has been told the Government could not lend it $1,250,000 for completion of the electric street lighting system, subject to repayment from the savings from this form of lighting. Miller told the meeting this improvement "ought to go ahead," as it would pay for itself in five years. His inference was that a bond issue should be voted for the city's share of the cost, with a 30 per cent Federal grant.

Luther Ely Smith, chairman of the Civic Development Committee, suggested Congress might provide a large fund for the river front development as a memorial to the Louisiana purchase by Thomas Jefferson. There is the precedent of the George Rogers Clark memorial at Vincennes, Ind.

EMIL F. MANEWAL DIES; FORMER HEAD OF BAKING FIRM

Succumbs in Grand Haven, Mich., to Stomach Ailment; Funeral Arrangements Not Yet Made.

Emil F. Manewal, 42 years old, former head of the Manewal Broad & Baking Co., 2329 South Broadway, died yesterday at Grand Haven, Mich., of a stomach ailment for which he underwent an operation more than a year ago.

He had not been active in the business during his illness and gave up the office of president early in 1933, being designated vice-president since then. He had been in Grand Haven since August with his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Manewal, and his mother, Mrs. Amalia Manewal.

Mr. Manewal, who was born at Bucklin, Mo., and came to St. Louis when a boy, was the son of George Manewal, who founded the bakery. He became president two years ago at the death of his brother, Gustav C. Manewal.

Funeral services have not been arranged pending arrival of the body in St. Louis. A brother, Leslie, and two sisters, Mrs. E. P. Chenu of St. Louis and Mrs. G. A. Will of Chicago, also survive. Mr. Manewal resided at 7473 Stratford avenue, University City.

CRUDE OIL PRICE INCREASE

Jumps 10 and 11 Cents a Barrel In Southwest.

An increase in crude oil prices of 10 and 11 cents a barrel was announced yesterday by the Shell Petroleum Corp. in all its fields in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Louisiana.

A 10-cent raise in Oklahoma and Kansas brought 25-gravity oil to 76 cents and 40-gravity to $1.08. The 10-cent increase put East Texas oil at $1 and West Texas at 65 to 75 cents, depending upon location. The Texas Salt Flat field price now is 87 cents.

In Louisiana, an 11-cent raise resulted in prices of 70 cents to $1.10 according to gravity and location.

REDS AND TROOPS FIGHT IN HAVANA; 6 SLAIN, 14 SHOT

American News Reel Man Wounded in Clash Caused by Attempt to Bury Communists' Ashes

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Sept. 30.—Street fights between Communists and soldiers, in which six persons were killed and 14, including an American, were wounded yesterday, caused a tense situation in Havana today.

Chief of Police Emilio Laurent was arrested late today. Reasons for the arrest were not immediately forthcoming.

The disorder attended a demonstration of thousands of Communists in memory of a Cuban Communist leader killed in Mexico four years ago and whose ashes were to have been interred in a huge obelisk in Fraternity Park built by Communists.

This was in opposition to Government wishes and this disagreement apparently brought on the shooting from the housetops near the park and started the general fight.

Through the night shots were heard intermittently, automobiles rushed through the city, and soldiers remained on guard. Feeling between troopers and Communists continued at high pitch.

New Outbreak Feared.

Many persons feared a new outbreak, for the ashes of the slain youth, the student Julio Antonio Mella, apparently were in the hands of the soldiers, who planned to bury them in Colon Cemetery today.

A statement issued by the Government said the demonstration had been authorized but when it was learned the Communists planned to bury the remains in Fraternity Park an army captain was sent to ask Communist leaders to conduct the funeral in the Municipal Cemetery.

Then, the communique added, a company of artillery commanded by Capt. Jose Hernandez Ruda was sent to the vicinity "to prevent disorders and protect demonstrators because the Government had been informed that its enemies were planning to create disorders.

"A few seconds later several shots were fired and Capt. Hernandez Ruda fell mortally wounded. The soldiers, upon being attacked, started to shoot in the air to disperse the crowd, but as the crowd was hostile, and as several shots were fired at the soldiers, they fired back. Two soldiers were wounded."

Rain During Fighting.

As the shooting continued, frightened householders scurried for cover. High tension lines were broken. A heavy rain started. A sniper firing down from anti-Imperialist League headquarters wounded one soldier. Troops thereupon stormed the building.

As dusk fell, the city had the appearance of a battle ground, with an airplane flying overhead, cavalry, infantry and navy patrols everywhere, and an improvised tank lumbering about. The plane, an army machine, later crashed. Its occupants escaped injury.

Joe Gibson, 46 years old, an American newsreel photographer, received buckshot wounds in the leg. Six others of the injured were in serious condition.

Reports of disorders elsewhere in the island reached the capital. A force was said to be in the field against the Grau San Martin Government in Camaguey Province and from Matanzas came word that small bands of rebels were roaming through the country.

GOV. PARK ON REALTY TAX

Says Little if Any Will Be Added to Present Burden.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—Real estate will bear little if any increase in taxes under legislation expected to be enacted by a special session of the Missouri Legislature next month, Gov. Guy B. Park told Kansas City realtors yesterday.

The Governor said that real estate already bore as much tax as it should, but that rehabilitation of the State's eleemosynary institutions might necessitate "possibly a small levy" on real property. Declaring that "any man who can afford to drink beer can afford to pay a tax on it," the Governor said he would advocate that the beer tax be increased from 1 to 5 cents a gallon.

NORRIS FOR INFLATION, HOPES PRESIDENT WILL ORDER IT

Nebraska Senator Says Farmers Who Borrowed When Wheat Was $1.50 Can't Pay With 50-Cent Grain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, has declared for immediate inflation of the currency to cheapen the dollar's purchasing power, boost commodity prices and level the mountain of debt hanging over the people.

Replying to a questionnaire sent to every member of Congress by Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.) of Oklahoma, Norris, from his home at McCook, Neb., wired:

"I am of the opinion that inflation of the currency is necessary. We must make it possible for those in debt to pay what they owe."

At the same time Representative Wright Patman (Dem.) of Texas announced he will urge the American Legion at its Chicago convention to support to a program by which the entire national debt of $22,000,000,000 of tax exempt, interest-bearing bonds would be paid off in new currency. This would save $725,000,000 in interest annually, he said.

Norris, in his telegram to Thomas, added:

"A farmer borrowed $1000 when wheat was worth $1.50 a bushel is now required to pay his debt with wheat which is worth 50 cents a bushel. This is an impossibility. It cannot be done.

"We gave the necessary authority to the President. I voted for it on the theory that he would exercise that authority and I would be glad if he would do so at once."

Senator Thomas attacked the Federal Reserve Board for "failing to exercise more extensively its authority to buy Government bonds in the open market and thereby make it easier for banks to make loans and put money in circulation. Thomas said:

"The Federal Reserve Board is still following a policy of deflation. The reserve banks bought $36,000,000 worth of Government bonds last week, but there was a net reduction of $10,000,000 in money in circulation.

"The reserve banks ought to increase their bond purchases to at least $100,000,000 a week and if this increase does not provide sufficient money in circulation, President Roosevelt ought to use other power given to him by Congress to expand the currency."

Would Install System and Buy From St. Louis Water Works.

Brentwood within a few days will apply for $115,000 in Federal public works funds with which to install water mains and fire hydrants, Mayor Walter Douglas said today. The city plans to buy water from the St. Louis waterworks and resell it to householders who are now supplied by the St. Louis County Water Co.

Douglas said Brentwood now has only two fire hydrants and insurance rates are high for that reason. To obtain adequate protection, he said, it would be necessary to install 72 hydrants, which, if leased from the St. Louis County Water Co. for 20 years would cost $69,000. Of the total sought in Federal funds, $85,000 would be a loan and $30,000 a grant.

The average householder now pays the water company 45 cents for 1000 gallons, Douglas said. Brentwood could buy water from St. Louis, he added, for 13 cents and resell it at 40 cents, realizing a profit sufficient to maintain the fire department. A city distribution system such as is proposed, he said, would cost the average taxpayer $5 a year, but effect an average saving of $8 a year in lower insurance rates and water costs.

ROOSEVELT WEDDING GUEST

MISSOURI BAR HEAD URGES CLEANUP IN LEGAL PROFESSION

"Our Criminal Procedure Disgusts the People," He Says at State Convention.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30.—Jesse W. Barrett of St. Louis, former Attorney-General of Missouri, today was elected president of the Missouri Bar Association, to succeed Cyrus Crane of Kansas City.

Frank C. Mann, Springfield, Harry Carstarphen, Hannibal, and H. H. Hull, Platte City, were elected vice-presidents. James A. Potter, Jefferson City, who is serving his tenth year as secretary, was reelected, as was James E. King, St. Louis, who has served 10 years as treasurer.

Barrett emerged victor in a close race with John S. Leahy, also of St. Louis. The election was made by the general council of the association.

The public demands that lawyers clean up their profession "in this time of war against crime," members of the association were told here yesterday by Crane.

Declaring that the profession is "in bad" with the public and that it is "time to clean the doorstep," Crane said "our criminal procedure disgusts the people."

"We should not tolerate men who call themselves lawyers, yet who are actually partners of the criminal and participate in the loot," he asserted.

"Something must be done," he said, "to popularize the public with the bar."

Crane advocated that the judiciary be taken out of politics. The public demands it, he said.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Nervous financial markets dipped and rallied spasmodically today as traders confusedly attempted to form some conclusion as to the Government's future monetary program. Stocks received support after a sharp selloff and, under the leadership of metal issues, climbed back to a higher territory. The close was steady to firm. Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.

Equities started out in a dull and irregular fashion. Another drive started on American Telephone and some of the leaders. The telephone issue slumped to 115¼, but displayed resistance with other depressed shares, and soon came back to around 120 for a net gain of about 2½. U. S. Smelting spurted some 7 points. Grains were soft for a while, but they rallied along with cotton and some other commodities. Bonds were mixed. The dollar was a little easier in foreign exchange dealings.

Shares of Homestake Mining, on a few sales, got up 10 points, while American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Dome and McIntyre Porcupine advanced 1 to 3 or more in final transactions. National Distillers was off about 4 at one time, but recovered most of the decline. Stocks up fractionally to around 2 points or more included Union Pacific, St. Joseph Lead, Western Union, Allied Chemical, Celanese, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, U. S. Steel, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Johns-Manville, New York Central, Chrysler, Case and Santa Fe.

Trend of News.

Fresh reports from Washington that the administration would in near future define its fiscal policies did not create any unusual market excitement owing to the fact that rumors of an announcement of this sort have been floating around brokerage and banking circles for the past several weeks.

The upward adjustment of margin requirements, which went into effect on Sept. 15, is said to have been partly responsible for the relatively small recession in the loans total shown this week. Owing to the higher margin rule, brokers say, there was comparatively little forced liquidation of accounts.

Wheat finished around its final prices of yesterday after exhibiting early heaviness. It closed off ⅛ to up ⅜ cent a bushel. Corn was down ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent, oats sagged ¼ to 1 cent and barley was down ¾ to 1⅝ cents. Rye firmed ½ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel. Wheat at Winnipeg declined ½ to ⅝ of a cent. Cotton eased 20 to 35 cents a bale. Bar silver firmed ⅛ of a cent at 39⅝ cents an ounce.

The British pound sterling had a gain of ¼ of a cent at $4.76 for cables, French francs were slightly higher at 6.01 cents, Dutch guilders firmed .08 of a cent at 61.93 cents and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were up .01 and .13 of a cent, re- spectively. German marks and the Scandinavians were a trifle higher.

Overnight Development.

While Wall Street was attempt- ng to interpret the national fiscal tuation, financial circles express- d satisfaction over the announce- ent from Hyde Park that the resident had approved an agree- ent which, it is hoped, will end rikes in the bituminous coal fields Western Pennsylvania involving ,000 miners and 25,000 other em- oyers of the iron and steel com- nies.

At the same time the operations the national recovery program d their effect upon the consum- public were being watched ely by market analysts.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Early in the past week some fairly good sized sales were closed in the wool market but later demand was not quite so keen. Some houses, however, continued to transact a fair volume of business especially on greasy combing domestic wool. Prices were very firm to slightly stronger although the rising tendency was checked somewhat as the demand slackened. The market continued cheerful despite slower trade as some letup had been expected to follow the heavy buying of the past month.

WASHINGTON TRADE NEWS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. — Between June, 1929, and February, 1933, 27 of the 784 commodities covered in the wholesale price statistics gathered by the Labor Department increased in price; 42 did not change at all; and 715 declined in price, a recent summary shows.

The general level of wholesale prices, as compiled by the bureau, was 37.2 per cent lower in February than in June, 1929, and 31.7 per cent lower in June, 1933, than in 1929.

Metal and metal products declined less than any other group when comparing June, 1929, with February, 1933, the drop being 23.5 per cent. The largest decline for any group was in farm products, amounting to 60.4 per cent.

Lumber shipments from the mills were the lightest since May during the week ended Sept. 23, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association reports, while orders for new business received by the mills were less than the week before, but greater than the eight preceding weeks.

Total production during the week was 188,116,000 feet, which was the lowest of any week but one since July 8. Shipments amounted to 175,021,000 feet, and orders to 174,406,000 feet.

The increase in new business reported was partly but not entirely due to the larger number of mills reporting, the association said.

RETURN OF CURRENCY, LOAN INCREASE NOTED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Return of currency to the banks, indicating an ebb in hoarding, and a rise of $90,000,000 in loans other than those backed by security collateral, pointing to larger commercial borrowings, are noted in the monthly business and credit review of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, out today.

The loan increase by reporting member banks, covering the four weeks ended Sept. 20, was the first since the beginning of the depression except for a temporary upturn in the fall of 1930, the review points out. In the 1920-22 depression no increase appeared in these loans, which include various types of commercial and agricultural accommodations, for more than a year after the bottom of industrial production had been reached.

Currency withdrawals from the 12 reserve banks over the Labor day week end totaled about $75,000,000, representing the seasonal demand for money, but toward the end of the month virtually all of this money had returned. Nominally, some $35,000,000 more currency is outstanding at the end of September than a month earlier.

"It therefore seems reasonable to believe, added the review, "that hoarded currncy has continued to return gradually to the banks."

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—There were 21 favorable dividend changes during the past week compared with 36 in the previous week, the Standard Statistics Co. reported today. The gain is well above the average of the past several months. Unfavorable revisions numbered 20 compared with 14 the week before.

American Gas & Electric Co. and subsidiaries report for the 12 months ended Aug 31 net income of $9,982,598, equivalent after preferred stock dividends to $1.82 a share on the common. This compares with $13,297,590 or $2.69 a share for the 12 months ended Aug. 31, 1932.

Little municipal financing is scheduled for next week. The "Daily Bond Buyer" estimates the amount at $7,850,966 as compared with the weekly average for this year of $13,396,000. The largest item is a $3,760,000 offering of Cuyahoga County, O., 6 per cent refunding bonds, set for Tuesday.

Colorado & Southern Railroad had August net operating income of $129,113 compared with $49,761 a year ago.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank for Friday reported shipments of $6,666,700 in gold to France and $274,800 to England, all taken from stocks earmarked for foreign account. A total of 24,331 ounces of fine gold recovered from natural deposits was also reported as an export.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $734,692,700, unchanged; total net demand deposits (average), $26,614,000, decrease; time deposits (average), $4,851,000, increase. Clearings, week ending today, $2,837,127,649; clearings week ending Sept. 23, $3,136,152,449.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 4 TO 7 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Cotton futures opened steady, three lower to four higher on steadier Liverpool cables, which was offset by Southern selling.

October opened 9.66c, December 9.88c, January 9.92c, March 10.12c, May 10.27c, July 10.47c.

Trading was quiet at the opening with selling attributed to New Orleans and the South, absorbed by covering combined with local buying and a moderate demand from trade sources.

Prices steadied up a few points right after the call, from 9.87 to 9.91 for December but this bulge met increased hedging and the market was barely steady within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables said that continued hedge selling had been absorbed by trade buying and calling in the market there and houses with Liverpool connections were moderate buyers here at the opening.

Cotton futures closed very steady, 4 to 7 higher; Oct. 9.69c; Dec. 9.92@9.93c; Jan. 10.01c; March 10.17c; May 10.32@10.33c; July 10.49c. Spot steady, middling 9.95c.

Liverpool Spot Lower.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 30.—Cotton, receipts 7000 bales, American nil. Spot in fair demand; prices four points lower. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling 6.26; good middling 5.96; strict middling 5.66; middling 5.56; strict low middling 5.39; low middling 5.16; strict good ordinary 4.96; good ordinary 4.66. Futures closed quiet. October 5.39; December 5.42; January 5.44; March 5.48; May 5.51; July 5.55. Noon official closing, September 5.41 value.

WHEAT CLOSES NERVOUS UNCHANGED TO HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Week-end evening up of accounts for all classes of traders led to brisk late upturns of grain prices today, but advances were mostly transient.

Few speculators were willing to leave any important risks open until Monday, owing to uncertainties about what unforeseen Washington developments might take place.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 563,000 bu, attracted much notice, as being the scantiest since the 1933 domestic crop started to move in volume.

Wheat closed nervous, at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ higher, corn and oats both unchanged to ⅜ lower, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25 cents.

General commission house selling efforts that met no adequate demand turned grain prices downward early today.

Opening unchanged to ⅜ lower, wheat afterward declined all around. Corn started unchanged to ¾ down, and subsequently sagged further.

Wheat fell almost 2 cents a bushel before rallies set in. Much of the selling that accompanied the price break came from Eastern sources. Weakness shown by securities had a noticeable bearish effect, that was modified later when securities rallied.

A recovery of more than 1½ cents in wheat values as compared with early bottom figures took place, and was succeeded later by additional upturns.

The first unofficial monthly crop report was issued today, and was generally construed as somewhat bearish, indicating that estimates of domestic wheat yields had been enlarged since Sept. 1. In various quarters, however, it was suggested that the forthcoming Government crop report would be of a opposite tenor.

Primary receipts of wheat today were the smallest of the season.

WHEAT CLOSES NERVOUS UNCHANGED TO HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Week-end evening up of accounts for all classes of traders led to brisk late upturns of grain prices today, but advances were mostly transient.

Few speculators were willing to leave any important risks open until Monday, owing to uncertainties about what unforeseen Washington developments might take place.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 563,000 bu, attracted much notice, as being the scantiest since the 1933 domestic crop started to move in volume.

Wheat closed nervous, at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ higher, corn and oats both unchanged to ⅜ lower, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25 cents.

General commission house selling efforts that met no adequate demand turned grain prices downward early today.

Opening unchanged to ⅝ lower, wheat afterward declined all around. Corn started unchanged to ¾ down, and subsequently sagged further.

Wheat fell almost 2 cents a bushel before rallies set in. Much of the selling that accompanied the price break came from Eastern sources. Weakness shown by securities had a noticeable bearish effect, that was modified later when securities rallied.

A recovery of more than 1½ cents in wheat values as compared with early bottom figures took place, and was succeeded later by additional upturns.

The first unofficial monthly crop report was issued today, and was generally construed as somewhat bearish, indicating that estimates of domestic wheat yields had been enlarged since Sept. 1. In various quarters, however, it was suggested that the forthcoming Government crop report would be of a opposite tenor.

Primary receipts of wheat today were the smallest of the season.

RAIL ISSUES HEAVY IN THE BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The bond market was dull and somewhat soggy in today's short session, with rails developing considerable heaviness.

Uncertainties over the Washington administration's monetary policies continued to hang over the fixed-income securities. Renewed rumors of an early statement on dollar stabilization were not credited widely enough to influence the market particularly. The U. S. Government issues were narrowly changed, maintaining a steady tone as a whole.

The weekly report of the movement of freight, showing a negligible gain over the previous week, at this period when the movement should be reaching the year's peak, was possibly a factor in the sag in the rails. Such issues as Atchison 4½s, New York Central 5s and Illinois Central 4¾s declined major fractions to a point at one period.

Utilities were mostly steady, notably the American Telephone issues. Detroit Edison 4½s rose about a point, but Columbia Gas 5s sagged about as much. Oils were about unchanged.

Foreign bonds were quiet, with issues of the gold standard countries narrowly changed. Canadians were steady. Some of the Latin American and the Germans eased.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., Weekly Tabloid Review of Business

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Following is a tabloid review of business reported by Dun-Bradstreet in the four divisions of wholesale and jobbing, retail trade, manufacturing and industry and collections this week, compared with the corresponding period last year. Good (G) means above; fair (F) equal to; quiet (Q); slow (S) below last year; active (A).

Comment on Business.

ST. LOUIS.—Lapse of general business progress in evidence. While farmers are receiving fair prices for most of their products, the drouth has reduced harvests to such an extent that demand from agricultural districts has come almost to a halt. Local retail sales continue to make headway, despite some resistance to the higher prices. Industrial pace slower, with many plants on reduced schedules, though practically all have signed the NRA code. Unemployment situation critical. Textile strike unsettled; shoe manufacturers have had no labor difficulties.

PHILADELPHIA—Volume of retail sales in excess of that for the comparative period of September, 1932, despite some curtailment of buying because of unseasonable weather. Coat sales lighter; demand for dresses gaining; knitwear moving in double the volume of last year. Sales of men's clothing has reached the largest total in three years. Production of radio units has increased steadily since March. Further expansion in output of furniture. Anthracite coal production in excess of 1932 figures.

PITTSBURGH.—Department store sales in smaller volume than during August; today still above that of September, 1932. Wholesale trade slowed down by failure of bituminous coal miners to resume work. Sales of jewelry, considerably higher than last year. Industrial operations hold at about the same rate as last week, with orders somewhat more numerous. Factories producing table and decorated glassware busier. Production of plate glass for the eight months this year in excess of 60,000,000 feet, as against 52,000,000 square feet for the entire 12 months of 1932. Steel output about at last week's rate. Arrangements being completed to permit resumption of bituminous coal mining in Western Pennsylvania field next week.

CHICAGO.—Construction work continues on a surprisingly liberal scale. Hog prices easier, after touching highest level last week since May. Retail sales averaging 25 per cent above comparative record of a year ago, despite decrease in attendance at World's Fair, and less favorable weather. Production of furniture has receded from the August rate, but output still is in excess of any month since August, 1931; unfilled orders 118 per cent of current orders because of slowness of shipments. Steel schedules stepped up slightly. Retail sales reduced, but still above the 1932 total.

CLEVELAND.—Retail trade more active than a week ago, with consumer buying particularly large in such items as wearing apparel, shoes, house furnishings and electrical appliances. Price advances now have been extended. Increased consumer demand has resulted in larger orders being placed with wholesalers. Industries continuing at levels prevailing during the past few weeks. All business concerns making adjustments provided by the NRA. Full cooperation general.

DETROIT—Slight recession in retail sales, due to seasonal influences; total largest in three years for early fall period. Marked trend toward higher-priced merchandise. Sales of automobiles reached 48,000 units, as compared with 40,000 in the week preceding. Expansion of employment continues; employment index now up to 64.7 as compared with 33.5 last March. Business, as a whole, 10 per cent above the level of September, 1932. September motor output estimated at 180,000 cars and trucks.

TOLEDO—There has been an approximate gain in sales during past week of about 10 per cent, principally in department stores. Neighborhood stores do not show any material improvement. Slight increase in employment total of 51 local plants; many small industries have put additional men to work. Glass industry working at high level; foundry and machine shops have increased schedules. Railroads report larger tonnage and have increased employment.

KANSAS CITY—Wholesale orders thus far in September below expectations; fewer buyers in the market; mail orders plentiful for fill-in requirements. Warm weather has retarded movement of fall goods in retail channels. Sales in agricultural districts lower; new mark-ups on retail goods claimed to be out of proportion to quotations on farm products. Bank reopenings held vital to trade expansion. NRA rulings have increased local employment. Deposits of leading banks holding steady; demand for money still light. Hog prices during week reached peak level of the last two years; advances $2.25 from low December, 1932.

ST. PAUL.—Retail trade held up well during the week and in spite of the warm weather there was a good movement of coats and other winter apparel. At wholesale there was a slight tendency to lag, but a substantial amount of back orders and current shipments went out.

BALTIMORE.—Over $800,000 allotted for improvements to army camps in this state, the improvements to be made immediately. About $700,000 being spent for improvements, additions and power lines at Safe Harbor Hydroelectrix power plant. September department store sales running slightly below August, but volume is higher than that of September a year ago. Wholesale orders for hardware 50 per cent above those of 1932. Automobile sales about on a par with the good level of August.

FIXING OF RETAIL PRICES TO BE PUT UP TO PRESIDENT

PENDING CODE GOVERNS PROFITS

Provides That Stores Shall Make at Least 7.5 Per Cent on Transactions; Wholesalers 2.5.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. — Whether the country's retailers will be permitted to fix minimum prices by code action probably will be decided by President Roosevelt the first of next week.

Officials of the NRA and of the agricultural adjustment administration are at odds as to the "Stop-Loss" provision incorporated in the several codes. Unless there is a last moment change of mind at NRA, the "master" retail code—affecting virtually every line of store trade except foodstuffs and drugs—will be taken to Hyde Park tomorrow with the provision in it, and a recommendation that it be tried.

A similar provision proposed by food and grocery retailers—prohibiting sales at less than a 7½ per cent mark-up over wholesale cost—is slated for flat rejection by the Farm Administration.

Both codes must receive President Roosevelt's approval. Should Johnson sign NRA's retail charter today, it would go immediately to the President. Hearings preparatory to final drafting of the grocery code do not begin until Oct. 9.

Peek Against Price-Fixing.

In making known that the code affecting food prices proposed not only a 7½ per cent minimum mark-up for retailers but also a 2½ per cent mark-up for wholesalers, farm officials disclosed that George N. Peek, administrator, has ruled out price fixing for distributers except where codes or marketing agreements assure parity prices for farm products.

The farm administration is represented as believing that on the whole, price-fixing after a commodity leaves the farmer's hands is a mistake. It has determined rather on the policy of getting middle men into marketing agreements which fix only a minimum price for farm products and a maximum price to the consumer.

The NRA has jurisdiction on the wage and hour sections of the food and grocery code and will pass on these provisions Oct. 5. Farm administrators are hopeful that their own hearings beginning four days later will develop definite provisions for improving farm prices.

Pressure on Dairy Men.

The Evansville (Ind.) milk marketing agreement, meanwhile, furnished the first concrete instance of the administration's determination to apply pressure to arrive at pacts which mean higher prices to the producer.

Distributors there, farm officials said, refused to sign an agreement which contained only the lowest price which might be paid to the producer and the highest which might be charged the consumer.

Officials said that the administration decided to put a blanket license on the milk handlers which binds them to observe the pact, anyhow. Announcement of that decision is expected today.

The agreement is effective for 30 days and a hearing is to be held then at which the distributors may present their arguments for fixed resale price schedules.

Minimum and Maximum.

Unless there is a change of attitude by farm officials, only the price to be paid the dairy farmer and the highest price which may be charged the person who buys the milk is to be allowed.

Farm prices must be lifted quickly, farm officials believe. The voluntary agreement method has been slow. Officials said it would simplify matters if an industry were told what price it might pay the producer, establish a maximum to protect the consumer in certain cases, and let competition take care of the retail price.

In checking over the voluntary agreements signed thus far, officials have come to the conclusion that in many of them the farmer got too little and the consumer paid too much.

Woman to Run for Legislature.

LOU GEHRIG, BASEBALL STAR, SECRETLY WEDS CHICAGO GIRL

Hopes to Save News Till He Knocks Out Home Run, Then Goes Hitless In Game.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Lou Gehrig, first baseman and captain of the New York Yankees, was married yesterday to Eleanor Grace Twitchell, of Chicago. The ceremony was performed by Mayor G. C. Otto, who did not announce the wedding until three hours after it had taken place.

The original plan was to have Joe Humphries, veteran sports announcer, tell the news to baseball fans after Gehrig had made a home run at the Stadium, but Gehrig made no hits.

The wedding took place at the home of Mrs. A. Falk Gehrig, the ball player's mother. The only witnesses, in addition to Mrs. Gehrig, were James Linder, Yankee club official, as best man, and Mrs. Blanche C. Austin, an aunt of the bride as matron of honor.

There was considerable secrecy about the wedding to keep the news from getting out in advance. The license was obtained just before the ceremony, with the aid of Mayor Otto, who went with Gehrig and his fiance to City Clerk Eugene M. Heiney, who also was pledged to secrecy. The ball player gave his name as Henry Gehrig and said he was 30 years old. His bride is 27.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD'S SISTER CALLS OFF SEVENTH WEDDING

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The engagement of Mrs. Eugenia Bankhead Hoyt, Tallulah Bankhead's sister, to E. Kennedy McConnell, son of a retired coal magnate, was called off yesterday for an unannounced reason. Had the wedding taken place, it would have been Mrs. Hoyt's seventh.

Mrs. Hoyt recently told interviewers that if McConnell were not an ideal mate she would "have to start seeking again." When the engagement was canceled, she remarked, "I am not terribly disappointed."

She and McConnell first met several years ago, but it was not until five years later that they met again, during a Mediterranean cruise.

At the time her engagement to McConnell was announced, Sept. 12, she said: "I have been married six times, three times to Morton Hoyt, a Washington millionaire. We were last divorced in 1929; we were first married when we were both under 20.'"

The low bid was $2,194,577.54 as compared with the Government's estimate of $2,592,771.30.

There were six bidders. The Healy Company is completing the Roller Dam at the Tri-Cities. The Canton project is a short distance above the town for which it is named.

The Fruin-Colnon Construction Co., St. Louis, bid $2,298,546.76 and G. L. Tarlton, St. Louis, $3,294,820.76.

Work will be done under terms of the Public Works program with a 50-cent minimum wage and a 30-hour week. The plan and specifications call for erection of a dam with three roller gates similar to those in the Rock Island dam.

IMMIGRATION OFFICER HOLDS FRENCH WRITER

Barbusse, Who Admits He Is Communist, Detained for Several Hours.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Henri Barbusse, French writer and pacifist, was detained for several hours by immigration authorities yesterday after he avowed membership in the Communist party of France. He arrived on the Berengaria to address the American Congress Against War, which convened last night.

George McDowell, immigration inspector, detained the writer after a telephone call to Ellis Island. Miss Annette Vidal, Barbusse's secretary, also was detained.

Edward F. Corsi, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, was out of his office when McDowell asked for instructions. Corsi ordered Barbusse and Miss Vidal released when he learned what had been done.

Barbusse's most widely read book in America probably was "Le Feu," one of a series of brutally realistic books about the World War.

MRS. TALMADGE, MOTHER OF THREE MOVIE STARS, DIES

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 30.—Mrs. Margaret (Peg) Talmadge, mother of the three Talmadge sisters of the movies, Norma, Constance and Natalie, died yesterday of pneumonia that developed from influenza contracted 10 days ago.

She guided the careers of her daughters through all their phases, from the day she first took Norma to register at the old Vitagraph Studio in Brooklyn for a $25 a week job.

Mrs. Talmadge was born on Governor's Island, New York. She was the widow of Frederick Talmadge, who died in 1925.

CATTLE LIVE ON SHRUBS

Mesquite Bean Chief Resource of Stock in Texas Drouth.

By the Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Tex.—Cattlemen in the mesquite districts of the Texas Panhandle say their herds existed for weeks during the drouth this year almost entirely on mesquite beans——the heaviest crop oldtimers said they had ever seen.

The mesquite is a scraggly shrub, common to the arid regions of the Southwest. The beans, sometimes a foot or more in length, grow in profusion, and are considered good feed for cattle and horses.

SAYS POLITICS IS OUT

Public Works Adviser for Eighth Region Denounces Abuses.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—Denouncing abuses in letting public contracts, Vincent M. Miles of Fort Smith, Ark., public works adviser for the eighth region, pledged that politics would have no part in awarding projects to contractors.

"The day is past," he said, "when a contractor feels it is necessary to see some politcian in order to get a contract for a public building." Civic leaders here were told that all projects must be awarded so that wages will be adequate.

WRECK ON ERIE, 14 DEATHS, LAID TO MANY ERRORS

Coroner Blames Railroad and Two Crews for Crash of Trains Sept. 5 at Binghamton, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Coroner Frank J. Hitchcock yesterday placed the responsibility of the Erie Railroad's wreck here, Sept. 5, jointly on the railroad company and the crews of the Atlantic Express and the milk train. The milk train crashed into the rear coaches of the passenger train and 14 persons were killed.

He blamed the railroad primarily for using a "destructible" wooden coach. The train crews were held in error in failure to observe the proper caution. The yardmaster also was held responsible for not warning the milk train that switching operations were being conducted ahead.

The wreck, declared Coroner Hitchcock, was "caused by a combination of errors on the part of the operators and actors who were responsible for the operation of the three trains and the switching engine involved."

Denies Rail Officers' Charge.

Hitchcock denied that Engineer M. H. King, who was at the throttle of the milk train, was fully responsible for the crash as railroad officers had previously charged. He said, however, that King was at fault "in running a little too fast and not having his train under proper control."

"In general," he stated, "the cause of the wreck was the lack of appreciation on the part of the members of the different crews and actors to fully comprehend their responsibility and the inattentiveness of the members of the crews operating trains No. 90 (a freight train on a siding), No. 8, (the passenger train), and No. Third-2 (the milk train) to observe the operating rules of the road and the neglect to exercise that degree of care and caution which existing conditions would dictate and relying for safety upon the assumption that some person other than themselves would exercise greater prudence."

Accusation Against Road.

The railroad company was blamed for allowing switching operations such as were being carried on when the Atlantic Express was stopped, and for compelling the engineer of the milk train to enter the block when the signals indicated danger.

The engineer of the passenger train was in error, Coroner Hitchcock said, in not whistling his flagman out sooner and the flagman was criticised for waiting for the engineer's signal before going back to protect the rear of his train. The fireman of the milk train was blamed for not warning Engineer King that he was going too fast.

"In my opinion," the Coroner said, "if all these functions had been 100 per cent perfect the accident would never have happened."

The Coroner's report will be submitted to the Grand Jury which meets Oct. 16 and the Grand Jury will determine whether criminal charges shall be made against members of the crews.

TWO EX-CONVICTS SENTENCED TO 12 YEARS FOR HOLDUPS

James Ealey and Elmo E. Dennis, Accused Under Henry Law, Plead Guilty.

James Ealey and Elmo E. Dennis, former convicts, were sentenced to 12 years in prison by Circuit Judge Bader yesterday, when they pleaded guilty of robbery.

They were charged, under the Henry law and as habitual criminals, with robbing Joseph J. Grote, a grocer at 3900 Wyoming street, of $15 last Aug. 11 and taking $15 from Charles Carven and $270 from William Morohn next day in a hold-up of Carven's confectionery at 3154 Osceola street.

Ealey said he resided at 3122 Pennsylvania street, and Dennis gave his address as 3645 Blaine avenue.

HORSES DYING OF MALADY LIKE SLEEPING SICKNESS

Outbreak in Utah and Western Kansas; Authorities Fear It Will Spread.

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Sept. 30.—An outbreak of a disease among horses similar to sleeping sickness among human beings has been reported in Utah and Western Kansas.

Dr. W. J. Butler, state veterinarian of Montana, announced at Helena an epidemic of brain fever among horses in Utah had caused 1000 or more deaths and said the possibility of its spread into Montana was causing grave concern.

Dean R. R. Dykstra of the division of veterinary medicine at Kansas State College said veterinarians knew the disease as equine encephalomyelitis and that it was thought to be identical to the Kansas "horse plague" of 1912. He suggested that attendants use care in treating the animals.

SAYS U. S. POWER PROJECTS WILL BOOST PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Kansas City Engineer Declares Cheap Energy Will Be Made Available to Municipalities.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Public ownership of utilities will be strongly stimulated, the Public Ownership Conference was told yesterday, by governmental power projects in the making. With cheap energy available from such huge plants as those contemplated in the Tennessee Valley and on the St. Lawrence, speakers told the conference, many additions can be expected to the more than 2000 American towns and cities now in the electricity business.

"To have Uncle Sam on the people's side is gratifying and reassuring," said R. E. McDonnell, Kansas City engineer. Although more than half the power plants of the country are publicly owned, smaller towns and cities make up most of the list, McDonnell said. St. Paul, Cincinnati and Atlanta, he said, are considering public ownership.

A second strong boost to municipal ownership, said McDonnell, comes from the public works program of the Federal Government. Hundreds of cities, he said, have applied for loans with which to build or take over light and power equipment.

The Government projects, Rush D. Holt, chairman of West Virginia's utility investigation committee, said, will set an example of fair rates which will have a big effect on the price of power.

FORMER STATE AUDITOR ASSAILS SUIT FOR $30,000

Thompson Says School Funds Were Paid Out in Manner Approved by Attorney General.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 30.—L. D. Thompson, former State auditor, in a statement last night assailed the grounds of a suit brought in the Cole County Circuit Court by Attorney General Roy McKittrick to recover about $30,000 allegedly paid for purposes not included in appropriations by the Legislature.

The suit alleges that Thompson, as State Auditor, permitted Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Schools, to expend the $30,000 for printing and supplies in violation of he law that appropriated the money to the teachers' training fund for state aid high schools offering teachers' training courses.

The American Surety Co. of New York, which furnished a $50,000 bond for Thompson, is also a defendant in the suit.

The suit alleges that the money was paid illegally to the Botz Printing Co.

Thompson said: "Whatever sums of money were expended by Mr. Lee for printing in connection with the teachers' training schools, were paid on the authority of an opinion of the Attorney General of the State of Missouri."

SPECIAL SESSION TO HELP NEW YORK CITY'S FINANCES

Gov. Lehman Announces He Will Convene Legislature Within Few Days.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman announced from his sick bed last night that he would call a special session of the Legislature within a few days to adopt legislation permitting application of a plan for rehabilitating the finances of New York City.

The Governor said he had received assurances from the city administration, banks and leaders of the Legislature that they agree to the plan as formulated in the series of conferences in which Gov. Lehman took part.

Meanwhile Samuel Untermyer, economic adviser of the administration, called on the municipal Government for drastic economies.

Gov. Lehman is under doctor's orders of strict rest and quiet for several days following a sudden attack of appendicitis Thursday night.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Sept. 30.—Former President Plutarco Elias Calles re-entered active political life yesterday for the second time since he left the presidency in 1928, accepting appointment as Minister of Finance, succeeding Alberto J. Pani, who resigned Thursday night.

Marte R. Gomez, minisetr of agriculture in 1929 and 1930 and a member of the Mexican Delegation to the World Economic Conference, was named assistant to Calles.

PUERTO RICAN STUDENTS TRY TO SEND PROTEST TO PRESIDENT

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 30.—Students yesterday attempted to carry to President Roosevelt a protest Gov. Robert H. Gore refused to receive against his appointment of a Socialist, Rafael Alonzo Torres, as university trustee.

A student council drafted the message to the President through the Bureau of Insular Affairs, asserting that the Governor's action had created a serious situation, with students threatening a general strike.

ESCAPING DEATH FOR BITING, DOG IS KILLED FOR BARKING

Sandy, Whose Owner Defied Pittsburg Courts to Save Animal, Shot by Policeman.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 30.—Sandy, a dog that escaped a death sentence because its owner defied the courts, was killed yesterday by a policeman.

Sandy, a brown and white shepherd, bit a 12-year-old boy six months ago and a Justice of the Peace ordered Frank Sechan, the owner, to kill the animal. Sechan refused. The case went to the county courts. Again Sechan was ordered to execute the dog and again he refused. He was sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court, but was released pending an appeal.

Yesterday frightened school children called a policeman when Sandy frightened them by barking and the policeman shot the dog.

CHECK ON SPECULATION IN STOCKS PLANNED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—A special advisory committee is being planned by the Roosevelt administration to work out legislation by which it hopes to check violent price fluctuations on the New York Stock Exchange.

Plans for establishing the committee were formulated yesterday by Roosevelt aids in several Federal agencies. They said congressional action would be necessary.

Control of the exchange was said by several administration key men to be necessary to prevent speculative excesses that shattered public confidence.

Under the tentative proposals, the committee would study stock market practices, and its membership would work out a bill for presentation to the next Congress.

Several administration men said the aim of regulation would be to prevent wild fluctuations and to guard against market rigging and pool trading.

SOVIET THREATENS TO PUBLISH EVIDENCE AGAINST JAPANESE

Says It Has Documents Showing Plot to Seize Chinese Eastern Railway.

MOSCOW, Sept. 30.—The Foreign office last night circulated a diplomatic declaration conveying a threat to publish documents the Government claims to have showing the responsible Japanese leaders of the Manchurian administration were fostering a plot for the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The declaration was made by Soviet Ambassador Urenieff to Foreign Minister Hirota in Tokio this week.

The memorandum declared the arrests Sept. 24 of several Soviet officers of the railroad were made as the result of a plan hatched by the Japanese Military mission at Harbin to drive out the Soviet administrators.

Striking Grape Pickers Arrested.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—It was hot and sultry and threatening to rain when the Browns went into action this afternoon against the White Sox. This was the first of a series of two games that will end the season.

It was ladies' day, also father and son day at Comiskey Park and host of school kids were on hand making a total of about 10,000 fans. It was estimated that about 1000 of them, mostly fathers, had paid to get in.

For the Browns Irving Hadley was on the mound and Sad Sam Jones started for the White Sox. Sam expected to pitch only three or four innings, to prime himself for the city series next week against the Cubs.

Manager Hornsby of the Browns announced that he will leave here tomorrow night for New York to be present in the interest of the Browns at the drafting session. He not only expects to land a prize in the draft, but will open negotiations with rival clubs for a lot of trading this winter.

The game:

FIRST INNING—BROWNS — Scharein flied to Stoneham. Hayes threw out West. Reynolds popped to Kress.

WHITE SOX—Swanson flied to Campbell. Appling flied to West. Kress popped to Melillo.

WHITE SOX—Melillo threw out Hayes. Levey threw out Berry. Jones flied deep to West.

FOURTH—BROWNS — Durham went in to pitch for the White Sox. Reynolds flied to Swanson. So did Campbell. Hayes threw out Melillo.

WHITE SOX — Stoneham was safe on Levey's low throw. Haas fouled to Scharein. Dykes popped to Scharein, Swanson popped to Melillo.

WHITE SOX—Levey threw out Appling. Kress singled past Levey. Hayes singled to right, sending Kress to third. Berry walked, filling the bases. Durham struck out. Boseck singled to third, Kress scoring. Haas was safe at first when his roller went through Melillo, Hayes and Berry scoring and Boseck going to third. Rhyne popped to Melillo. THREE RUNS.

WHITE SOX—Levey threw out Swanson. Reynolds made a great running one-hand catch of Appling's fly. Kress popped to Levey.

EQUIPOISE AGAIN BEATEN; WINNER IS OSCULATOR

HAVRE DE GRACE, MD., Sept. 30.—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise wound up his racing career here today by finishing second to W. R. Coe's Osculator in the renewal of the $10,000 Havre De Grace Cup Handicap. A. C. Bostwick's Mate finished third.

In seeking victory at Havre De Grace, Equipoise's owners had sought a victory which would make him second largest American money winner.

The five-year-old son of Pennant is to be sent to Kentucky where he will begin his career in the stud.

The highly-favored Wheatley Stable's Dark Secret, which trounced Equipoise in the Belmont Gold Cup, finished out of the money.

FAIRMOUNT TRACK, Sept. 30.—Mrs. F. Swain's Just Buck, with Willie Boganowski in the saddle, won in the five and a half furlong fourth race here this afternoon before 10,000 spectators—after taking the lead away from the favored Pass Order after turning into the home stretch.

Pass Order was second by a half length at the wire and Draha was four lengths farther back in third place. The winner was timed in 1:08 4-5 and paid $17.08 for $2.

Lavender Lady, four-year-old daughter of Master Charlie, carried the racing colors of E. Pease to victory in the second race scoring over 11 other platers at a distance of six furlongs. With Doublin Taylor up, Lavender Lady broke on top in the large field, and except for a brief time in the back stretch, when Helen Green forged to the front held sway the entire time.

Miss Chilla was second at the wire by four lengths with Helen Green third. The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:15 2-5 and overlooked by most of the bettors, paid $19.88 for $2.

Wild West Pays $20.64.

Wild West, another outsider, scored his second consecutive victory when he led home 11 other platers in the six-furlong third race. Whizzing D. took an early lead, but before the field reached the far turn Wild West, never far back, pulled ahead and then maintained his advantage to the finish. Winged Wind, the favorite, was second by three-quarters of a length, and Jessie Coppage was third. Wild West paid $20.64 and was clocked in 1:16.

With Lavender Lady and Wild West as the winning combination, the "daily double" paid $172.76.

There were 5174 tickets sold in the special pool and 56 were winners, it was announced.

F. L. Everitt's Betty Shinn was an easy winner in the one mile first race, in which 10 three-year-olds and upward competed. With Jockey Joe Jacobs up, Betty Shinn took the lead rounding the clubhouse turn and stayed in front thereafter, crossing the wire a winner by five lengths. Cloido, an outsider, was second, and the favorite, Centennial, was a length and a half farther back for third. The winner was timed in 1:43 4-5 over the "good" track and paid $11.44.

Conzelman's 'New Deal' Bears to Open Season; M'Kendree Is Opponent

With alumni, undergraduates and player enthusiasm higher than for many years, Head Coach Jimmy Conzelman's "New Deal" Washington University Bears tonight will open their season with the McKendree College team from Lebanon, Ill., "in the other corner." The game, to be played at Francis Field, will start at 8 p. m.

Tonight will see more than just an opening football game. It will be the first real test of the first real football system Washington U. has had for a decade. The whole university is sport-conscious and old grads who, bowed by years of watching Washington teams defeated on the gridiron, had given up the sport, will be out in full force with reinforced enthusiasm and hope. One record already has been broken. The season ticket record previously was some 56; right now, with only partial returns in, over 1300 have been sold.

Prospects Excellent.

And, unless all signs fail, the Washington team will be worthy of the enthusiasm and hope it has aroused. It is not tremendously heavy—but heavy enough; it hasn't any Charley Paddocks in the backfield—but it is fast enough. It hasn't the greatest reserve in the world—but it has reserve enough with the spirit the reservists have shown. It is a well-coached team; there will be no debacles this season, no matter how many defeats.

There will be some defeats, of course. It would be too much to ask any team still in the formative throes to go undefeated through a schedule which includes such teams as Illinois, Chicago, Missouri, Creighton and St. Louis U. But defeat will come only after the hardest kind of battling and, after all, that is what intercollegiate football is supposed to teach—the spirit of battle, of never-quit and of "taking arms against a sea of troubles and, by opposing, end them."

Nor have the Bears picked an easy enemy with whom to open the season. A year ago, McKendree came to Francis Field and left with the victorious end of a 13-6 decision. The present-day Bears are not claiming much, perhaps, but they are claiming that the defeat will be avenged tonight.

So far as weight goes, there is little to choose between tonight's opponents.

In total poundage of the starting teams, there is a difference of just six pounds distributed among the 11 men. The Bears are that much heavier, but the line averages show McKendree, 187; Washington, 181, with the backfields, McKendree, 160 pounds; Washington, 171. The total team averages are: McKendree, 177.2 pounds, and Washington, 177.7 pounds.

Especial attention will be paid

DIZZY GETS 202D STRIKEOUT; FANS TWO WITH BASES FILLED

By J. Roy Stockton

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, Sept. 30.—The Cardinals met defeat at the hands of the Chicago Cubs this afternoon in the first game of a series of two. The Cubs' victory assured them third place with the National League season closing tomorrow.

The score was 12 to 2.

The game:

FIRST INNING—CUBS—English singled to center. W. Herman forced English, Martin to Durocher. Cuyler struck out. F. Herman tripled against the right field screen scoring W. Herman. Stephenson singled too hot for Durocher, F. Herman scoring. Grimm was called out on strikes. TWO RUNS.

CARDINALS—Martin doubled to center. Watkins grounded to Grimm, Bush covering first; Martin moving to third. Frisch bounced a single over Grimm's head, scoring Martin. Frisch went to second on a wild pitch. Medwick struck out. Collins singled to center, scoring Frisch with the tying run and took second on the throw to the plate. Moore struck out. TWO RUNS.

SECOND—CUBS—Martin threw out Hartnett. Jurges singled to left, Bush hit to Durocher and both runners were safe when Jurges beat the throw to second. English forced Bush, Martin to Frisch. W. Herman flied to Moore.

CARDINALS—Jurges threw out Durocher. O'Farrell grounded to W. Herman. Dean was safe when F. Herman dropped his fly. Martin forced Dean, English to W. Herman.

THIRD—CUBS—Cuyler beat out a grounder to Martin. F. Herman fouled to Medmick, Cuyler moving to second. Stephenson fleid to Watkins, Cuyler moving to third. Grimm flied to Medwick.

CARDINALS—Watkins fouled to Hartnett. English threw out Frisch. Medwick was called out on strikes.

FOURTH—CUBS—Hartnett was called out on strikes. It was Dean's two hundredth strikeout victim of the season. Martin threw out Jurges. Bush singled to center. English forced Bush, Martin to Frisch.

CARDINALS—Collins flied to Stephenson. Moore struck out. Durocher flied to Cuyler.

FIFTH—CUBS—W. Herman was credited with a double when Watkins misjudged and then dropped his wind-blown fly. Cuyler walked. F. Herman lined to Moore. Stephenson hit to Durocher and all hands were safe and the bases filled when Frisch dropped the throw at second. Grimm was called out on strikes. Dean pitched three balls to Hartnett and then struck him out on the next three.

CARDINALS—O'Farrell walked. Dean bunted, but forced O'Farrell, Bush to Jurges. Martin was called out on strikes. Watkins forced Dean, Grimm to Jurges.

SEVENTH—CUBS—Vance went in to pitch for the Cardinals. Frisch threw out Grimm. Hartnett lined to Frisch. Jurges fouled to Martin.

CARDINALS—Moore singled to

ROOSEVELT AND EAST ST. LOUIS TIED AFTER HALF

	1Q	2Q	3Q	4Q	T

E. St. Louis	6	0

PUBLIC SCHOOLS STADIUM, Sept. 30.—Roosevelt and East St. Louis high schools' football teams were tied, 6-6, at the end of the first half of their game here this afternoon, played before about 500 persons.

The visitors scored on the first play after the kickoff. Wilton passed about 12 yards to W. Jeffries, who got the ball at about midfield and ran for a touchdown.

Thereafter play was pretty much in East St. Louis territory and a Rough Rider drive in the second period, in which the team drove advanced about 60 yards, ended in a touchdown on a one-foot plunge by Marlowe Jovaag, after a fumble by Schoenberg at that distance made necessary the second try.

By James M. Gould.

Greater manpower, rather than football finesse, enabled the St. Louis University Billikens to win the opening game of their 1933 football season from James Millikin U. of Decatur, Ill., last night. The score of the game, played at Walsh Memorial Stadium before 7000 persons, was 32 to 0.

Call it "attrition" or "erosion" or what you like, it is a fact that the small, well-coached and thoroughly game Illinois eleven held the Billikens scoreless in the first period and permitted only single touchdowns in the second and third. Then, worn out by their much heavier opponents, their own gallant efforts and a small army of Billiken reserves, the Millikin team "fell apart" in the final period and the Billikens added three touchdowns.

In ushering in the season, the Billikens started their ushering very politely. Then, apprised between the halves that the game was not "drop the handkerchief" but football, they became less polite and looked much more like a football team. The statistics show how, on offense, the Billikens were the better. They made 22 first downs to Millikin's two, gained three times as much ground in all departments and, from scrimmage, gained 16 times as much.

And yet, the gameness and the never-quit qualities of their smaller opponents meant that the St. Louisans had to fight every minute and kept the spectacle an interesting one.

Rapp and Kane Stand Out.

Five players made the five St. Louis touchdowns, the scoring backs being Rapp, Arenz, Kane, Hurley and Wood. Of these, the most consistent performances were given by Rapp and Kane, the latter especially making several long runs because of his ability to keep his feet, ward off and knock off would-be tacklers.

There wasn't a Millikin player who today doesn't deserve the praise of his coach and his college. Their reserve was pitifully small but every man who got in the lineup—and just about the entire Millikin squad did see service—fought with a desperate courage worthy of a better result.

In the first quarter, started by a St. Louis kick-off and an immediate return-punt by Millikin, the Billikens were able to make five first downs which may have been ornamental but were useless in a scoring way.

The First Touchdown.

In this period, the only Millikin first down was made by a completed 28-yard forward pass, Russell to Giaritis. The second period opened with a Billiken burst of speed, only five plays being required to see the stage for a crash through the center of the line by Manuel Rapp for a touchdown. Rapp place-kicked the extra point.

It was in this quarter that the Millikin attack reached its high point. Blocking a St. Louis kick, Millikin plunged and, aided by a penalty, reached the Billikens' three-yard line only to be held, a final desperate pass going out of bounds.

The Billikens began to click after the intermisison but, despite eight first downs were able to score but once. That touchdown came after six first downs in succession and Arenz scored on a plunge through center. Rapp's try for point was blocked.

It was a romp for the Billikens in the final period. A flock of reserves was used and the three touchdowns were made by Kane on a great twisting run of 30 yards, by Hurley, who got away for a dash of 69 yards and by Wood, on a 12-yard run.

Summing up, the Billikens really showed something in the later stages of the game after a very sluggish start, marked by checking the signals and general apathy of attack. There is no reason to change the prediction that this team will be one of the best the university ever has had but they will have to be smarter, more alert and more "alive" if they hope to win from Kansas State next week,

When as a stop-gap he is hired,
That substitute becomes inspired.

Joey Sewell didn't make the world series this year but Brother Luke will represent the family in the fall classic.

Southern California has so many good football players Coach Howard Jones doesn't know what to do with them. Embarrassing, we calls it. Why not send some of them to Iowa?

Too True.

NOW comes the goofey time of year
When baseball interest rages,
And football players' mugs appear
On all the sporting pages.
When base and football overlap
The horsehide has to take the rap.

Man may be fearfully and wonderfully made, but compared to a baseball schedule he is the perfection of simplicity.

BEARS OPEN SEASON AGAINST McKENDREE

tonight to the work of the Washington sophomores, for, with six of them in action, they may be regarded as the backbone of the new edition of Bear football. Conzelman's entire backfield were freshment last year, but the individual members—Zboyovski at quarter, Wolf and Drake at the halves and Hafeli at fullback—can play football and will prove it tonight. On the line, Ray Hobbs, a really great end, and Ciarniello, a clever tackle, also are sophomores. The veteran leaven is supplied by Niehaus, at center, Heitmeyer and Erspamer at guards, Captain Clark and Joe Walka at the other end.

Bears on Offense.

It would only be natural if Washington, tonight, tried to run up a score. Not only because of the desire to avenge the 1932 defeat by McKendree, but also because it is the first shuffle of the "New Deal" will the players be imbued with more than an ordinary desire to win. Followers of Washington have been told that the team packs a punch, and they will want to see that punch on display; they have been told that the Bears' defense is capable and they will want to see that defense stop McKendree from crossing the Washington line.

McKendree is said to have a real offense, even more varied than that which was good enough to win over the Bears last year. The Lebanon system—the team is under a new coach—has not yet been really tested, but Coach Conzelman and his Bears want the Lebanon collegians to know that it will be tonight.

Real Home Town Production.

University City Beats Ritenour, 18-0; Soldan Trims McBride, 13-6

University City started its defense of its county league title yesterday afternoon on its field by defeating Ritenour, 18-0, in the first league game of the year. In a non-league game, Maplewood took advantage of a let-down in the St. Charles eleven to run up a 39-0 score.

University City played poorly in the first quarter, its attack not functioning and its linemen not charging. Also three successive offside penalties were charged against University City's Indians in the first three plays. The second quarter showed no improvement for some time, when, after a few changes, principally the insertion of Leo Shakofsky in the backfield, the Indians "clicked" on two plays. Dick Yore went around left end for 30 yards, and then Leo Shakofsky repeated on the next play, going around right end for a touchdown, Lilburn Ochs missing the first of three place kicks that he missed during the day.

The Indians scored again before the second quarter ended on two passes from Yore to Seibert and Boain, the latter scoring.

Bert Boaz added the third score in the third quarter on a 19-yard end run.

Although the Indians scored a decisive victory, the play of the team as a whole was a disappointment.

The spark plug of the Indians' attack was Dick Yore. Defensively, the play of Dick McConnell at center was the feature of the game.

In the Maplewood game, long passes and runs were responsible for most of Maplewood's scores. Russell Layer made a 65-yard run and a touchdown and also another touchdown on a short plunge. Ralph Raleigh recorded a 50-yard run in another of the long sprints made by Maplewood's team.

Elliott and Gilpin Star in McKinley's Victory.

Displaying at intervals some good blocking and passing in a fairly well varied attack, McKinley's football team, of the Public High School League, scored a 6—0 victory over Wellston's County League eleven yesterday afternoon in a practice game on the suburban gridiron.

McKinley's touchdown in the second period was brought by the efforts of Bill Elliott and Esker Gilpin. About the middle of the quarter the city boys drove to within a yard of the Wellston goal, but Wellston held on the fourth down.

A short kick put McKinley on the 35-yard line. Then, with Elliott doing most of the ball carrying, they went to the nine-yard line, from where Gilpin went over. Elliott's kick for the extra point was short.

McKinley had four first downs to Wellston's five.

Edwardsville, Collinsville Win East Side Games.

Coach Steve Cole's Edwardsville High School eleven won its second game of the year last night, defeating Mount Olive, 25 to 0, at Edwardsville. The victors outplayed the visiting eleven throughout.

Edwardsville registered a touchdown in the second period on a plunge by Hydron. The try for the extra point was successful on another plunge by Hydron. In the third quarter, Yates went through the Mount Olive line for another touchdown, while the extra point try was unsuccessful. Hydron again scored in the final period, while a pases, Dees to Engels, netted the final touchdown .

Edwardsville entertains Beaumont next Friday night.

Collinsville High School's football team defeated Staunton (Ill.) last night on the latter's field, 6 to 0. Collinsville scored its touchdown in the final period after a blocked punt. It was Collinsville's second victory of the year.

Bagwell's Long Runs Give Soldan Victory.

Coming from behind in the second half, Soldan High School's eleven defeated the strong McBride squad of the Prep League, 13-6, at Public Schools Stadium, yesterday.

In the second quarter, McBride marched down the field from its own 35-yard line to a touchdown. The team made five first downs in its march. Genova and O'Connor did most of the ball carrying. Ed Drone plunged over from the five-yard line to give his team the touchdown. The try for extra point failed.

Soldan didn't seem to click at all during the first half. However, the third quarter of the game ushered in a little different team. To start, Horman recovered a fumble on the McBride 47-yard line. Then, on the first play, Bagwell shot around right end, raced 53 yards for a touchdown. He place kicked for the extra point. Shortly afterwards, similar conditions arose. The ball was on Soldan's 45-yard line. The same successful play was called and Bagwell scored again on a 55-yard run. This time he failed to get the extra point.

The lineup and summary:

KID CHOCOLATE WINS ON KAYO; FAN HURLS A CHAIR INTO RING

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Kid Chocolate, world's featherweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Nick Bensa in the final round of a 10-round match last night that almost precipitated a riot.

Referee Rene Schemann stopped the fight after Bensa had been floored for a nine count and the judges concurred in Schemann's decision. The crowd thought differently, however, and in the midst of the roar of protest miscellaneous missiles deluged the ring.

Someone heaved a chair into the ring. The timekeeper was hit but not badly hurt. Police reinforcements were required to quiet the crowd.

Bensa was wilting badly under Chocolate's punches when the referee intervened. Each weighed 125 pounds.

By Babe Ruth.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A comparison of the infields of the two world series contenders shows the American League champions to better advantage. But the difference is to be found chiefly in the extra power, or consistency, which the Senators show at the plate, rather than in the field. From a defensive standpoint, all the players of the two teams answer the requirements or they would not be finishing the season as members of championship teams.

RUTH

If I were to pick an infield from the group who are eligible to take part in the series, it would consist of three Senators and one Giant. Terry would be my choice for first base with the remainder of the quartet made up of Myer, Cronin and Bluege.

Kuhel is a better ball player than National League followers realize. He is now finishing his first complete season as a regular, having displace Joe Judge during the 1932 campaign. He has come along fast and is an improved hitter. He always was a high class fielder. But he lacks Terry's experience so the New Yorker gets the call.

Rates Myer Ahead of Critz.

I have not seen much of Critz but I know from what I have heard that he is a marvelous defensive player. He holds his place day after day in spite of a batting average below .250, so he must be brilliant in the field. I would rate Critz above Myer defensively, but Buddy is so much better with the stick that he must be classed as a stronger, allround player.

From all accounts, the shortstopping of the Giants is all that it should be. "Blondy" Ryan has meant a lot more to the National League champions than one might suspect in looking at his batting mark down around .225. Defensively there is no marked choice between Ryan and Cronin, but again that power at the plate steps up to settle the argument. Cronin is one of the great allround players of the year, and Ryan one of the great infielders. Each is a spark plug for his team. Blondy Ryan may have a big series, Joe may fail to hit. But as they stand on season's work, Cronin is a much more valuable ball player.

Jackson at Disadvantage.

At third base, the Giants present an uncertainty, and the Senators have the best defensive third baseman in the American League. With Johnny Vergez on the job, I would call this position a toss-up, each being a high class infielder and not far apart in hitting. But Travis Jackson, one of the great infielders of recent years, is handicapped doubly. One is the physical side, a weakness of the knees may strike him at an inopportune time. The other is that he is thrown into a position at which he is not entirely familiar, and in a series where so much may depend on one play. Dressen, if he is permitted to play, is neither a Jackson at bat nor a Vergez in the field.

I rate Washington as stronger in infielders. At the same time I think the Giants' infield, defensively, is stronger than most of the world series infields of recent years.

TEMPLE ELEVEN WINS FIRST CONTEST UNDER COACHING OF WARNER

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30. — A well-balanced Temple University football team, making its first start under Glenn (Pop) Warner's regime, hammered South Carolina for four touchdowns and a 26 to 6 triumph in Temple Stadium last night.

CAMILLI NEARLY MADE BONER IN FIRST GAME

CHICAGO.—His first game in the National League provided Adolph Camilli, new Cub first baseman from the coast, with an assist on what could have been a bad "boner."

'Dolph captured an easy pop foul for the second out with Don Hurst of the Phillies on second and, thinking it was three out, nonchalantly rolled the ball toward the pitching mound.

Giant Outfielders Have Edge In Fielding, Senator Stars In Batting, McGraw Declares

By John J. McGraw.
Vice-President, New York Giants.

NE WYORK, Sept. 30.—Coming to the outfielders of the Giants and Senators we again find that marked difference which is to be noted in the world series contenders most any way you look at them. The Giants are stronger on the defense but the Senators have the edge in hitting and power.

Which of these advantages will prove the more important is the big question. The answer depends largely on the character of the games.

If the pitching doesn't come up to the standard and the series becomes more of a battle of hitters the advantage obviously will go to the heavier clouting Senators. But if airtight games are played where a run or two may mean all the difference between victory and defeat, the better defensive play of the Giants may develop into the deciding factor.

McGRAW

In such a case a line drive to the outfield played properly or improperly may make all the difference in the world.

However, I think I can show that even in hitting the Senators' advantage may not be quite as pronounced as the batting averages of the rival players indicate. As I mentioned before the livelier ball in the American League must be taken into account.

Senators Hold Advantage.

Still, ball or no ball, the Senators have an edge. Manush, hitting .332, has been up among the leaders in the American League all season. Schulte has been an even .300 hitter, Goslin's mark is .298, and the reserves, Rice and Harris, have marks of .291 and .278, respectively.

The Giants haven't a .300 hitter in the outfield. Moore is on top with .296. Ott has .284 and Davis .261. These, as I understand it, will be Terry's starting outfielders. The alternates, O'Doul and Peel, show averages of .282 and .241.

Incidentally, it will be noted that while O'Doul has a much better mark than Davis, Terry has been inclined to make even this sacrifice in his hitting strength in order to make his defense as airtight as possible.

Despite the marked difference in the averages I still contend that the Senators' edge in hitting is not so pronounced as it appears to be. Manush is a splendid and dangerous hitter but despite his nearly 50-point advantage he has not proved himself the equal of Ott in driving in runs. Ott is one of the National League's leaders in runs batted in this season.

Ott Has a Great Record.

I think the records will show that Ott drove in more runs than Manush, which stands out even more remarkable when it is considered that the Senators during the season scored and drove in more than 200 runs more than the Giants.

Moore is a greatly improved hitter and should prove himself on a par with either Schulte or Goslin, though perhaps not so long a hitter. Davis, though, is below either of the two Senators in hitting strength.

Then there is O'Doul who must not be overlooked. If he gets a chance to start or appears as a pinchhitter he is certain to be dangerous especially in the games in Washington where the livelier American League ball will be used.

Defensively I should say the Giants have a marked advantage. Moore has done some brilliant fielding for the Giants this year and Davis, too, is a very fine and reliable fielder. Both have the edge over Manush and Schulte. And Ott has it all over Goslin. Especially will this advantage show at the Polo Grounds where Ott has the playing of drives off that right field wall down to a science. I am afraid the Goose will not look so well if any hits start bouncing off that wall.

And so, as I look for the pitching, to more or less dominate the series, I believe that in all-around performance the Giant outfield will show itself to be of more value than the Senators' picket men.

ST. LOUIS GOLF TEAM IN CHICAGO FOR 5TH ANNUAL TWO-DAY MATCH

By W. J. McGoogan.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Eleven of the leading amateur golfers of the St. Louis district were here today for their annual match with the Chicago players today and tomorrow.

An 18-hole round was scheduled today to be played over the course of the Ridgemoor Country Club and 36 holes tomorrow. All play will be scored by the Nassau system, that is a point for the winner of each nine holes, one for the winner of each 18 and a half point awarded for ties.

Today's matches will be individual, while tomorrow the teams will play best ball matches in pairs.

Included in the St. Louis lineup were Bob Cochran, youthful district champion; Chester O'Brien, Missouri amateur titleholder; Lester Slattery, runnerup to Cochran in the district tournament this year; Sidney Salomon, Westwood, runnerup to O'Brien in the State; Mike Roach, Westborough, Jimmy Manion, veteran Normandie star, Freddie Evans, Norwood Hills; Dick Bockenkamp, Algonquin, former St. Louis District and State champion; Earl Whatley, Joe Switzer and Chauncey Irwin.

Art Sweet will captain the Chicagoans. Jack Westland, George Dawson, Chick Evans, Don Armstrong, Johnny Lehman, and Dick Martin were some of the better known golfers on Sweet's squad.

Of the last four inter-city matches each city has won twice. In the last match, held at Meadow Brook Country Club, the St. Louisans won.

CROONING HALFBACK RETAINS POSITION ON DUKE FOOTBALL TEAM

DURHAM, N. C.—Nick Laney, Duke's crooning halfback, is going to be hard to dislodge from his berth on the varsity team.

In fact, coaches are virtually sure the boy who croons with the college dining room orchestra, is to be a fixture, since he has been a star of the backfield the past two years and is running hard and trying harder than he ever has before.

PHYSICIAN GIVES OWN BLOOD THEN DIRECTS AN OPERATION

How Doctor Tried to Save Life of Baseball Player's Wife Is Disclosed.

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 30.—The disclosure that Dr. William Mills, Oakland physician, opened an artery in his left arm with his own scalpel, gave an emergency blood transfusion to Mrs. Johnny Vergez, wife of the third baseman of the New York Giants, and then directed an operation to save his patient's life was made here yesterday.

Dr. Mills declined to talk about the matter, but it was learned that he carried out the undertaking in a few minutes after deciding a transfusion from regularly listed donors of blood could not be performed in time. The operation took place last Sunday.

Assisted by a nurse and a consulting physician, Dr. Mills made the transfusion, sealed the opening in his arm and superintended a Caesarian operation as soon as Mrs. Vergez responded to the emergency treatment. A daughter born as the result of the operation died but Mrs. Vergez is expected to recover.

27 BUILDING INSPECTORS PASS SECOND EXAMINATION

Eight in Temporary Jobs Fail; Hay to Report on Identical Answers in Previous Quiz.

Names of 27 men who made passing grades in a second examination for city building inspectors, following the rejection of the original examinataion, have been posted by the Efficiency Board. Arthur T. Cochrane, who has been serving temporarily as chief inspector, and four temporary inspectors are among the 27 on the eligible list for permanent appointment. Eight other temporary inspectors failed to make passing grades.

In the first test, 16 of the applicants submitted correct and virtually identical answers. Among these were eight of the temporary inspectors, officials said. The papers were not graded, but were turned over to City Counselor Hay for an inquiry. The same 80 men took both examinations, new questions being given the second time.

Hay is preparing a report on the matter which he expects to hand to Mayor Dickmann Monday. The Mayor intends to make the report public or make a statement about it. Belief at City Hall is that the report may place the blame for a leak of the original questions.

ONE TO 20 YEARS IN PRISON FOR ROBBING OLD SCHOOLMATE

Found guilty of robbing an old schoolmate, William Schmitz, 32 years old, former Belleville Postoffice clerk, was sentenced to one to 20 years in prison yesterday in Circuit Judge Riess' Court at Belleville.

Arthur Nold, Belleville factory superintendent, robbed of $2 by two men last March 3, said he recognized Schmitz by his voice when Schmitz telephoned him to ask for a job three weeks after the robbery. He said the robber held a handkerchief over the lower part of his face, but the handkerchief, which he identified in court, bore a distinctive colored border.

Nolb was unable to identify Elmer Funk of Belleville and charges against Funk were dismissed. Charges against Schmitz, covering other robberies of trivial amounts, were removed from the docket with permission to reinstate.

BOND FIRM OFFICIALS FOUND GUILTY OF MISUSE OF MAILS

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—Wilbur and Frank Mansfield, brothers, were found guilty by a Federal Court jury here yesterday of using the mails to defraud in connection with the selling of securities by the Universal Bond and Mortgage Co., of which they were officials.

Allen Mansfield Jr. and Guy Mansfield, brothers of the convicted men, and Julius R. Waldstein were acquitted of the same charges.

The two brothers were convicted on all 19 counts. Sentence will be fixed by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves, probably early next week. The penalty provided by law is a fine of not to exceed $1000 on each count or a penitentiary sentence of not more than five years, or any part of either or both.

BRICKS HURLED AT LUNCHROOMS

Windows were smashed in lunchrooms at 321 South Broadway and 502 Market street early today. Bricks were hurled through the windows by men who fled in an automobile.

The Broadway restaurant is operated by Jack George. Manuel Goffstein operates the Market street place. Both proprietors told police they are at a loss to account for the attacks.

Overcome by Gas From Auto.

Warren M. McDonald, 35 years old, 5944 Bartmer avenue, was overcome by carbon monoxide gas while working on his automobile in a garage in the rear of 5938 Bartmer avenue yesterday afternoon. He was found by his brother-in-law, Elbert Stacy, who called firemen. An inhalator was used for 50 minutes before McDonald revived sufficiently to be taken to City Hospital.

Strikes, Hours, Pay.
Torture, Ancient Custom.
Watch Elbow and Thumb.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1933.)

THE Government's problem just now seems to be strikes, rather than hours and wages. In Pittsburgh, 3000 to 5000 miners, singing as they go, request Carnegie steel workers to join a "holiday movement" with 85,000 other steel and mine workers in three states.

Carlyle said: "Give me the man who sings at his work," but a crowd of 5000 that sings as it strikes puzzles those trying to re-establish American industry. A strike seems hardly a thing to sing about, at the moment.

Automobile workmen on strike in New Jersey demand better working conditions, five-day week, seven-hour day, minimum pay of five dollars for seven hours, to include all unskilled labor, with higher pay for skilled labor.

William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, believes Congress should include a five-day, 30-hour-week in the recovery code. Six hours a day for five days should allow reasonable leisure. Mr. Green tells the metals trades of the American Federation of Labor "recovery in employment is slow." It might be slower.

An important point is sometimes overlooked, namely, that in planning hours and wages, you must also plan for somebody to pay the wages.

Some in this country that will shudder at the thought of torturing helpless prisoners might be enlightened if they could look into some police stations and prison cells.

Torture, an old institution among human beings, still prevails in many places. It was once a matter of course everywhere. Well-meaning judges, when forbidden to torture witnesses, even though accused of no crimes, protested that justice could not survive the abolition of torture.

In Rome at one time certain persons could not be tortured. These included soldiers, children under 14 and expectant mothers, unless they were accused of treason or sorcery. When the French Revolution abolished torture, that was called a radical, dangerous, unwise and altogether reprehensible attack on justice.

Roman law that forbade the torture of expectant mothers, unless accused of treason or sorcery, also allowed such women to pick and eat fruit in any garden without interference or punishment. They may not do that now.

Old China forbade torture of children under 15 and adults past 70. Sawing the accused in two, lengthwise, has been an unpleasant, though popular, punishment in Asia.

Dr. Blake, teacher of dramatics at Columbia University, tells poker players: "Don't watch your adversary's face, look at his ELBOWS. If he holds them close, he is trying to control emotion and that means 'bluffing.'"

Another who knows more about poker than Dr. Blake could possibly know, Mr. M. L. of Chicago, who knows many things, says "When you play poker, watch the other man's THUMBS. It cost me money to learn how to keep my thumb from jerking nervously when I bluffed." In Hindoo courts, when barefoot natives testify, lawyers watch the witness' big toes. When they move involuntarily, the witness is lying. The face is always calm.

There is a third piece of advice, Better than the two given above, namely, DON'T GAMBLE.

Attorney-General Cummings suggests that something be done about the gang of sharks called "lawyers," making it their business to protect criminals whom they know to be criminals, dividing their earnings with them and some times planning crimes for criminals too stupid to do their own planning.

The National Government is looking for some lawyer, name unknown, "who plotted the Chicago Federal Reserve holdup and directed the Kansas City Union Station massacre." This "mystery lawyer" planner of crime, ought to be fined and made an example to discourage his thousands of brother lawyers in the same line.

Anybody helping a burglar to hide his loot would be put in jail. Why not put a lawyer in jail when it can be proved that he has tried to protect a criminal, knowing him to be guilty and to hoodwink justice?

Uncle Sam's representatives hope that taxes on liquor will bring into the Treasury $700,000,000 a year.

There is a third piece of advice, Better than the two given above, namely, DON'T GAMBLE.

Attorney-General Cummings suggests that something be done about the gang of sharks called "lawyers," making it their business to protect criminals whom they know to be criminals, dividing their earnings with them and some times planning crimes for criminals too stupid to do their own planning.

The National Government is looking for some lawyer, name unknown, "who plotted the Chicago Federal Reserve holdup and directed the Kansas City Union Station massacre." This "mystery lawyer" planner of crime, ought to be fined and made an example to discourage his thousands of brother lawyers in the same line.

Anybody helping a burglar to hide his loot would be put in jail. Why not put a lawyer in jail when it can be proved that he has tried to protect a criminal, knowing him to be guilty and to hoodwink justice?

Uncle Sam's representatives hope that taxes on liquor will bring into the Treasury $700,000,000 a year.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I'VE written you before, but you didn't answer my letter. But please, please answer this, for I'm in an awful fix and I can't see my way out.

I am only 15 years old and I don't actually date, but since last winter, I and a certain boy have walked to school, gone to parties together and sat together in shows. He's given me candy and little things, but now something's happened. Before I knew him I was friendly with another boy. He had a snapshot and an old ring of mine. I left this first boy completely alone, but he persists in tagging me. Now Mrs. Carr, I've been square to this second boy, though once I fooled around with the first and the second and I didn't speak for a month. But I've just found out that he has been going with a girl who is not all she should be (though it isn't her fault, because her mother is—well).

I won't stand for that. He can't come back and expect a welcome. I told him so, but I'm sorry, for I don't want him to think I am jealous and catty and lose his friendship. PATTY LEE K.

I daresay I overlooked your letter (purposely), since I have said to so many others of your age, and degree of foolishness, that a girl of 15 should be putting her mind on her education and on the development of character; and judging from your letter, you need both badly. Jealous and catty? I wonder how your mother would feel if she knew you were letting yourself down to the discussion of the morals of the girl and her mother in order to bolster up your claim! Your methods will have to be higher grade than that, if you expect the real admiration of a nice boy.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 18 years old and want to improve my English. Do you think if I take up English at night school it will improve any? The reason I ask this is that some of my friends who have gone to night school say that you do not learn anything more than in the grade schools.

Another thing, how can I find out what occupation I am best fitted for? I often ponder this question in my mind, but seem to come to no conclusion. L. B.

I should go to the night schools (I suppose you mean those connected with the high schools) and ask about the English course. If it is the same you have had in your regular high school course, it might not help you much. At the same time, a review of work of that kind is sometimes very helpful.

You certainly must have some likes and dislikes, among your studies and in the different kinds of work you do. What study were you best in? Don't you ever have a desire when you see others busy, to try to see if you can do the same things? You will have to take inventory, yourself, of your talents and likes, and decide for yourself; no one can do that for you.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM 21 years old and about to be married in a month to a divorced man. Now here is the argument: Everybody thinks I shouldn't marry a divorced man, and I don't know whether they are wrong or not. All my people are against it, because we cannot be married in church. This man was married in church the first time.

Now, Mrs. Carr, I think I should know what I want. I have been working ever since I was 14 and I've been around a good deal and met all types of men from all over; so I think I am a pretty good judge. Of course I think I love him enough to give up everything.

This man doesn't drink or smoke and has a steady position and I think will make a good husband. I am no angel and am getting at the age where I should settle down. And I don't judge people by their mistakes, because I have made plenty myself.

I'll be waiting for your advice, because this situation is driving me insane. PUZZLED REDHEAD.

I think your decision might safely rest upon just what grounds this man's divorce was granted. Your happiness would depend very much upon that. If he had some serious grounds and obtained the divorce for these reasons, then I think you need not hold the divorce against him. If he was cruel or dishonest, or violated all the ties of marriage, then you should not trust yourself too much to his "reform."

You could not be married in some churches, nor by the ministers of some denominations, but you will find ministers who will perform the ceremony; so that it can be a religious one, instead of merely a civil marriage.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE GREATEST OF THE ILLUSTRATORS

Gustave Dore, famous French engraver, painter, artist and sculptor, was born in 1833. His unequaled career as an illustrator began in 1854, when he started his great illustration work of the works of Rabelais. Between 1854 and his death in 1883 he produced more than 42,000 illustrations, according to a recent Russian compiler. This astounding output equals an average of four illustrations a day for 29 years. During that time he also produced some paintings of colossal dimensions, and distinguished himself in the field of sculpture.

AN ARCHITECTURAL FREAK.

The curious structure I illustrated was constructed out of a famous American brand of cement for the Industrial Exhibition, which took place in Koeslin, Germany, in 1912.

Rising into the air without any apparent support it seems to defy gravity. Its stairs, which lead nowhere, will actually support 40 people.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Sunday, Oct. 1.

THE beginning of what you can make the best month of the year so far; co-operate; see the other fellow's point of view. Use today for improving social and business relations with superiors. In afternoon and late P. M. plan ahead.

Saturn.

The planet Saturn is the marker of our Responsibility; it is the Taskmaster, the Timekeeper, the Reaper that lines us up and checks us for our shortcomings, if any, in the way we are living. Perhaps that is why we come to dislike our friend, Saturn. Nature's laws punish in the same way always; breaking the rules withholds a benefit; lack of the benefit is known on our level as discomfort. Living requires nourishment; failure to get it causes pain—lack of the comfort we should be enjoying. Same on other planes, such as mental and psychic. If we don't do right, we don't feel right. The body, with all its parts and functions, is the indicator; but it isn't always the thing to treat. And taking a drug to deaden the pain isn't a real cure. Let's study Saturn.

Your Year Ahead.

If today is your birthday, you are under, right now, the most favorable influence you will have for some time to come; make some real use of it. Prepare for changes for the better, not wishing but acting. Older persons may be involved in your affections now and for a time; cultivate them. Avoid risk and danger: March 13 to 24, and July 20 to 27, 1934.

For Monday, Oct. 2.

GO after everything you want and are sure you deserve today, with the possible exception of rushing into new business deals. Use the morning for finances, collecting and paying. Deal with superiors in afternoon and evening.

Get Out Your Scrap Book.

During the days to come for awhile we will discuss the lessons our old friend Saturn is bringing to members of the 12 clans (Zodiacal signs) in the immediate future. Let us look upon these lessons as opportunities to become better and bigger and happier mortals, not as though we would be better off if we could continue to drift along without mental effort. Life is more than mere food, shelter, raiment and warmth (although they are the foundation of success on this planet). But just keeping alive is not the purpose of living. If it were, the animals would be our equals. Think it over. Consider your responsibilities as opportunities to understand more about yourself as you read this paragraph for several days. It will pay in health and wealth.

Your Year Ahead.

Sons and daughters of this anniversary may find some congestion in their affectional relations coming their way, and in their relations with children; watch your own motives. The year ahead should give you opportunity to make up for recently lost time in many ways; improve finances, write, travel. Avoid risk and danger. March 19 to 25, and July 22 to 28, 1934.

Tomorrow.

Careful in trade, buying and selling. Co-operate to win.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

By THE REV. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

The Older Set

A GROUP of young folk were laughing at the oddities and absurdities of the older generation. Well, turn about is fair play, and youth is entitled to its inning. Between chuckles one caught snatches of talk about bustles, bicycles, chignons, horse-hair sofas, family portraits in the parlor, and such like relics of antiquity.

"As for what they called their minds," said a girl with devastating scorn, "they were narrow, hide-bound. No horizon, no scientific outlook; all tangled up with silly taboos, sanctified and otherwise. One can only pity such people. They hadn't half a chance to live. Afraid of everything—actually afraid of God, as if He would hurt 'em."

"Yes, just pin-headed," agreed a smart boy, lighting a "cig" and passing the pack to the girl. "I'll say they were narrow-minded—they could see through a keyhole with both eyes at the same time. Most of the worth-while things have come about since they petrified. Yet one can't judge. One can only feel sorry for them."

A rich laugh rang out from the next room, clear as a bell. It came from a white haired woman of 70 odd, with deliciously mobile lips and twinkling eyes. Her body may have grown old, but her heart had remained young. She stood in the doorway, a picture of dignity and kindness, as her shrewd, merry eyes went from face to face.

"Ever hear of Goethe?" she asked. "He somewhere says, 'Mankind advances, and man remains the same!' Behind these false fronts—what sort of people lived, thought, suffered, enjoyed? Do tell me—were people who rode in horse cars a different race from yourselves?"

"Well, no," admitted the girl. "Not that, exactly. Yet I'm not sure. If you make a cake with lard it is different from one made with butter, isn't it. Knowledge of life may change its quality too."

"No, my dear," said the old lady. "Life, love, sorrow remain the same; only the outside alters. We had too much fear, you do not have enough. The great things go on—trimmings change the style."

Ten articles, specially selected by Doctor Newton as being the most outstanding so far published in this series, have been reprinted in an attractive booklet.

This booklet will be sent without cost to interested readers. Requests should be addressed to Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Scallops en Casserole

One pound scallops, two cups cream sauce, one tablespoon minced onion, one-half cup grated cheese. Add onion and cheese to cream sauce, putting all in a double boiler. Cook scallops in their own juice for 10 minutes, then add to the sauce and cook for just a few minutes. Turn into a buttered casserole, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake for 15 minutes in a moderate oven.

GOOD TASTE

Can We Evade Reno?

EMILY POST

WILLINGLY I admit that I am flattered; in fact, I might say more than a little thrilled by this letter from a man: "My Dear Mrs. Post: Why in your articles do you invariably address women? Are you under the impression that your column is not read by men? On the rare occasions when you have written on subjects of concern to men you have, in my opinion, done your best writing. Can't you forget your feminine audience for once and give some direct advice about the sort of man who is likely to have the best chance to keep his wife from wanting to make a trip to Reno?

In this day, when young women in many ways are inclined to pattern themselves upon the ideals of the Amazons, it would seem that nothing short of a masculine race combining the physical strength of a heavyweight prizefighter, the business sagacity of a Henry Ford and the perspicacity of our President can hope to compete on a basis of equality with modern woman. Moreover, what can we do to overcome the discouragement of having to pretend unflagging success to a wife who will not tolerate loss of her own prestige through what she considers inexcusable failure? What elixir can there be, which will bestow upon any modern marriage a 50-50 chance of permanent happiness? These remarks are not meant to be funny. In all seriousness I ask: How can we insure our homes against the nemesis of Reno? If I have impertinently criticised your present inclination to focus your very astute mind on women, it is only because I would prefer to have you focus on me."

In answer, I can only say it is probably true that I have acquired a somewhat fixed impression of a permanently feminine audience excepting when, as at the moment, I am answering a letter from a man. Moreover, if I am to be entirely frank, I must add that being myself of the very feminine vintage of the early '90s, I cannot very well pretend to the point of view of the Amazonian modern. But if, as I believe, she is fundamentally like me and only superficially Amazonian, then the fundamental feminine side of her longs for the small attentions that every woman has always longed for from Eve to second Rooseveltian.

It is the little drops of water and little grains of sand that build the mighty ocean of love and the pleasant land of romance—for a woman. A man's idea is of either a steam dredge or nothing. Women long for romance expressed in appreciative sympathy in every trifling gesture, thought and approach. The woman who feels herself fully appreciated and understood rarely goes to Reno. The American man too often takes everything for granted. She loves him or she would not have married him! And that's that! He is irritated because she repeatedly asks him if he loves her. He thinks that remembering "what day this is" of no importance. And yet, on the lack of what he considers stupid fussing over trifles of no importance, a thousand marriages have ended.

What is really stupid is that nothing in all the world could have brought so much credit for so little effort—so little effort, in fact, that no man will bother to write in his pocket diary, which he carries as a business appointment book, or on the calendar pad on his desk, the various days which, in spite of his good intentions, escape his memory until he sees that discontented expression in her face. Very likely he does not even notice that. Why can no man think of anything to write in his engagement book except, "See Jones about X invoice." "Appointment with Smith of Blank Co."? Why can't he write her birthday, the children's birthdays, their wedding day, the day they became engaged, the day that this or that happened, which brought them both especial joy, or perhaps—especial pain? These anniversaries are remembered by scarcely one husband in a thousand, and forgotten by scarcely one woman.

A man almost always thinks of the expression of his devotion by amounts of money. If he has had a financially successful year, he is apt to give his wife a handsome Christmas present. He may possibly give her an important birthday present. But it does not enter his head to take her two gardenias, perhaps, a small box of sweets, a trinket if he can afford it, or some trifle that he has heard her say (and has remembered) that she wanted for the house.

In your last paragraph, it seems to me, you are not quite fair. There are some women, it is true, who look upon their husband's success—or failure—as adding to their own prestige or well-being, but the real woman of today—as of every former day—wants above all to have him, for his own sake, get the reward of his work. No one in the world can give either a man or a woman an elixir which bestows a permanently happy marriage, but in at least a majority of cases a woman stays in love with a man who cherishes her, who brings her unfailing interest in everything that is of concern to her. To give definite directions for keeping the fire of love burning on the hearth of home is, of course, impossible, but there are hundreds of things that are effective in putting it out. And you can name them just as well as I.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

At last I know the spell of you is spent,
But I shall sigh no lingering adieu;
Nor patronize you with a trite lament,
Implying helpless sorrow that we're through.

I shall move on without a backward glance
For you or much belonging to the day
When we were armed and drunk with our romance;
Without a word to you—I'm on my way...

And though the wound of it may last a while,
To rob your life of symmetry and song;
And trap you into tears, and dim your smile,
I don't pretend I'm sorry for the wrong.

Instead, I class it with my lighter crimes...
You've done that thing to me too many times!

—Will Herbert.

No Class.

The newspapers have related how generous was the late Sime Silverman and that he was "an easy touch." All of which is true. One of the old-time actors, whose luck ran out on him, was a daily visitor to the renowned editor's offices on Forty-sixth street—and Sime always slipped him a stake.

One winter day the fellow made his usual call and Sime gave him one of his newly purchased overcoats, plus some money.

He returned an hour later looking a little glum. "Now what's the matter?" asked Sime.

"I was wondering," replied the has-been between hiccups, "if you couldn't get me one with a belt in the back."

Kidding the Kidders.

Take it from one of our neighbors, which is how we got it—there is a conductor on an early Long Island train who has a sense of humor. As the rattler pulls into the Pennsy Station he calls out: "New York, New York—that Wicked City!"

Naturally.

Sid Silvers, who may be seen in "My Weakness," if you don't bend down to tie your shoelace, that is—says he actually heard it. It was at the funeral in Hollywood of a star's sixth husband.

One femme whispered to another: "Do you think she'll marry again?"

"Not until after the funeral," was the reply.

Balm.

One of the locals was disheartened over severe notices which greeted his performance in a new show. A pal tried to comfort him with this mind over matter stuff.

"At least your critics do not consider you unimportant," he was told, "you never are unimportant when you prompt people to throw a ton of brick at you."

It becomes irksome after a while.

System.

Arthur Caesar, who has exiled himself from Broadway for five years, was being discussed again the other night. "Whatever became of him?" someone queried, "I never hear of him any more. I miss his insults."

"I saw him in Hollywood recently," said a returned local, "he is saving his money so that he can come back and afford to make more enemies."

Fact.

Not long ago in the Tombs hoosegow two Broadway outlaws were awaiting trial. On the night before they were both to come up for sentence they played cards. After losing six games (at $1 the game) one of them tossed away his cards and groaned: "Boy, are you lucky!"

The one who complained was freed. The other drew "not more than 10 and not less than five" at Sing Sing.

Quietso, Quietso.

By Way of Report.

The foreign debt arguments which fill the papers every day—recall the effective method of bill-collecting used in the early days of New York.

The collecting agency would send a bright yellow coach, with horses in yellow harness (the driver wore a suit to match) around to the dwelling of the delinquent's house. Out would step the driver in yellow, ringing a bright lemon-colored bell, as he called upon the unfortunate debtor.

Thus—everyone in the neighborhood knew what was happening, and the poor guy usually paid his obligation, if he could, right on the line to save himself more humiliation.

Reason Enough.

The reported tiff between Charles Chaplin and Jim Tully reminds us of the latter's alibi for fighting with John Gilbert years ago. "You shouldn't have done that, Jim—Gilbert's all right," said a pal.

"I really didn't mean to hit him," explained Tully, "but after he missed me five times—I was afraid he'd fan himself to death."

P. HAL SIMS

Why Is It So Difficult To Sign Off?

HAL SIMS

I FIND it good policy to devote a great deal of attention to developing methods for signing off at the two level. You may say that I have to, because my weak opening bids in third and fourth position create a danger requiring special armament to parry it. With more justice you might say that constant tournament play under match-point scoring has elevated part-score bidding to an unnatural importance as compared with its function in rubber play. There is some truth in this—but you may be sure that you will not lose anything in rubber play by handling your signoffs carefully. It would certainly be foolish to pass hands that should be bid in third and fourth position merely because you played only rubber bridge, and did not care to master the signoffs.

Even With an Apparent Fit, Take Your Time.

Even when you locate a fit in a trump suit, do not pursue the will-o'-the-wisp beyond the two-level when lacking high cards in the off-suits.

Bidding Which Still Remains a Secret.

	NORTH
	♠K1092 ♥3 ♦J1053 ♣AK94
	SOUTH ♠A86 ♥Q864 ♦A974 ♣J10

The incredible bidding which its perpetrators have still refused to explain to me—yes, they are Masters—is that which landed West in a contract for three no trumps, doubled. Down 1000.

I can only surmise that the bidding went this way: One diamond by West, one heart by East, one spade by West—the fatal error of bidding an unbiddable suit in a weak hand—two clubs by East, two no trumps by West, concealing the heart solidity; three clubs by East, asking for a preference; three no trumps by West, hypnotized by his own spade bid; pass by East, completely deceived by that same spade bid. What I cannot understand is why East let the double stand. He should not leave the bid in no trumps even if not doubled.

Reasonable Bidding.

East and South must pass. West has a good third-hand opening bid of one diamond. North can hardly expect them to get far out of their depth against his hand; he should double to defend or obtain a partial score. Now I think East should get in a bid just because of his weakness, since he can do so at the one-level; and if he is going to be hurt at one heart or two clubs doubled, he will probably be saving a game. Over East's heart bid, South naturally passes, knowing the enemy cannot bid much further without getting into difficulties. West, not knowing exactly what to infer from his partner's bid, should give him a chance by raising to two hearts, telling East that they have a fit in that suit and that his third-hand opening bid was made with a pretty fair hand. East, of course, passes, glad to get the bid at a low contract. His strategy was directed to just that object. Actually the fit in hearts is not, as you see, so much of a fit as one would expect, and they will go down a trick if the defense is normally handled. At that, minus-50 is a good result for East and West, as if North and South are allowed to get together, they will arrive at one or two no trumps, and will have little trouble in making two odd.

Points to Notice in This Bidding.

In the bidding just given, which I think is the correct bidding for both sides, note East's strategic reason for departing from the usual procedure. As a rule, a response over an opponent's overcall is constructive, encouraging, and not a mere chance-giver. Here he breaks that "rule" and bids strategically, from weakness, hoping to erect a barricade in the path of the opponents' expected bidding. Note the way that West allows his partner some leeway. He does not rush to three hearts or two no trumps. Doubtful whether North's double was based on hope or on fear he contents himself with a mere chance-giving raise, showing the fit and safety of the hand, but not driving the bidding beyond the two level unless East now feels justified in going further.

Monday—Rebidding after a jump raise.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

Answering the W. C. T. U. Argument

ELSIE ROBINSON

WE, the people of these United States, are up against some facts which are more than unpleasant. They are tragic. They may well be deadly. They are the facts about the eighteenth amendment and our 15 years of effort to enforce that law.

Whether we are Wet or Dry, we should eagerly seek and gladly welcome the truth about those facts.

FOR WHATEVER OUR PERSONAL CONVICTIONS, WE HAVE NO RIGHT TO SUPPORT A LAW IF IT HAS PROVEN TO BE A BAD LAW FOR THE COUNTRY.

WHATEVER OUR PERSONAL CONVICTIONS, WE HAVE NO RIGHT TO DEMAND THE RETENTION OF A LAW, IF THE MAJORITY OF OUR FELLOW CITIZENS DO NOT DESIRE THE RETENTION OF THAT LAW.

These truths would seem to be self-evident. There is nothing new or radical about them. They are in line with the theories upon which this democracy was founded, upheld by loyal citizens since the beginning of our nation. Yet behold the amazing situation which now confronts us!

Here is this eighteenth amendment, passed 15 years ago—passed in good faith. This country needed cleaning up. The saloon element had gotten out of hand and, despite all warnings, would not mend its ways. The overwhelming majority of Americans wanted temperance, and were moving toward a program which was gradually bringing temperance.

But a small minority of Americans wanted temperance RIGHT AWAY—WILLY NILLY. And they believed that a PROHIBITING law was the best way to effect temperance. And so, taking advantage of the fact that great numbers of our voters were at war and others distracted by war, they forced through the Prohibition Law and it became a part of our Constitution.

Now it was obvious to anyone who knows American history that this act was in direct violation of those traditions and statutes which guarantee liberty of Individual Conscience and States' Rights.

Yes, I know what you're going to say—"Both of these things have been violated before in our history, during emergencies. They're always violated at war times."

That is perfectly true. What's more, we Americans are a good-natured, easy-going outfit. If a new measure, however unpopular it may seem at first, proves popular and profitable, it's jake with us—no matter how irregular its origin may have been.

BUT THE PROHIBITION LAW DIDN'T PROVE TO BE POPULAR, PROFITABLE — OR EVEN POSSIBLE. FROM THE VERY FIRST IT WAS OBVIOUSLY IMPOSSIBLE TO ENFORCE THAT LAW, AND WE DRAINED OUR TREASURY TRYING TO ENFORCE IT.

WHAT WAS EVEN WORSE, OUT OF OUR COMBINED STRUGGLE TO ENFORCE AND RESIST THAT LAW, THERE AROSE A REGIME OF LAWLESSNESS AND DEBAUCHERY UNPARALLELED IN THE HISTORY OF OUR NATION.

Lawlessness and debauchery have increased to such an extent that we must today do something drastic about them, or our very national life is in jeopardy. And we are now attempting to do something. Federal control having proved futile, we are putting the matter back into the hands of the State, and giving the individual voter a chance to have his say.

Therefore, it is evident that every American citizen, whatever his party, should know the truth about our national conditions during the last 15 years.

If he is a Dry, he should know that truth in order to vindicate his Prohibition stand. If he is a Wet, he should know that truth in order to vindicate his repeal vote. In either case, if he really believes that he is right, he should have nothing to fear by facing facts, and he should be eager to produce his proofs.

But is this the case?

ANYTHING BUT!

The Wets, to be sure, have marshaled mountains of facts to expose the nightmare of Prohibition and the evils which arose from it.

BUT in the national appeal recently issued by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National W. C. T. U., she says in part:

"IF REPEAL COMES, THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC WILL COME IN LIKE A FLOOD."

Now no one can doubt that Mrs. Boole is both an excellent and a sincere woman. But one wonders where she has been for the last 15 years. The answer is, of course, obvious.

Mrs. Boole has been where a nice woman who is president of the National W. C. T. U. would be. She has been in her own home, her own church, and equally respectable places. She has not been ca-

Why not just use stock shots of the Cave of the Winds?

Senator Long went through the script and eliminated all sequences that he considered annoying.

Which is like eliminating the leg sequences in a Dietrich picture.

PERSONALS

CLAIRE, darling. I love you, believe in you now and always, no matter what has happened. I'm not forgetting my promise and know you're true to yours. Truly, sweet, forgive me. You'll understand sometime. Your mother says Waukegan, but I don't believe it. What hurt most was your leaving behind the paper bag. Call Bess for letter. Dad is helping. I worship you and need you terribly, particularly if you're in trouble. H.

Says Genevieve, the kitchen cynic:

"It's pretty hard to think of anything that seems as excessively high priced as a novel you've just finished."

The war on racketeers, gunmen and thugs is gaining momentum every day. And all we can say, after reading the following news item, is that the underworld had better leave town immediately:

NEW YORK—Local policemen have been instructed by Commissioner James S. Bolan that all members of the force who wear suspenders must keep them inside their shirts.

3 IF ONE FINDS HIS ANCESTORS WERE NOT SUCCESSFUL DOES THAT MEAN HE CANNOT SUCCEED?
YES OR NO
COPYRIGHT 1933 JOHN DILLE CO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: The answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. —No. There is no other out of which the family and l can be built. It is the fa and ome out of which the nation uilt nd society carried on so tha mal uman life is possible. Som ople ake mistakes and should even ivorces, but we do not give usi ess because some men fail ease uilding houses because a fe urn own.

2. —We are forced to believe it is not from investigations. In a study of Who's Who marriages Dr. Donald Laird found that quarrels about who should control the money and how it should be spent was a much greater source of trouble than the amount involved. And Dr. Goodwin Watson, psychologist, has shown in an extensive "happiness test," that people with "lots of money" do not rate any higher on their happiness scores than people with only a bare subsistence. Certainly one or both parties should have some kind of a job, as love cannot live on nothing, but beyond that, money seems to have little influence on married happiness.

3. —No, they may have failed because of lack of education, opportunity or health. Furthermore, owing to the thousands of combinations and re-combinations of the elements in the germ-cells from which each child is born, it often happens that a child is superior in natural abilities to any one of his ancestors. Theodore Roosevelt, Abraham Lincoln, Henry Ford and hundreds of other famous men are examples of this very simple fact of nature. You may be the fortunate one. In fact the comparative success or failures of your ancestors is only a very remote index of your chances of success.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Four new cases of food poisoning were reported to health authorities yesterday and five Japanese gardeners were charged in complaints with violation of an ordinance regulating the use of poisonous sprays.

More than 100 cases of poisoning have been reported in the last seven weeks and 31 gardeners have been prosecuted.

Unemployed Build Houses.

Fifty-five unemployed men built or improved 22 houses and outbuildings in East St. Louis and vicinity during the summer with lumber salvaged from 90 old freight cars. The only cost of the wrecking operation was $10 for gasoline used in trucks which hauled the lumber to the scene of building operations.

BLONDE TROUBLE

A New Serial Story

By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER THIRTY.

"WELL, this is a surprise!" Douglas exclaimed.

Now that he was here, standing beside her, Connie couldn't speak. She could only look up at him, helplessly, weakly.

"Anything the matter?" He must have seen the anxiety in her eyes, on her face.

"A good deal is the matter. Stella Putnam...you remember her, of course, you tried to rob her once...saw you on Fifth avenue driving your car today and she's given the police your license number!"

Was that a flicker of annoyance that came on his face so quickly, then then left as quickly? The girl couldn't tell. The next moment he was the same, smiling, imperturbable, as if she hadn't told him something that was of vital importance to him.

"And you came to tell me?"

"I did. I thought you'd know what to do about it. You seem to be very clever about getting out of trouble."

"Thanks."

Was he thanking her for warning him, or thanking her for the compliment to his ingeniousness? Connie turned away angrily and walked toward the elevator. She had done her part, done more for him than he deserved.

She always seemed to be helping him out of trouble. First one thing and then the other.

That afternoon in the Irving Apartments when he had taken refuge in her kitchen, and she had let him stay there while the police were present. Returning the bracelets he had stolen from Janet.

NOW this, and he wasn't even grateful. He had almost joked about it! Well, it was the end. He could get along by himself hereafter. She wouldn't lift a finger to help him.

"Wait, Connie—" He was running after her, pulling her back from the car she was about to step into. "We'll talk this over, if you will be so kind."

"There's nothing more to talk over. I've told you all I know, all I came to tell you." Bitterly, because she was getting more and more furious.

"Please, Connie, be reasonable. You may not think I'm worried, but I am. This will be a mess for me—"

A mess? More than a mess, a gigantic disappointment, when all his plans were made to marry Janet Ritchie.

"Will it?"

He ignored the sarcasm in her voice.

"Did this virago Miss Putnam report my auto number to the police?"

"She did, and she isn't a virago. She's a decent peace-loving woman, and she's waiting at home for the police to call and tell her whom the car belongs to. They imagine it is stolen—"

"Good. I did report it stolen the afternoon of July 8 and the police returned it to me at 10 at night."

Connie looked at him, her lips half opened, her brown eyes wide with astonishment. Again she was tongue-tied, but not from nervousness this time.

"And I can rake up an alibi for the time I was supposed to be in Miss Putnam's apartment. That'll be easy," he went on quickly. "So I'm awfully glad you came up. I'll get busy right away. If you'll excuse me. . ."

Connie should have gone then, ut she didn't. She stood and vatched him go into a phone booth ear the checking desk, saw the oor close after him.

Through the glass she could see he outline of his white shirt front gainst the instrument. It was ve minutes before he came out, nd when he did, he walked swiftly o to her.

"Everything's all right."

"You mean you fixed the alibi?"

"I did. I was having a business nference with a friend of mine om 5 to 6 on the afternoon of ly. 8."

nnie arose slowly. The fool was made her come up and him, but she couldn't tell him that. She'd never tell him that.

> An impulse prompts CONNIE PAIGE to help a mysterious young man escape the police, though she knows he is the thief STELLA PUTNAM found in her apartment. A few days later at Seahurst, he is introduced to her as CLIVE DOUGLAS, a guest of JANET RITCHIE. Janet's evident infatuation leads Connie to add fortune hunting to the sins of this man. And Connie falls in love with him herself, despite all her suspicions.
> GROVER RITCHIE has Connie at Seahurst as a counter attraction for LALIA IVOR, a dancer with whom NED RITCHIE imagines himself in love. Ned quickly tumbles into the plot, and alarms Connie by his serious declaration of love. She is relieved when Mr. Ritchie decides Ned is cured and sends her back to New York—back to the monotony of the apartment she shares with BETH LEWIS.
> Ned pursues the girl, getting her address from Clive, and to avoid his persistent attentions, Connie moves in with Stella. When Stella announces that she has seen "her thief" again, and reported the license number of his car, Connie knows she must tell Clive. At the Midway Club she learns that he has a 9 o'clock engagement with Janet at the Embassy Club. Connie goes to the Embassy Club and anxiously waits for Clive. He arrives at 9:15.
> NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

"Janet Ritchie is waiting for you inside, She came in 15 minutes before you did."

"That's not answering my question, Connie. What made you come up here?"

"Perhaps if I'd known you'd made such elaborate plans for an alibi, I wouldn't have come. As it was, I felt that, well, I felt, the publicity you would get might annoy Miss Ritchie."

"Sure it was that, Connie?"

"Very sure. You're going to marry her, aren't you?"

"Marry whom?"

She took a long breath. Her eyes were focused on an elderly woman, accompanied by a youngish man, but she didn't see the elderly woman, nor the youngish man.

"Janet Ritchie."

"That depends, Connie. . . ."

A good enough answer, she thought.

As good as any. If Janet would marry him when she found out about . . . this.

"I understand you've left Seahurst?"

"And I understand that in London you were known seven years ago as Clive Darrow, instead of Clive Douglas!"

"Really, who told you that? Or did you discover it yourself?"

"Lalia Ivor told me." Connie thought she might as well be truthful about it. "It's true, isn't it?" Hoping it wasn't. Hoping he'd lie about that, too.

"Unfortunately, it's true. Sometimes I use the one name and sometimes the other."

"For your business?"

"For my business, Connie."

She was standing at the elevator once more, waiting for the car to come up when a page boy brushed up against Clive.

"Call for Mr. Douglas. Mr. Clive Douglas,'

"I'm Mr. Clive Douglas."

"Gentleman here," the boy pointed over his shoulder at the heavy-set man dressed in street clothes who was following him, "gentleman here wants to see you."

"You're Mr. Clive Douglas?" the man asked Clive, and Clive nodded.

"I'm Randolph of the detective force." A flick of his coat, and both Clive and Connie saw the star on his vest. "Have to ask you to come with me, Mr. Douglas. Some trouble we've got to clear up."

THE police had come for him! Stella might be waiting even now at the station ready to identify him!

"Would you wait until I tell Miss Ritchie? She's in the dining room," Clive asked politely. The detective said he would come, too, and the last Connie saw of both of them was when they disappeared into the labyrinth of tables in the cabaret.

It was 10 o'clock when Connie walked in Stella's apartment, and found Stella gone, but Beth reading.

"They found the man," Beth informed her jubilantly. "And I'm waiting up here for Stella to come home and tell us all about it."

The girl went into the bedroom and undressed slowly. Her head ached, and she was tired, more tired than she had ever been in her life before. Tired and disgusted and miserable.

Rotten what love did to you. Rotten, the things it made you do. The three aspirins she took didn't relieve her headache any more than they relieved her heartache.

Clive's alibi . . . would the police accept it, lie that it was? He seemed so sure of himself when he came back from the telephone at the Embassy Club. . . .

Wouldn't Stella ever come? Why was she so long?

Stella finally did come at 11:30.

PRACTICAL and MODISH STYLES for COLLEGE WEAR

Washington University Freshmen on Their First Day on the Campus

MISS DOROTHY COOMBS in brown tweed, when she promised faithfully to obey the Sophomores, at least until Home Coming. The skirt has straight lines with kick pleats in the front. Shiny metal buttons decorate the shoulders and brown satin ties in an attractive bow across the front.

MISS DOROTHY HANLON in a one-piece dress of brown and white bias stripes. A bow of brown grosgrain ribbon at the high neckline has nine ends forming a bib. The same material forms her belt. Accessories are brown with variety added by the Freshman button of green and red which every new student must wear.

A two-piece dress worn by MISS GRACE POWE on her first day at school. The wool skirt is of that new shade of gray which has a brown cast. The scarf and belt matches the skirt, but the blouse is of blue and gray checked wool. A red buckle on the belt lends a contrasting note of color. With this costume she wears brown shoes and hat and carries a brown purse.

News for STAMP Collectors

A special 3-cent stamp will be issued to commemorate the new Byrd Antarctic expedition. It will be for use on letters mailed through the Little America Postoffice to be established at the base camp. The special stamp will not be placed on sale at postoffices for use on ordinary domestic mail, but will be obtainable by collectors from the Philatelic Agency at Washington, D. C., on Oct. 9.

Collectors desiring the Little America cancelation may send covers before or not later than Oct. 8 to "Byrd Antarctic Expedition, c-o Postmaster, Norfolk, Va." After that date collectors desiring covers from Little America must send them to "Byrd Antarctic Expedition, in care of Postmaster, Washington, D. C." In both cases, in addition to the 3-cent postage fee, a service charge of 50 cents is made, making a total of 53 cents for each cover which should be sent to Postmaster at either city.

The Byrd stamp design will be as follows: In the center will be a large globe with routes of the several Byrd flights shown by dotted line with the dates in solid Gothic. Proposed new flights in the Antarctic and the South Pole are also shown on the globe. The position of the base camp is marked. by a solid dark circle with the wording, "Little America" in solid Gothic extending parallel with the line of longitude extending west to the base. Across the top of the stamp in gold Roman letters, arranged in two lines, is the inscription, "Byrd Antarctic Expedition 11." The stamp will be the same size as the special delivery stamp now in use and the color will be blue.

The description of the Graf Zeppelin stamp is as follows: It will be of the same shape and size as the current airmail stamp. For the central portion of the design the Graf Zeppelin is shown over the Atlantic Ocean. To the right appears the hangar at Friedrichshafen and to the left is shown the Federal Building at the Century of Progress Exposition. Across the top of the stamp in Roman letters appear the words "United States Postage" and directly below in Gothic letters are the words "A Century of Progress Flight." In a large oval with a dark background below the central design is the figure of value "50c" in white lettering. Around the stamp for a border are two narrow parallel lines. The stamp will be issued first at New York City on Oct. 2 and at Chicago, Miami and Akron as soon as possible, and will continue on sale at these points until after completion of the flight of the Graf Zeppelin. No further supplies of these stamps will be issued to any other postoffices other than those named above.

The Postmasters at the above postoffices will handle covers for collectors, but they must be accompanied by a postal money order for the value of the stamps to be attached.

On Oct. 13 the special 5 cent postage stamp in honor of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko will be issued. It will first be placed on sale on this date at the postoffices at Chicago, Boston, Detroit, St. Louis and Buffalo. As soon as possible they will be placed on sale throughout the country. The Philatelic Agency at Washington, D. C., and the postoffice at Washington, D. C., will have covers on sale on Oct. 10, but neither the agency or the postoffice there will handle covers for mailing on this date. The five postoffices for first day sale will handle covers in the usual manner.

New Issues.

BRAZIL — A stamp has been issued in honor of the first National Eucharistic Congress. It is a large upright rectangular stamp with symbolical figures located in the diamond-shaped center of the crosses in the four corners. The face value of the stamp is 200 reis and the color is red.

BAHRAIN — The current India King George, 2a vermilion, which was surcharged. "BAHRAIN," introduced to stamp collectors a new political domain. This value will soon be followed by additional values.

BRUNEI—The new colored stamps were placed on sale a short time ago, and at the same time all remaining old stocks were destroyed.

BOLIVIA—Five new provisional surcharges are being prepared and will be issued shortly. They will be as follows: 0.5 on 1B, red, 0.15 on 50c, brown; 0.15 on 35c, carmine, 0.15 on 45c, orange, and 0.25 on 40c orange.

CANADA—The 2c black-brown and 3c deep red of the 1932 King George type, has been issued in coils, perforated 8½ vertically.

CZECHO - SLOVAKIA — Two stamps have been issued which have no figures of value, and which do not appear to serve any definite purpose other than for use as a tax stamp or official use. The first stamp is printed in light red and carries the following inscription: "Polecona," and the second stamp is violet and has the following inscription "Zwyczaina."

CHINA—A 6c orange-brown of the Junk type has just recently been issued. The stamp has been re-engraved.

CHINA—The 5c green, Dr. Sun Yat Sen, type 2, which was recently issued, has been overprinted in the usual Chinese characters for the following Chinese provinces: Yunnan and Szechuen.

DUTCH INDIES—The non-stop flight from Holland to the Dutch Indies, which will take place in the near future, will be commemorated by the issuance of an air mail stamp with a face value of 30 cents.

GERMANY—More values of the current set with the colors changed have been issued. They are as follows: The 8pf is now in orange, the 10pf in chocolate and the 1Mk in yellow and black.

JUGO-SLAVIA—Twelve denominations of the regular postage series of 1926 and three values of the Charity set of the same year and five values of the postage due stamps have been overprinted as follows: "Kraljevina Jugo-Slavia."

When They Were Young

No. 12 in a Series of Early Portraits of St. Louisans

WALTER SHIELDS in early days.

By CAROL BATES.

ONE day Walter Shields' mother sent him to a store for some Valenciennes lace.

Two of Walter's little boy friends went with him. It was a great adventure.

But "Valenciennes" was a hard word to remember. The success of their mission hinged on their remembering that word. Over and over they said it, "Valenciennes, Valenciennes, Valenciennes." All they had to do was to keep on saying it constantly until they reached the store and bought the lace. That was simple enough, they thought.

The ride down on the street car without a grown-up was thrilling.

They enjoyed every minute of it.

They reached the store and found the lace counter. Then they stood staring at each other in consternation. What was that word? — In their excitement over what they saw, they had forgot to keep on saying it. They had not the least idea what kind of lace they were to buy.

Then one little boy had an inspiration. "I know!" he shouted, "Vaseline lace!"

So the day was saved.

MONDAY—Stanford Smith.

THUMBNAIL REVIEWS OF THE NEW MOTION PICTURES

By NIE

TOO MUCH HARMONY—Bing Crosby crooning, Jack Oakie and Skeets Gallagher doing a knock about act, Lilyan Tashman in million dollar gowns and Judith Allen looking very pretty in a back stage romance which is best in its lighter moments. Plenty of music and girls. At the AMBASSADOR.

ONE MAN'S JOURNEY—Another story of a country doctor with Lionel Barrymore giving his usual excellent performance as the friend and advisor of the poor and lowly—and the betrayed. At the ST. LOUIS.

THE NUISANCE—Lee Tracy getting plenty of laughs out of being a shyster damage suit lawyer who falls in love with a girl detective sent to trap him. Madge Evans is the girl, Charles Butterworth is among those present and Frank Morgan does a swell piece of work as a crooked physician. At LOEWS.

MY WEAKNESS—Lilian Harvey's first American film with some music, pretty chorines and Harry Langdon, Charles Butterworth, again, and Lew Ayres to make it a sometimes amusing picture. At the FOX.

GOLDEN HARVEST—How you goin' to keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen the Chicago Board of Trade? Fairly good drama of two country brothers who went about making money out of wheat in different ways. LADIES MUST LOVE, the second feature, is a romance of gold diggers that never gets anywhere. At the MISSOURI.

Baked Pears

Six pears, one-half cup brown sugar, a pinch of salt, one tablespoon butter. Wash and pare pears. Cut in halves and remove core. Place in a shallow buttered baking dish, sprinkle with salt and sugar and melted butter and bake in a moderate oven until tender. A dusting of cinnamon may be added if desired.

If the chocolate flakes in cornstarch, beat hard with an egg beater while still in the double boiler. It will almost always cause it to cream together.

Why not just use stock shots of the Cave of the Winds?

Senator Long went through the script and eliminated all sequences that he considered annoying.

COPYRIGHT 1933 JOHN DILLE CO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. —No. There is no other type out of which the family and home can be built. It is the family and home out of which the nation is built and society carried on so that normal human life is possible. Some people make mistakes and should be given divorces, but we do not give up business because some men fail or cease building houses because a few burn down.

2. —We are forced to believe it is not from investigations. In a study of Who's Who marriages Dr. Donald Laird found that quarrels about who should control the money and how it should be spent was a much greater source of trouble than the amount involved. And Dr. Goodwin Watson, psychologist, has shown in an extensive "happiness test," that people with "lots of money" do not rate any higher on their happiness scores than people with only a bare subsistence. Certainly one or both parties should have some kind of a job, as love cannot live on nothing, but beyond that, money seems to have little influence on married happiness.

3. —No, they may have failed because of lack of education, opportunity or health. Furthermore, owing to the thousands of combinations and re-combinations of the elements in the germ-cells from which each child is born, it often happens that a child is superior in natural abilities to any one of his ancestors. Theodore Roosevelt, Abraham Lincoln, Henry Ford and hundreds of other famous men are examples of this very simple fact of nature. You may be the fortunate one. In fact the comparative success or failures of your ancestors is only a very remote index of your chances of success.

Big NATIONAL BARN DANCE

The Nation's Greatest Saturday Night Program

Tonight you can hear the famous WLS National Barn Dance. More than 40 radio artists will make the "old hay-loft" ring with mirth and melody. Old fashioned singing and dancing, hill-billy bands, quartettes, snappy songs, old time tunes, fancy fiddling, cross-roads comedy. A whole hour of fun for old and young.

Don't Miss It! A real show—staged in a real theatre—before a real audience. On the air 8 years—over 5,000,000 listeners. Now brought to you each Saturday night, direct from Chicago, over station—

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Four new cases of food poisoning were reported to health authorities yesterday and five Japanese gardeners were charged in complaints with violation of an ordinance regulating the use of poisonous sprays.

More than 100 cases of poisoning have been reported in the last seven weeks and 31 gardeners have been prosecuted.

Unemployed Build Houses.

Fifty-five unemployed men built or improved 22 houses and outbuildings in East St. Louis and vicinity during the summer with lumber salvaged from 90 old freight cars. The only cost of the wrecking operation was $10 for gasoline used in trucks which hauled the lumber to the scene of building operations.

OH PEGGY DARLING, PLEASE STOP WHISTLING AND SNAPPING YOUR FINGERS IN THAT UTTERLY LIGHT-MINDED MANNER SO SOON AFTER I STOOD IN THE STREET WITH MY MOUTH OPEN WHILE WE SAW SIBYL DARDANELLA WHISKED AWAY IN MR. EL DORADO'S CAR.
OH MOTHER WHY WORRY ABOUT THAT?
IN SPITE OF THE WAY I KNOW YOU FEEL ABOUT IT, I JUST DON'T SEE WHY I SHOULD TRY TO KEEP MRS. DARDANELLA AND MONTGOMERY EL DORADO APART?
PEGGY BUNGLE DO YOU HONESTLY MEAN TO TELL ME YOU'RE NOT THE LEAST BIT WORRIED ABOUT A BOLD-FACED WOMAN WHO LOOKS ON MILLIONAIRES IN THE SAME WAY THAT HUNTERS LOOK AT RABBITS?
WELL MOTHER....
DO YOU MEAN THAT YOU DIDN'T SEE HOW SHE STARTED TALKING IN WHAT SHE THOUGHT WAS AN ARISTOCRATIC STYLE AND LOOKING RIGHT INTO HIS EYES AS SOON AS SHE HEARD THE NAME EL DORADO?
BUT ANYHOW.....
DON'T LET A LITTLE FALSE PRIDE KEEP YOU FROM ADMITTING YOU'VE MADE A TERRIBLE MISTAKE, PEGGY. YOUR FATHER IS ALWAYS PREACHING ABOUT "LOOKING FACTS IN THE FACE" BUT IN DEALING WITH A VAMP YOU HAVE TO DO JUST THAT. YES SIR, I KNOW.

Taxation With Misrepresentation

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK CITY discarded three tax plans today and hopes to do better tomorrow.

Just when we think we have a beautiful tax figured out somebody roars in pain and the rubber ball falls off the trained seal's nose.

Wall Street escaped from the barbecue by the film of its teeth. The brokers piled everything into the moving van but the hot kitchen stove. And they were fanning that with their hats.

Nobody seems to care much who is taxed so long as it is somebody else. It is the old gag of the gored bull fearing the burned child.

In the meantime the bankers have rushed the golden egg to cold storage to stall off a premature hatching.
